THE genius which has been successfully exerted in contributing to the instruction or amusement of society, in even the rudest times, seems to have some claim upon its gratitude for protection in more enlightened ones. It is a superannuated domestic, whose passed services entitle his old age to a comfortable provision and retreat; or rather, indeed, a humble friend, whose attachment in adverse circumstances demands the warm and grateful acknowledgements of prosperity. The venerable though nameless bards whom the generosity of the public is now

Peter Murray Hill Dec. 12, 1945

courted to rescue from oblivion and obscurity, have been the favourites of the people for ages, and could once boast a more numerous train of applauding admirers than the most celebrated of our modern poets. Their compositions, it may be true, will have few charms in the critical eye of a cultivated age; but it should always be remembered, that, without such efforts, humble as they are, cultivation or refinement would never exist, and barbarism and ignorance be eternal. It is to an ENNIUS, perhaps, that we are indebted for a VIRGIL, to such writers as PEELE and GREENE, or others still more obscure, that we owe the admirable dramas of our divinest SHAKSPEARE; and if we are ignorant of the comparatively wretched attempts which called forth the deservedly immortal powers of HOMER or CHAUCER, it is by no means to be infered that they were the earliest of poets, or sprung into the world, as has been said of the inimitable dramatist already mentioned, like Minerva out of the head of Jupiter, at full growth, and mature.

Any enquiry, it is presumed, after the authors of these fugitive productions is at present impossible. It can only be conjectured that they were written (or, more accurately speaking, perhaps, imagined and committed to memory) by men, who made it their profession to chant or rehearse them, up and down the country, in the trophyed hall or before the gloomy castle, and at marriages, wakes and other festive meetings, and who generally accompanied their strains, by no means ruder than the age itself, with the tinkling of a harp, or sometimes, it is apprehended, with the graces of a much humbler instrument. It may, indeed, be conceived that they would now and then be furnished with a superior performance from the cloister or college; as even the great sir Thomas More has left us something of the same kind*. But, however it was, they seem to have been more attentive to temporary applause or present emolument than to future fame, of which they had possibly no idea, and, while they consigned their effusions to the casual protection of an auditors memory, were totally indifferent whether they were remembered or forgotten. The consequence is that while we are indebted for those which remain to accident and good fortune, numbers have perished, not less, and possibly even more, worthy of preservation. The reader who wishes for further information concerning this set of men may find his curiosity gratified by consulting Dr. Percys very ingenious and elegant "Essay on the ancient English Minstrels," prefixed to his "Reliques of ancient English Poetry," and some "Observations" on the same character in a collection of "Ancient Songs," published by J. Johnson, in St. Pauls Church-yard*.

* It is suspected, however, that the present copy of the History of Tom Thumb has been modernised by some ballad-writer of Queen Elizabeths time; very probably the same Richard Johnson who afterward turned it into prose.

It might naturally enough excite the surprize of the intelligent reader, that in a professed republication of popular poetry, nothing should occur upon a subject indisputably the most popular of all—the history of our renowned English archer, ROBIN HOOD. Some apology is undoubtedly necessary on this head, as the omission is by no means owing to ignorance or neglect. In fact, the poems, ballads, and historical or miscellaneous matter, in existence, relative to this celebrated outlaw, are sufficient to furnish the contents of even a couple of volumes considerably bulkier than the present; and fully deserve to appear in a separate publication, “unmix’d with baser matter.”

It would be no trifling gratification to the editor of this little volume, and contribute in some degree, he is persuaded, to the amusement of even the literary part of the public, if the present attempt should be productive of others of a similar nature. Many of our old poems, which would even now be of acknowledged excellence, are scarcely known by name. Such, for instance, are "The wife lapped in Morrels skin, or The taming of a shrew," "The highway to the spittle house," "The school house of women," "The unlucky firmentie," and some others; all or most of which abound with a harmony, spirit, keenness, and natural humour, little to be expected, perhaps, in compositions of so remote a period, and which would by no means appear to have lost their relish. These pieces, indeed, are not only of much greater length than, but of a very different structure from, those in the following collection, and evidently appear to have been written for the press. The popularity of the two first is evinced by their being mentioned by Lancham (or Langham), in his Letter signifying the Queenz entertainment at Killingwoorth Castl, 1575, along with several others, among which are some of those here printed, as extant in the whimsical but curious library of Captain Cox, a mason of Coventry, who had "great oversight in matters of storie," and appears to have been a wonderful admirer and collector of old poetry, romances, and ballads.

It is not the editors inclination to enter more at large into the nature or merits of the poems he has here collected. The originals have fallen in his way on various occasions, and the pleasing recollection of that happyest period of which most of them were the familiar acquaintance, has induced him to give them to the public with a degree of elegance, fidelity and correctness, seldom instanced in republications of greater importance. Every poem is printed from the authority referred to, with no other intentional license than was occasioned by the disuse of contractions, and a regular systematical punctuation, or became necessary by the errors of the original, which are generally, if not uniformly, noticed in the margin, the emendation being at the same time distinguished in the text. Under these circumstances, the impression is committed to the patronage of the liberal and the candid, of those whom the artificial refinements of modern taste have not rendered totally insensible to the humble effusions of unpolished nature, and the simplicity of old times; a description of readers, it is to be hoped, sufficiently numerous to justify a wish that it may never fall into the hands of any other.

ADAM BEL,
CLYM OF THE CLOUGHE,
AND

*This very ancient, curious, and popular performance, apparently composed for the purpose of being sung in public to the harp, is extant in an old quarto, in black letter, without date, "Imprinted at London in Lettburys by Wyllyam Copland," and preserved among Mr. Garricks Old Plays, now in the British Museum, whence it is here given. This copy was made use of by Dr. Percy, who has published the poem in his "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry,"* with some corrections fortunately supplied by another in his folio MS. which may possibly account for the many different readings between that publication and the present. No earlier edition than Coplands is known. It was reprinted in 1605 by James Roberts, along with "The second part," a very inferior and servile production, of which there was, likewise, an edition in 1616, with considerable variations. Both these are in the Bodleian Library.*

As there is no other memorial of these celebrated archers than the following legend, to which all the passages cited, from different authors, by the learned editor already mentioned, are evident allusions, any inquiry as to the time or reality of their existence must be little else than the sport of imagination. The passages referred to are, however, unquestionable proofs of the great popularity of the poem, which in fact has gone through numberless editions; chiefly, it must be confessed, in the character of a penny-history.

* Volume I. p. 143.

The "Engliſhe wood" mentioned in v. 16, &c. is Englewood or Inglewood, an extenſive foreſt in Cumberland, which was ſixteen miles in length, and reached from Carlile to Penrith*. A ſimilar obſervation has been already made by Dr. Percy, who adds, that "Engle or Ingle-wood ſignifies wood for firing." But, with ſubmiſſion to ſo good a judge, it ſhould rather ſeem, in the preſent inſtance, to deſign a wood or foreſt in which extraordinary fires were made on particular occaſions; a conjecture which will appear the more plauſible, when it is conſidered that the identical ſpot on which Penrith beacon now ſtands, and where a beacon has ſtood for ages, was formerly within the limits of this very foreſt †; and that Ingleborough, one of "the higheſt hills between Scotland and Trent," has obtained this name from the fires anciently lighted in the beacon erected on its flat top, where the foundation is ſtill viſible.

"Clym of the Clough" is properly explained by the above ingenious editor to mean Clem or Clement of the Valley. "Cloudeſtê," of which the etymology has not been hitherto attempted, may be thought to ſignify a rocky paſture; from clud, rupes, and leag, paſcuum. See Lyes Saxon Dictionary.

* Edward the Firſt, in hunting in this foreſt, is ſaid to have killed two hundred bucks in one day. See the Additions to Cumberland, in Camdens Britannia, 1695.

MERY it was in grene forest,
 Amonge the leues grene,
 Wher that men walke east and west,
 Wyth bowes and arrowes kene,
 To ryse the dere out of theyr denne,                   5
 Such fightes hath ofte bene fene,
 As by ' thre' yemen of the north countrey,
 By them it is I meane :
 The one of them hight Adam Bel,
 The other Clym of the Clough,                   10
 The thyrd was William of Cloudesly,
 An archer good ynough.

They were outlawed for venyfon,
 These yemen everechone ;
 They swore them brethren upon a day,      15
 To Englyshewood for to gone.
 Now lith and lysten, gentylmen,
 That of myrthes loveth to here :
 Two of them were sngle men,
 The third had a wedded fere ;      20
 Wyllyam was the wedded man,
 Muche more then was hys care,
 He sayde to hys brethren upon a day,
 To Carelel he would fare.
 For to speke with fayre Alse hys wife,      25
 And with hys chyldren thre.
 By my trouth, sayde Adam Bel,
 Not by the counsell of me ;
 For if ye go to Caerlel, brother,
 And from thys wylde wode wende,      30
 If the justice mai you take,
 Your lyfe were at an ende.
 If that I come not to morowe, brother,
 By pryme to you agayne,
 Truste not els but that I am take,      35
 Or else that I am slayne.
 He toke hys leaue of hys brethren two,
 And to Carlel he is gon,
 There he knocked at hys owne windowe,
 Shortlye and anone.      40

V. 18. And that.

Where be you, fayre Alyce my wyfe?
 And my chyldren three?
 Lyghtly let in thyne owne husbände,
 Wyllyam of Cloudesle.
 Alas! then fayde fayre Alyce, 45
 And fyghed wonderous fore,
 Thys place hath ben besette for you,
 Thys half yere and more.
 Now am I here, fayde Cloudesle,
 I woulde that I in were;— 50
 Now feche us meate and drynke ynoughe,
 And let us make good chere.
 She fetched hym meat and drynke plenty,
 Lyke a true wedded wyfe,
 And pleased hym wyth that she had, 55
 Whome she loued as her lyfe.
 There lay an old wyfe in that place,
 A lytle besyde the fyre,
 Whych Wyllyam had found of cherytye
 More then seuen yere; 60
 Up she rose and walked full styll,
 Euel mote she spede therefoore,
 For she had not set no fote on ground
 In seuen yere before.
 She went vnto the justice hall, 65
 As fast as she could hye;
 Thys nyght is come vnto this town
 Wyllyam of Cloudesle.

Thereof the iustice was full fayne,
 And so was the shirife also ; 70
 Thou shalt not trauaile hether, dame, for nought,
 Thy meed thou shalt haue or thou go.
 They gaue to her a ryght good goune,
 Of scarlat it was as I heard ' sayne,'
 She toke the gyft and home she wente, 75
 And couched her downe agayne.
 They ryfed the towne of mery Carlel,
 In all the hast that they can,
 And came thronging to Wyllyames house,
 As fast as they myght gone. 80
 Theyr they besette that good yeman,
 Round about on euery syde,
 Wyllyam hearde great noyse of folkes,
 That heyther ward they hyed.
 Alyce opened a ' shot' wyndow, 85
 And loked all about,
 She was ware of the iustice and shirife bothe,
 Wyth a full great route.
 Alas ! treason ! cry'd Aleyce,
 Euer wo may thou be ! 90
 ' Go' into my chambre, my husband, she sayd,
 Swete Wyllyam of Cloudesle.

V. 91. Gy.

He toke hys sweard and hys bucler,
 Hys bow and hy[s] chyldren thre,
 And wente into hys strongest chamber, 95
 Where he thought surest to be.
 Fayre Alice folowed him as a lover true,
 With a pollaxe in her hande ;
 He shal be dead that here cometh in
 Thys dore whyle I may stand. 100
 Cloudeffe bent a wel good bowe,
 That was of trusty tre,
 He smot the justife on the brest,
 That hys arrowe brest in thre.
 Gods curse on his hartt, faide William, 105
 Thys day thy cote dyd on,
 If it had ben no better then myne,
 It had gone nere thy bone.
 Yelde the Cloudeffe, sayd the justife,
 And thy bowe and thy arrowes the fro. 110
 Gods curse on hys hart, sayde fair Alce,
 That my husband councelleth so.
 Set fyre on the house, faide the sherife,
 Syth it wyll no better be,
 And brenne we therin William, he faide, 115
 Hys wyfe and chyldren thre.
 They fyred the house in many a place,
 The fyre flew vp on hye ;
 Alas ! then cryed fayr Alice,
 I fe we here shall dy. 120

William openyd hys backe wyndow,
 That was in hys chambre on hye,
 And wyth shetes let hys wyfe downe,
 And hys chyldren thre.
 Have here my treasure, fayde William, 125
 My wyfe and my chyldren thre,
 For Christes loue do them no harme,
 But wreke you all on me.
 Wyllyam shot so wonderous well,
 Tyll hys arrowes were all gon, 130
 And the fyre so fast vpon hym fell,
 That hys bowstryng brent in two.
 The spercles brent and fell hym on,
 Good Wyllyam of Cloudefle!
 But than wax he a wofull man, 135
 And fayde, thys is a cowardes death to me.
 Leuer I had, fayde Wyllyam,
 With my sworde in the route to renne,
 Then here among myne ennemyes wode,
 Thus cruelly to bren. 140
 He toke hys sweard and hys buckler,
 And among them all he ran,
 Where the people were most in prece,
 He smot downe many a man.
 There myght no man stand hys stroke, 145
 So ferly on them he ran;
 Then they threw wyndowes and dores on him,
 And so toke that good yeman.

V. 122. was on.

There they hym bounde both hand and fote,
 And in depe dongeon hym cast; 150
 Now, Cloudeſle, ſayd the hye juſtice,
 Thou ſhalt be hanged in haſt.
 One vow ſhal I make, ſayde the ſherife,
 A payre of new galowes ſhall I for the make,
 And the gates of Caerlel ſhal be ſhutte, 155
 There ſhall no man come in therat.
 Then ſhall not helpe Clim of the Cloughe,
 Nor yet ſhall Adam Bell,
 Though they came with a thouſand mo,
 Nor all the deuels in hell. 160
 Early in the mornyng the juſtice vprofe,
 To the gates firſt gan he gon,
 And commaundede to be ſhut full cloce
 Lightile everychone.
 Then went he to the market place, 165
 As faſt as he coulde hye,
 A payre of new gallous there dyd he vp ſet,
 Befyde the pyllory.
 A lytle boy ſtod them amonge,
 And asked what meanted that gallow tre; 170
 They ſayde, to hange a good yeaman,
 Called Wyllyam of Cloudeſle.
 That lytle boye was the towne ſwyne heard,
 And kept 'fayre' Alyce ſwyne,
 Oft he had ſeene Cloudeſle in the wodde, 175
 And geuen hym there to dyne.

V. 174. there.

He went out att a creues in the wall,
 And lightly to the wood dyd gone,
 There met he with these wight yonge men,
 Shortly and anone. 180

Alas! then fayde that lytle boye,
 Ye tary here all to longe;
 Cloudefle is taken and dampned to death,
 All readye for to honge.

Alas! then fayde good Adam Bell, 185
 That ever we see thys daye!

He myght her with vs have dwelled,
 So ofte as we dyd him praye!
 He myght have taryed in grene foreste,
 Under the shadowes sheene, 190

And have kepte both hym and vs in reaste,
 Out of trouble and teene!

Adam bent a ryght good bow,
 A great hart fone had he slayne,
 Take that, chylde, he fayde to thy dynner, 195
 And bryng me myne arrowe agayne.

Now go we hence, fayed these wight yong men,
 Tary we no lenger here;

We shall hym borowe, by gods grace,
 Though we bye it full dere. 200

To Caerlel went these good yemen,
 On a mery mornyng of Maye.

Here is a fyt of Cloudefli,
 And another is for to faye.

V. 201. Cyerlel.

[ THE SECOND FIT. ]

AND when they came to mery Caerlell,
 In a fayre mornyng tyde, 206
 They founde the gates shut them vntyll,
 Round about on euery fyde.
 Alas! than sayd good Adam Bell,
 That euer we were made men! 210
 These gates be shut so wonderous wel,
 That we may not come here in.
 Then spake him Clym of the Clough,
 Wyth a wyle we wyl vs in bryng;
 Let vs faye we be messengers, 215
 Streight come nowe from our king.
 Adam said, I haue a letter written wel,
 Now let us wyfely werke,
 We wyl faye we haue the kinges seales,
 I holde the portter no clerke. 220
 Then Adam Bell bete on the gate,
 With strokes great and strong,
 The porter herde sliche noyse therat,
 And to the gate he throng.
 Who is there nowe, sayde the porter, 225
 That maketh all thys knocking?
 We be tow messengers, sayde Clim of the Clough,
 Be come ryght from our kyng.

We haue a letter, sayd Adam Bel,
 To the iustice we must it bryng; 230
 Let vs in our messag to do,
 That we were agayne to our kyng.
 Here commeth none in, sayd the porter,
 Be hym that dyed vpon a tre,
 Tyll a false thefe be hanged, 235
 Called Wyllyam of Cloudesle.
 Then spake the good yeman Clym of the Clough,
 And swore by Mary fre,
 And if that we stande longe wythout,
 Lyke a thefe hanged shalt thou be. 240
 Lo here we haue the kynges seale;
 What! lordeyne, art thou wode?
 The porter went it had ben so,
 And lyghtly dyd of hys hode.
 Welcome be my lordes seale, he saide, 245
 For that ye shall come in.
 He opened the gate full shortlye,
 An euyl opening for him.
 Now are we in, sayde Adam Bell,
 Thereof we are full faine, 250
 But Christ know[s], that harowed hell,
 How we shall com out agayne.
 Had we the keys, said Clim of the Clough,
 Ryght wel then shoulde we spede;
 Then might we come out wel ynough, 255
 When we se tyme and nede.

V. 230. me.

V. 254. shaulde.

They called the porter to counsell,
 And wrange hys necke in two,
 And caste him in a depe dongeon,
 And toke hys keys hym fro. 260
 Now am I porter, sayde Adam Bel,
 Se brother the keys haue we here,
 The worst porter to merry Caerlel,
 That ye had thys hundred yere :
 And now wyll we our bowes bend, 265
 Into the towne wyll we go,
 For to delyuer our dere brother,
 That lyueth in care and wo.
 They bent theyr bowes,
 And loked theyr stringes were round, 270
 The market place in mery Caerlel,
 They beset that stound ;
 And as they loked them besyde,
 A paire of new galowes ther thei see,
 And the justice with a queft of squyers, 275
 That had judged Cloudesle there hanged to be :
 And Cloudesle hymselfe lay redy in a carte,
 Fast both fote and hand,
 And a stronge rop about hys necke,
 All ready for to hange. 280
 The justice called to him a ladde,
 Cloudesle clothes should he haue,
 To take the meafure of that yeman,
 And therafter to make hys graue.

V. 275. they.

I have seen as great a mearveile, said Cloudeſſe,
 As betwyene thys and pryme,
 He that maketh thys graue for me,
 Himſelfe may lye therin.
 Thou ſpeakeſt proudli, ſaide the juſtice,
 I ſhall the hange with my hande : 290
 Full wel herd hys brethren two,
 There ſtyll as they dyd ſtande.
 Then Cloudeſſe caſt hys eyen aſyde,
 And ſaw hys to brethren,
 At a corner of the market place, 295
 With theyr good bows bent in ther hand,
 Redy the juſtice for to chaunce.
 I ſe comfort, ſayd Cloudeſſe,
 Yet hope I well to fare ;
 If I might haue my handes at wyll,
 Ryght lytle wolde I care. 300
 Then ſpake good Adam Bell,
 To Clym of the Clough ſo free,
 Brother, ſe ye marke the juſtyce wel,
 Lo yonder ye may him ſee ;
 And at the ſhyr[i]ſe ſhote I wyll, 305
 Strongly with arrowe kene,
 A better ſhote in mery Caerlel
 Thys ſeuen yere was not ſene.

V. 293. Cloudeſſe.

V. 294. brethen.

V. 295. marked.

V. 298. will.

They lowfed 'their' arrowes both at once,
 Of no man had 'they' dread, 310
 The one hyt the justice, the other the sheryfe,
 That both theyr 'sides' gan blede.
 All men voyded that them stode nye,
 When the justice fell downe to the grounde,
 And the sherife fell nyghe hym by, 315
 Eyther had his deathes wounde.
 All the citezens fast gan flye,
 They durst no longer abyde,
 They lyghtly 'then' lousfed Cloudeste,
 Where he with ropes lay tyde. 320
 Wyllyam sterte to an officer of the towne,
 Hys axe out of hys hande he wronge,
 On eche syde he smote them downe,
 Hym thought he taryed all to long.
 Wyllyam sayde to hys brethren two, 325
 Thys daye let us lyue and dye,
 If euer you have nede as I haue now,
 The fame shall you fynde by me.
 They shot so well in that tyde,
 For theyr stringes were of silke ful sure, 330
 That they kept the stretes on euery 'side!'
 That batayle dyd longe endure.
 The[y] fought together as brethren tru,
 Lyke hardy men and bolde,
 Many a man to the ground they thrue, 335
 And many a herte made colde.

V. 309. thre. V. 312. fedes. V. 319. they.

V. 325. brethen. V. 331. fede. V. 336. made many a herte.

But when their arrowes were all gon,
 Men preced to them full fast,
 They drew theyr swordes then anone,
 And theyr bowes from them cast. 340
 They went lyghtlye on theyr way,
 Wyth swordes and buclers round,
 By that it 'was' myd of the day,
 They made mani a wound.
 There was an out horne in Caerlel blowen, 345
 And the belles bacward did ryng;
 Many a woman fayd alas!
 And many theyr handes dyd wryng.
 The mayre of Caerlel forth com was,
 And with hym a ful great route, 350
 These yemen dred him full fore,
 For of theyr lyues they stode in great doute.
 The mayre came armed a full great pace,
 With a pollaxe in hys hande,
 Many a strong man wyth him was, 355
 There in that stowre to stande.
 The mayre smot at Cloudlesle with his bil,
 Hys bucler he brust in two,
 Full many a yeman with great cuyll,
 Alas! treason! they cryed for wo. 360
 Kepe we the gates fast they bad,
 That these traytours thereout not go.
 But al for nought was that the[y] wrought,
 For 'so' fast they downe were layde,

Tyll they all thre, that so manfulli fought, 365
 Were gotten without abraide.
 Hauc here your keys, fayd Adam Bel,
 Myne off[i]ce I here forsake,
 Yf you do by my counsell,
 A new porter do 'ye' make. 370
 He threw theyr keys at theyr heads,
 And bad them euell to thryue,
 And all that letteth any good yeman
 To come and comfort hys wyfe.
 Thus be these good yemen gon to the wod, 375
 And lyghtly as 'lefe' on lynde,
 The[y] lough an[d] be mery in theyr mode,
 Theyr ennemyes were fer[r]e behynd.
 When they came to Englyshe wode,
 Under the trusty tre, 380
 They found bowes full good,
 And arrowes full great plentye.
 So god me help, f[a]yd Adam Bell,
 And Clym of the Clough so fre,
 I would we were in mery Caerlel, 385
 Before that fayre meyny.
 They fet them downe and made good chere,
 And eate and drynke full well.
 Here is a fet of these wyght yong men,
 An other I wyll you tell. 390

[ THE THIRD FIT. ]

AS they sat in Englyshe wood
 Under theyr trusty tre,
 They thought they herd a woman wepe,
 But her they mought not fe.
 Sore then fyghed the fayre Alyce, 395
 And sayde, alas! that euer I sawe thys daye!
 For now is my dere husband slayne,
 Alas! and wel a way!
 Myght I have spoken wyth hys dere brethren,
 Or with eyther of them twayne, 400
 [To let them know what him befell]
 My hart were put out of payne!
 Cloudeffe walked a lytle besyde,
 And loked vnder the grenewood linde,
 He was ware of hys wife and chyldren thre, 405
 Full wo in hart and mynde.
 Welcome wife, then sayde Wyllyam,
 Under 'this' trusty tre;
 I had wende yesterday, by swete saynt John,
 Thou shulde me never 'have' fe. 410

V. 393. thought.

V. 399. brethen:

V. 401. supplied from a modern edition.

V. 408. thus.

V. 410. had.

Now well is me, she sayde, that ye be here,
 My hart is out of wo.
 Dame, he sayde, be mery and glad,
 And thanke my brethren two.
 Hereof to speake, sayd Adam Bell, 415
 I wis it is no bote ;
 The meat that we must supp withall
 It runneth yet fast on fote.
 Then went they down into a launde,
 These noble archares all thre, 420
 Eche of them slew a hart of greece,
 The best they could there fe.
 Haue here the best, Al[y]ce my wyfe,
 Sayde Wyllyam of Cloudefle,
 By cause ye so bouldly stod by me, 425
 When I was slayne full nye.
 Then went they to supper,
 Wyth fuche meat as they had,
 And thanked god of ther fortune,
 They were both mery and glad. 430
 And when they had supped well,
 Certayne without any leace,
 Cloudefle sayd, we wyll to our kyng,
 To get vs a charter of peace ;
 Alce shal be at our soiournyng, 435
 In a nunry here besyde,
 My tow sonnes shall wyth her go,
 And ther they shall abyde :

V. 414. brethen.    V. 421. grace.    V. 427. whent.

Myne eldest son shall go wyth me,
 For hym haue I no care, 440
 And he shall you breng worde agayn
 How that we do fare.
 Thus be these yemen to London gone,
 As fast as they might hye,
 Tyll they came to the kynges pallace, 445
 Where they woulde nedes be.
 And whan they came to the kynges courte,
 Unto the pallace gate,
 Of no man wold they aske no leave,
 But boldly went in therat; 450
 They preceid prestly into the hall,
 Of no man had they dreade,
 The porter came after and dyd them call,
 And with them began to chyde.
 The ussher fayed, yemen, what wold ye haue? 455
 I pray you tell me;
 You myght thus make offycers shent:
 Good fyrs of whence be ye?
 Syr we be out lawes of the forest,
 Certayne without any leace, 460
 And hether we be come to our kyng,
 To get vs a charter of peace.
 And whan they came before the kyng,
 As it was the lawe of the lande,
 The[y] kneled downe without lettyng, 465
 And eche helde vp his hand.

The[y] fayed, lord we besече the here,
 That ye wyll graunt vs grace,
 For we haue flaine your fat falow der,
 In many a sondry place. 470
 What be your nam[es]? than said our king,
 Anone that you tell me.
 They sayd, Adam Bel, Clim of the Clough,
 And Wyllyam of Cloudefle.
 Be ye thofe theues, then sayd our kyng, 475
 That men haue tolde of to me?
 Here to god I make a vowe,
 Ye shal be hanged al thre;
 Ye shal be dead without mercy,
 As I am kynge of this lande. 480
 He commanded his officers everichone
 Fast on them to lay hand.
 There they toke these good yemen,
 And arested them all thre.
 So may I thryue, sayd Adam Bell, 485
 Thys game lyketh not me.
 But, good lorde, we besече you now,
 That you graunt vs grace,
 Infomuche as we be to you comen,
 Or els that we may fro you passe, 490
 With fuche weapons as we haue here,
 Tyll we be out of your place;
 And yf we lyue this hundreth yere,
 We wyll aske you no grace.

Ye speake proudly, sayd the kynge, 495
 Ye shal be hanged all thre.
 That were great pitye, then sayd the quene,
 If any grace myght be.
 My lorde, when I came fyrst into this lande,
 To be your wedded wyfe, 500
 The fyrst bowne that I wold aske,
 Ye would graunt it me belyfe;
 And I asked neuer none tyll now,
 Therefore, good lorde, graunt it me.
 Now aske it, madam, sayd the kynge, 505
 And graunted shall it be.
 Then, good my lord, I you befeche,
 These yemen graunt ye me.
 Madame, ye myght have asked a bowne,
 That shuld have ben worth them all three: 510
 Ye myght have asked towres and towne[s],
 Parkes and forestes plenty.
 None soe pleasaunt to mi pay, she said,
 Nor none so lefe to me.
 Madame, sith it is your desyre, 515
 Your askyng graunted shal be;
 But I had leuer have geuen you
 Good market townes thre.
 The quene was a glad woman,
 And sayd, lord, gramarcy, 520
 I dare undertake for them
 That true men shal they be.

But, good lord, speke fom mery word,
 That comfort they may se.
 I graunt you grace, then said our king, 525
 Wafshe, felos, and to meate go ye.
 They had not fetten but a whyle,
 Certayne without lesyng,
 There came messengers out of the north,
 With letters to our kyng. 530
 And whan the came before the kyng,
 They kneled downe vpon theyr kne,
 And sayd, lord, your offycers grete you wel,
 Of Caerlel in the north cuntre.
 How fare my justice, sayd the kyng, 535
 And my sherife also?
 Syr, they be slayne, without leafyng,
 And many an officer mo.
 Who hath them slayne? sayd the kyng,
 Anone thou tell me. 540
 Adam Bel, and Clime of the Clough,
 And Wyllyam of Cloudefle.
 Alas! for rewth! then sayd our kyng,
 My hart is wonderous fore,
 I had leuer [th]an a thousand ponde, 545
 I had knowne of thys before;
 For I have graunted them grace,
 And that forthynketh me,
 But had I knowne all thys before,
 They had been hanged all thre. 550

The kyng opened the letter anone,
 Hymfelfe he red it tho,
 And founde how these thre outlawes had slaine
 Thre hundred men and mo ;
 Fyrst the justice and the sheryfe, 555
 And the mayre of Caerlel towne,
 Of all the constables and catchipolles
 Alyue were left not one ;
 The baylyes and the bedyls both,
 And the sergeauntes of the law, 560
 And forty fosters of the fe,
 These outlawes had yslaw ;
 And broke his parks, and slaine his dere,
 Ouer all they chose the best,
 So perelous out lawes as they were, 565
 Walked not by east nor west.
 When the kyng this letter had red,
 In hys harte he fyghed fore,
 Take vp the table anone he bad,
 For I may eate no more. 570
 The kyng called hys best archars,
 To the buttes wyth hym to go ;
 I wyll fe these felowes shote, he sayd,
 In the north haue wrought this wo.
 The kynges bowmen buske them blyue, 575
 And the quenes archers also,
 So dyd these thre wyght yemen,
 With them they thought to go.

There twyse or thryse they shote about,
 For to assay theyr hande, 580
 There was no shote these yemen shot,
 That any prycke myght them stand.
 Then spake Wylliam of Cloudesle,
 By him that for me dyed,
 I hold hym neuer no good archar 585
 That shuteth at buttes so wyde.
 Wherat? then sayd our kyng,
 I pray thee tell me.
 At suche a but, fyr, he sayd,
 As men vse in my countree. 590
 Wylliam went into a fyeld,
 And his to brethren with him,
 There they set vp to hafell roddes,
 Twenty score paces betwene.
 I hold him an archar, said Cloudesle, 595
 That yonder wande cleueth in two.
 Here is none suche, sayd the kyng,
 Nor none that can so do.
 I shall assaye, fyr, sayd Cloudesle,
 Or that I farther go. 600
 Cloudesly, with a bearyng arow,
 Claue the wand in to.
 Thou art the best archer, then said the king,
 Forsothe that euer I se.
 And yet for your loue, sayd Wylliam, 605
 I wyll do more maystry :

V. 587. At what a butte now wold ye shot. Reliques.

I haue a sonne is feuen yere olde,
 He is to me full deare,
 I wyll hym tye to a stake,
 All shall se that be here, 610
 And lay an apele vpon hys head,
 And go fyxe score paces hym fro,
 And I myselfe, with a brode arow,
 Shall cleue the apple in two.
 Now haste the, then sayd the kyng, 615
 By him that dyed on a tre,
 But yf thou do not as thou ' hast' sayde,
 Hanged shalt thou be.
 And thou touche his head or gowne,
 In fyght that men may se, 620
 By all the fayntes that be in heaven,
 I shall hange you all thre.
 That I haue promised, said William,
 I wyl it neuer forsake,
 And there euen before the kyng, 625
 In the earth he droue a stake,
 And bound therto his eldest sonne,
 And bad hym stande styll therat,
 And turned the childes face fro him,
 Because he shuld not sterte; 630
 An apple vpon his head he fet,
 And then his bowe he bent,
 Syxe score paces they were out met,
 And thether Cloudele went;

There he drew out a fayr brode arrowe, 635
 Hys bowe was great and longe,
 He fet that arrowe in his bowe,
 That was both styffe and stronge ;
 He prayed the people that was there,
 That they would styll stande, 640
 For he that shooteth for such a wager,
 Behoueth a stedfast hand.
 Muche people prayed for Cloudesse,
 That hys lyfe faued myght be,
 And whan he made hym redy to shote, 645
 There was many a weping eye.
 Thus Cloudesse cleft the apple in two,
 That many a man myght se ;
 Ouer gods forbode, sayde the kinge,
 That thou shote at me ! 650
 I geve the xviii. pence a day,
 And my bowe shalt thou beare,
 And ouer all the north countre,
 I make the chyfe rydere.
 And I geve the xvii. pence a day, said the quene,
 By god and by my fay, 656
 Come feche thy payment when thou wylt,
 No man shall fay the nay.
 Wyllyam, I make the a gentelman,
 Of clothyng and of fe, 660
 And thi two brethren yemen of my chambre,
 For they are so semely to se ;

V. 648, Percy, instead of this line, reads
 His sonne he did not see.

Your sonne, for he is tendre of age,
 Of my wyne seller shall he be,
 And when he commeth to mannes estate, 665
 Better auauanced shall he be.
 And, Wylliam, bring me your wife, said the quene,
 Me longeth her fore to fe,
 She shal be my chiefe gentelwoman,
 To gouerne my nursery. 670
 The yemen thanketh them full curteously,
 And sayde, to some byshop wyl we wend,
 Of all the fynnes that we have done
 To be assoyld at his hand.
 So forth be gone these good yemen, 675
 As fast as they myght hye,
 And after came and dwelled wyth the kyng,
 And dyed good men all thre.
 Thus endeth the liues of these good yemen,
 God send them eternall blyffe! 680
 And all that with hande bowe shoteth,
 That of heauen may neuer mysse!

THE FRERE AND THE BOYE.

*This well-known tale is furnished, in its present dress, by a copy in the public library of the university of Cambridge, "Enprynted at London in Flete strete at the sygne of the sonne by Wynkyn de Worde;" compared with a later edition in the Bodleian library, "Imprinted at London at the long shop adioyning vnto Saint Mildreds Church in the Pultrie by Edwarde Alde;" both in quarto and black letter, and of singular rarity, no duplicate of either being known to exist*. There is, indeed, a very old, though at the same time a most vulgar and corrupted copy extant in the first of those libraries (MSS. More, Ec. 4. 35.) under the title of "The Cheylde and her step-dame," of which, besides that almost every line exhibits a various reading, the concluding stanzas are entirely different, and have, on that account, been thought worth preserving. But the most ancient copy of all would probably have been one in the Cotton library, if the volume which contained it had not unfortunately perished, with many things of greater importance, in the dreadful fire which happened in that noble repository, anno 1731. Vide Smiths Catalogue, Vitellius D. XII.*

* There was once a copy of one or other of the above editions, or some different impression, with divers other curious pieces, in the printed library of Anthony à Wood (No. 66); but the article, with others of the like nature, appears to have been clandestinely taken out.

From the mention made in v. 429 of the city of "Orlyannc," and the character of the "Offycyal," it may be conjectured that this poem is of French extraction; and, indeed, it is not at all improbable that the original is extant in some collection of old Fabliaux. A punishment similar to that of the good wife in this story appears to have been inflicted on the widow of a St. Gengulph, for presuming to question the reality of her husbands miracles. See Heywoods History of Women, p. 196.

The cut prefixed is an exact copy of one in the title of the most ancient edition, which, the present editor has a melancholy pleasure in reflecting, was traced for this purpose by his learned, ingenious, and valuable friend, the late John Baynes esquire.

His fader loued hym wele,
 So dyde his moder neuer a dele,
 I tell you as I thinke ; 15
 All she thought was lost, by the rode,
 That dyde the lytell boye ony good,
 Other mete or drynke.
 And yet y wys it was but badde,
 And therof not halfe ynough he had, 20
 But euermore of the worste :
 Therefore euyll mote she fare,
 For euer she dyde the lytell boye care,
 As ferforth as she dorste.
 The good wyfe to her husbonde gan faye, 25
 I wolde ye wolde put this boye awaye,
 And that ryght soone in haste ;
 Truly he is a curfed ladde,
 I wolde some other man hym had,
 That wolde hym better chaste. 30
 Then sayd the good man agayne,
 Dame, I shall to the fayne,
 He is but tender of age ;
 He shall abyde with me this yere,
 Tyll he be more strongere, 35
 For to wynne better wage.
 We haue a man, a stoute freke,
 That in the felde kepeth our nete,
 Slepynge all the daye,
 He shall come home, so god me shelde, 40
 And the boye shall into the felde,
 To kepe our beestes yf he may.

Than sayd the wyfe, verament,
 Therto soone I assent,
 For that me thynketh moost nedy. 45
 On the morowe whan it was daye,
 The lytell boye wente on his waye,
 To the felde full redy ;
 Of no man he had no care,
 But fung, hey howe, awaye the mare,* 50
 And made ioye ynough ;
 Forth he wente, truly to sayne,
 Tyll he came to the playne,
 Hys dyner forth he drough :
 Whan he sawe it was but bad, 55
 Ful lytell lust therto he had,
 But put it vp agayne ;
 Therefore he was not to wyte,
 He sayd he wolde ete but lyte,
 Tyll nyght that he home came. 60
 And as the boye fate on a hyll,
 An olde man came hym tyll,
 Walkynge by the waye ;
 Sone, he sayde, god the se.
 Syr, welcome mote ye be, 65
 The lytell boye gan saye.

* This seems to have been the beginning or title of some old ballad. Maystres Jyll of Brentford takes notice of it in her "Testament." 4to. b. l.

"Ah syrre, mary a way the mare."

V. 60. came home. De W.

The olde man sayd, I am an hongred fore,
 Haft thou ony mete in store,
 That thou mayst gyue me?
 The chyld sayd, so god me faue, 70
 To such vytayle as I haue
 Welcome shall ye be.
 Therof the olde man was gladde,
 The boye drewe forth suche as he had,
 And sayd, do gladly. 75
 The olde man was easy to please,
 He ete and made hym well at ease,
 And sayd, sone, gramercy.
 Sone, thou haste gyuen mete to me,
 I shall the gyue thynges thre, 80
 Thou shalt them neuer forgete.
 Than sayd the boye, as I trowe,
 It is best that I haue a bowe,
 Byrdes for to 'shete.'
 A bowe, sone, I shall the gyue, 85
 That shall last the all thy lyue,
 And euer a lyke mete,
 Shote therin when thou good thynke,
 For yf thou shote and wynke,
 The prycke thou shalt hytte. 90
 Whan he the bowe in honde felte,
 And the boltes vnder his belte,
 Lowde than he lough;

V. 84. shote. De W. shoote. A.

He fayd, now had I a pype,
 Though it were neuer so lyte, 95
 Than were I gladde ynough.
 A pype, fone, thou shalte haue also,
 In true musyke it shall go,
 I put thee out of doubt ;
 All that may the pype here 100
 Shall not themselfe stere,
 But laugh and lepe aboute.
 What shall the thyrde be ?
 For I wyll gyue the gyftes three,
 As I haue fayd before. 105
 The lytell boye on hym lough,
 And fayd, fyr, I haue ynough,
 I wyll desyre no more.
 The olde man fayd, my trouth I plyght,
 Thou shalte haue that I the hyght ; 110
 Say on now and let me se.
 Than fayd the boye anone,
 I haue a stepdame at home,
 She is a shrewe to me :
 Whan my fader gyueth me mete, 115
 She wolde theron that I were cheke,
 And stareth me in the face ;
 Whan she loketh on me so,
 I wolde she sholde let a rappe go,
 That it myght rynge ouer all the place. 120

V. 99. I do the well to wyte. De W.

V. 105. to the before. Idem.

Than sayd the olde man tho,
 Whan she loketh on the fo
 She shall begyn to blowe ;
 All that euer it may here
 Shall not themselfe stere, 125
 But laugh on a rowe.
 Farewell, quod the olde man.
 God kepe the, sayd the chyld than,
 I take my leue at the ;
 God, that moost best may, 130
 Kepe the bothe nyght and day.
 Gramercy, sone, sayd he.
 Than drewe it towarde the nyght,
 Iacke hym hyed home full ryght,
 It was his ordynaunce ; 135
 He toke his pype and began to blowe,
 All his beestes on a rowe,
 Aboute hym they can daunce.
 Thus wente he pypynge thurgh the towne,
 His beestes hym folowed by the fowne, 140
 Into his faders clofe ;
 He wente and put them vp echone,
 Homewarde he wente anone,
 Into his faders hall he gofe.
 His fader at his souper sat, 145
 Lytell Iacke espyed well that,
 And sayd to hym anone,
 Fader, I haue kepte your nete,
 I praye you gyue me some mete,
 I am an hongred, by Saynt Ihone : 150

I have sytten meteleffe
 All this daye keypyng your beestes,
 My dyner feble it was.
 His fader toke a capons wyng,
 And at the boye he gan it flynge, 155
 And badde hym ete apace.
 That greued his stepmoders herte fore,
 As I tolde you before,
 She stared hym in the face,
 With that she let go a blaste, 160
 That they in the hall were agaste,
 It range ouer all the place.
 All they laughed and had good game,
 The wyfe waxed red for shame,
 She wolde that she had ben gone. 165
 Quod the boye, well I wote,
 That gonne was well shote,
 As it had ben a stone.
 Curfedly she loked on hym tho,
 Another blaste she let go, 170
 She was almoost rente.
 Quod the boye, wyll ye se
 How my dame letteth pelletes fle,
 In fayth or euer she flynte?
 The boye sayde vnto his dame, 175
 Tempre thy bombe, he sayd, for shame:
 She was full of forowe.
 Dame, sayd the good man, go thy waye,
 For I swere to the by my faye,
 Thy gere is not to borowe. 180

Afterwarde as ye shall here,
 To the hous there came a frere,
 To lye there all nyght ;
 The wyfe loued him as a faynt,
 And to hym made her complaynt, 185
 And tolde hym all aryght :
 Wee haue a boye within ywys,
 A shrewe for the nones he is,
 He dooth me moche care ;
 I dare not loke hym vpon, 190
 I am afhamed, by Saynt Iohn,
 To tell you how I fare :
 I praye you mete the boy tomorowe,
 Bete hym well and gyue hym forowe,
 And make the boye lame. 195
 Quod the frere, I shall hym bete.
 Quod the wyfe, do not forgete,
 He dooth me moche shame :
 I trowe the boye be some wytche.
 Quod the frere, I shall hym teche, 200
 Haue thou no care ;
 I shall hym teche yf I may.
 Quod the wyfe, I the praye,
 Do hym not spare.
 On the morowe the boye arose, 205
 Into the felde soone he gose,
 His beeftes for to dryue ;

V. 186. So A. and MS. all omitted in De W.

The frere ranne out at the gate,
 He was a ferde leest he came to late,
 He ranne fast and blyue. 210
 Whan he came vpon the londe,
 Lytell Iacke there he fonde,
 Dryuyng his beestes all alone ;
 Boye, he sayd, god gyue the shame,
 What hast thou done to thy dame ? 215
 Tell thou me anone :
 But yf thou canst excuse the well,
 By my trouth bete the I wyll,
 I wyll no lenger abyde.
 Quod the boye, what eyleth the ? 220
 My dame fareth as well as ye,
 What nedeth ye to chyde ?
 Quod the boye, wyll ye wete
 How I can a byrde shete,
 And other thyng withall ? 225
 Syr, he sayd, though I be lyte,
 Yonder byrde wyll I smyte,
 And gyue her the I shall.
 There fate a byrde vpon a brere,
 Shote on boy, quod the frere, 230
 For that me lysteth to se.
 He hytte the byrde on the heed,
 That she fell downe deed,
 No ferder myght she flee.

V. 211. So A, and MS. a londe. De W.

The frere to the bushe wente, 235
 Vp the byrde for to hente,
 He thought it best for to done.
 Iacke toke his pype and began to blowe,
 Then the frere, as I trowe,
 Began to daunce soone; 240
 As soone as he the pype herd,
 Lyke a wood man he fared,
 He lepte and daunced aboute;
 The breres scratched hym in the face,
 And in many an other place, 245
 That the blode braft out;
 And tare his clothes by and by,
 His cope and his scapulary,
 And all his other wede.
 He daunced amonge thornes thycke, 250
 In many places they dyde hym prycke,
 That fast gan he blede.
 Iacke pyped and laughed amonge,
 The frere amonge the thornes was thronge,
 He hopped wonders hye; 255
 At the last he held vp his honde,
 And sayd I haue daunced so longe,
 That I am lyke to dye;

F. 255. A hoppyd wonderley hey;
 The boy seyde, and lowhe with all,
 Thes ys a sport reyall,
 For a lord to fe. MS. Merc.

Gentyll lacke, holde thy pype styll,
 And my trowth I plyght the tyll, 260
 I will do the no woo.
 Lacke sayd, in that tide,
 Frere skippe out on the ferder fyde,
 Lyghtly that thou were goo.
 The frere out of the bushe wente, 265
 All to ragged and to rente,
 And torne on euery fyde ;
 Unnethes on hym he had one cloute,
 His bely for to wrappe aboute ;
 His harneys for to hyde. 270
 The breres had hym scratched so in the face,
 And [in] many an other place,
 He was all to bledde with blode ;
 All that myght the frere se,
 Were fayne awaye to flee, 275
 They wende he had ben wode.
 Whan he came to his hooft,
 Of his iourney he made no booft,
 His clothes were rente all ;
 Moche sorowe in his herte he had, 280
 And euery man hym dradde,
 Whan he came in to the hall.
 The wyfe sayd, where hast thou bene ?
 In an euyll place I wene,
 Me thynketh by thyn araye. 285
 Dame, I haue ben with thy sone,
 The deuyll of hell hym ouercome,
 For no man elles may.

With that came in the good man, 290
 The wife sayd to hym than,
 Here is a foule araye ;
 Thy sone that is the lefe and dere,
 Hath almoost slayne this holy frere,
 Alas ! and welawaye ! 295
 The good man sayd, benedicite !
 What hath the boye done frere to the ?
 Tell me without lette.
 The frere sayd, the deuyll hym spede,
 He hath made me daunce, maugre my hede, 300
 Amonge the thornes, hey go bette.*
 The good man sayd to hym tho,
 Haddest thou lost thy lyfe so,
 It had ben grete fynne.
 The frere sayd, by our lady, 305
 The pype went so meryly,
 That I coude neuer blynne.
 Whan it drewe towarde the nyght,
 The boye came home full ryght,
 As he was wont to do ; 310
 Whan he came into the hall,
 Soone his fader gan hym call,
 And badde hym to come hym to.

* The name, it is probable, of some old dance. To "dance hey go mad" is still a common expression in the North.

V. 312. His fader dyde hym soone call. De W.

Boye, he sayd, tell me here,
 What hast thou done to the frere? 315
 Tell me without lesyng.
 Fader, he sayd, by my faye,
 I dyde nought elles, as I you faye,
 But pyped him a spryng.
 That pype, sayd his fader, wolde I here. 320
 Mary, god forbede! sayd the frere;
 His handes he dyde wryng.
 Yes, sayd the good man, by goddes grace.
 Then, sayd the frere, out alas!
 And made grete mournyng. 325
 For the loue of god, quod the frere,
 If ye wyll that pype here,
 Bynde me to a post;
 For I knowe none other rede,
 And I daunce I am but deed, 330
 Well I wote my lyfe is lost.
 Stronge ropes they toke in honde,
 The frere to the poste they bonde,
 In the myddle of the halle;
 All that at the souper sat 325
 Laughed and had good game therat,
 And said the frere wolde not fall.
 Than sayd the good man,
 Pype sonne, as thou can,
 Hardely whan thou wylle. 340

V. 327. that he pype. De W.

V. 339. Pype on good sone. Idem.

Fader, he fayd, so mote I the,
 Haue ye shall ynough of gle,
 Tyll ye bydde me be styll.
 As soon as Iacke the pype hent,
 All that there were verament, 345
 Began to daunce and lepe ;
 Whan they gan the pype here,
 They myght not themselfe stere,
 But hurled on an hepe.
 The good man was in no dyspayre, 350
 But lyghtly lepte out of his chayre,
 All with a good chere ;
 Some lepte ouer the stocke,
 Some stombled at the blocke,
 And some fell flatte in the fyre. 355
 The good man had grete game,
 How they daunced all in fame ;
 The good wyfe after gan steppe,
 Euermore she kest her eye at Iacke,
 And fast her tayle began to cracke, 360
 Lowder than they coude speke.
 The frere hymselfe was almost lost,
 For knockynge his heed ayenst the post,
 He had none other grace ;
 The rope rubbed hym vnder the chynne, 365
 That the blode downe dyde rynne,
 In many a dyuers place.

Iacke ranne into the strete,
 After hym fast dyde they lepe,
 Truly they coude not stynte ; 370
 They wente out at the dore so thycke,
 That eche man fell on others necke,
 So pretely out they wente.
 Neyghbours that were fast by,
 Herde the pype go so meryly, 375
 They ranne into the gate ;
 Some lepte ouer the hatche,
 They had no time to drawe the latche,
 They wende they had come to late.
 Some laye in theyr bedde, 380
 And helde vp theyr hede,
 Anone they were waked ;
 Some sterte in the waye,
 Truly as I you saye,
 Stark bely naked. 385
 By that they were gadred aboute,
 I wys there was a grete route,
 Dauncynge in the strete ;
 Some were lame and myght not go,
 But yet ywys they daunced to, 390
 On handes and on fete.
 The boye sayd, now wyll I rest.
 Quod the good man, I holde it best,
 With a mery chere ;

V. 392. They. W.

D

Seafe, sone, whan thou wylte, 395
 In fayth this is the meryest fytt
 That I herde this seuen yere.
 They daunced all in fame,
 Some laughed and had good game,
 And some had many a fall. 400
 Thou curfed boye, quod the frere,
 Here I fomon the that thou appere
 Before the offycyall;
 Loke thou be there on Frydaye,
 I wyll the mete and I may, 405
 For to ordeyne the sorowe.
 The boye sayd, by god auowe,
 Frere, I am as redy as thou,
 And Frydaye were to morowe.
 Frydaye came as ye may here, 410
 Iackes stepdame and the frere
 Togeder there they mette;
 Folke gadered a grete pase,
 To here euery mannes case,
 The offycyall was sette. 415
 There was moche to do,
 Maters more than one or two,
 Both with preest and clerke;
 Some had testaments for to preue,
 And fayre women, by your leue, 420
 That had strokes in the derke.

V. 402, 403. Y som' the affor the comferrey. MS.

Euery man put forth his case,
 Then came forth frere Topyas,
 And Iackes stepdame also ;
 Syr offycyall, fayd he, 425
 I haue brought a boye to thee,
 Which hath wrought me moche wo ;
 He is a grete nygromancere,
 In all Orlyauunce is not his pere,
 As by my trouth I trowe. 430
 He is a wytche, quod the wyfe :
 Than, as I shall tell you blythe,
 Lowde coude she blowe.
 Some laughed without fayle,
 Some fayd, dame, tempre thy tayle, 435
 Ye wreste it all amyffe.
 Dame, quod the offycyall,
 Tel forth on thy tale,
 Lette not for this.
 The wyfe was afrayed of an other cracke, 440
 That no worde more she spacke,
 She durst not for drede.
 The frere fayd, so mote I the,
 Knaue, this is long of the
 That euyl mote thou spede. 445
 The frere fayd, syr offycyall,
 The boye wyll combre vs all,
 But yf ye may him chaste ;

V. 423. Than cam foret capias. MS. V. 432. blyue. A.

Syr, he hath a pype truly,
 Wyll make you daunce and lepe on hye, 450
 Tyll your herte brafte.
 The offycyall fayd, so mot I the,
 That pype wolde I fayne fe,
 And knowe what myrth that he can make.

V. 453, That pype well y fe,
 &c. He seyde, boy, hes het her?
 Ye fcer, be mey ffay,
 Anon pype ws a lay,
 And make vs all cher.
 The officiall the pype hent,
 And blow tell his brow hen bent,
 Bot therof cam no gle;
 The officiall seyde, thts ys nowth,
 Be god that me der bowthe,
 Het ys not worthe a sclo,
 Be mey fay, qod the freyr,
 The boy can make het pype cler,
 Y bescro hem for hes mede.
 The officiall bad the boy a fay.
 Nay, qod the freyr, er that a way,
 For that y for bede.
 Pype on, qod the officiall, and not spar,
 The freyr began to star,
 Jake hes pype hent,
 As sone as Gake began to blow,
 All they lepyd on a rowe,
 And ronde about they went.

Mary, god forbede, than fayd the frere, 455
 That he sholde pype here,
 Afore that I hens the waye take.
 Pype on, Iacke, fayd the offycyall,
 I wyll here now how thou canst playe.
 Iacke blewe vp, the sothe to faye, 460
 And made them soone to daunce all.

The officiall had so gret hast,
 That boyt hes schenys bras,
 A pon a blokys hende.
 The clerkys to dans they hem sped,
 And som all ther eynke sched,
 And som ther bekes rent,
 And som cast ther boky[s] at the wall,
 And som ouer ther felowys can fall,
 So weytley they lepyd.
 Ther was without let,
 They stombylled on a hepe,
 They danfed all a bowthe,
 And yever the freyr creyd owt,
 Y may no lengger dans for foyt,
 Y haffe lost halffe mey cod war,
 When y danfed yn the thornes.
 Som to crey they began,
 Mey boke ys all to toren ;
 Som creyd without let,
 And som bad hoo ;
 Som seyde het was a god game,
 And som seyde they wer lame,
 Y may no leynger skeppe ;

The offycyall lepte ouer the deske,
 And daunced aboute wonder faste,
 Tyll bothe his shynnes he all to brest,
 Hym thought it was not of the best, 465
 Than cryed he vnto the chylde,
 To pype no more within this place,
 But to holde styll for goddes grace,
 And for the loue of Mary mylde.

Som danfed so long,
 Tell they helde owt the townge,
 And a nethe meyt hepe.
 The officiaill began to star,
 And seyde, hafe for they heyr,
 Stent of they lay,
 And boldeley haske of me,
 What thou welt hafe for thy gle,
 Y schall the redey pay.
 Then to stend Jake began,
 The officiaill was a werrey man,
 Mey trowet y pleyt y the,
 This was a god gle,
 And seyde the worst that euer they se;
 For het was er neyth.
 Then bespake the officiaill,
 And leytley Gake can call,
 Hes pype he hem hent,
 And gaffe hem xx s.
 And euer mor hes blefyng,
 For that mercy fet.

Than sayd Iacke to them echone, 470
 If ye wolde me graunte with herte fre,
 That he shall do me no vylany,
 But hens to departe euen as I come.
 Therto they answered all anone,
 And promysed him anone ryght, 475
 In his quarell for to fyght,
 And defende hym from his sone,

When Gake had that money hent,
 Anon homard he went,
 Glad therof was he;
 He waxed a wordeley marchande,
 A man of gret degre.
 Hes stepdame, y dar say,
 Dorst neuer after that day,
 Nat wonley ones desplese.
 They lowyd togedyr all thre,
 Hes father, hes stepdame and he,
 Aftter yn gret eys.
 And that they ded, foyt to say,
 Tho hewyn they toke the way,
 Withowtyn ency mes.
 Now god that dyed for os all,
 And dranke ayfell and gall,
 Bryng them all to they bies,
 That beleuet on the name Jhc̄.

Thus they departed in that tyde,
The offycyall and the fompnere,
His stepdame and the frere,
With great ioye and moche pryde. 480

THE KING
THE BARKER.

The following equally rude and ancient piece is given from the manuscript volume in the public library, Cambridge, already described. It is the undoubted original of "the merry, pleasant, and delectable history between K. Edward the fourth and a tanner of Tamworth," reprinted by Dr. Percy; who ought, perhaps, to have informed his readers that the old copies contain a great many stanzas which he has, not injudiciously, suppressed.

Dantre is Daventry (vulgarly pronounced Daintry), in Warwickshire.

The writer of the manuscript should seem to have been some provincial rustic. In one place of the volume he enters the following saw, which appeared worth preserving, for the sake of its singularity.

Ther ys leythe reythe and meythe,
Meythe ouerfet reythe for the defawte of leythe,
Bot and reythe methe com to leythe,
Scholder neuer meythe ouerfet reythe.

WELL yow her a god borde to make yow
'all lawhe?'

How het fell apon a tyme, or eney man het know,
The kyng rod a hontyng as that tyme was,
For to hont a der y trow hes hope was.

As he rode he houertoke yn the wey 5

A tannar of Dantre yn a queynte a raye ;

Blake kow heydys fat he apon,

The hornys heyng befylde,

The kyng low and had god game,

To se the tannar reyde. 10

Howr kyng bad hes men abeyde,

And he welde sper of hem the wey ;

V. 1. lawhe all.

Yffe y may her eney new tythyng
 Y schall het to yow faye.
 Howr kyng prekyd, and feyde, ser, god the faffe. 15
 The tannar feyde, well mot yow far.
 God felow, feyde 'howr' kyng, off on thyng y the pray,
 To Drayton Bafet well y reyde, wyche ys the wey ?
 That can y tell the fro hens that y ftonde,
 When thow comest to the galow tre torne vpon the lyft honde. 20
 Gramercy, felow, feyde owr kyng, withowtyn eney
 'wone,'
 I schall prey they lord Bafet thanke the fone.
 God felow, feyde owr kyng, reyde thou with me,
 Tell y com to Drayton Bafet, now y het fe.
 Nay be 'mey feyt' feyde the barker thoo, 25
 Thow may fey y wer a sole and y dyd fo ;
 I haft yn mey wey as well as thow haft yn theyne,
 Reyde forthe and feke they wey, thi hors ys better nar meyne.
 The tanner feyde, what maner man ar ye ?
 A preker abowt, feyd the kyng, yn maney a contre. 30
 Than spake the thanner, foll scredeley ayen,
 Y had a brother vowfed the fame
 Tull he cowde never the.

V. 13. now.

V. 17. yowr.

V. 21. woyt.

V. 25. meyt.

Than 'howr' kyng smotley gan smeyle,
 Y prey the felow reyde with me a meyle. 35
 What devell, quod the tanner, art thou owt off they wet?

Y most hom to mey deyner, for I am fastyng yet.
 Good felow, seyde owr kyng, car the not for no
 mete,

Thou schalt haffe mete ynow to neyzt, and yeffe thou welt ette.

The tanner toke gret skorne of hem, 40

And swar be creyft ys pyne,

Y trow y hafe mor money in mey pors

Nar thou hast yn theyne :

Weneft thou y well be owt on neyzt? nay, and god be for,

Was y neuer owt a neyt fen y was bor. 45

The tanner lokyd a bake tho,

The heydes began to fall,

He was war of the keyngs men,

Wher they cam reydyng all.

Thes ys a theffe, thowt the tanner, 50

Y prey to god geffe hem car,

He well haffe mey hors,

Mey heydes, and all mey chaffar.

For feleyfchepe, seyde the tannar,

Yet wel y reyde with the ; 55

Y not war y methe with the afterward

Thow mast do as meche for me.

God a mar[fe], feyde owr kyng, without eny wone,
Y schall prey the lord Bafet to thanke the fone.

Owr keyng feyde, what new tydyng hereft as thou ryd? 60

I wolde fayne wet for thow reydest weyde.

Y know now teytheing, the thanner feyde, herke
and thou schalt here,

Off al the chaffar that y know kow heydys beyt der.

Owr keyng feyde, on theyng, as mey loffe y the prey,
What hereft fey be the lord Bafet yn thes contrey? 65

I know hem not, feyde the tanner, with hem y hafe lytyll to don,

Wolde he neuer bey of me clot lether to clowt ' his fchoyn.'

Howr kyng feyde, y loffe the well, of on thyng y
the praye,

Thow haft harde hes servants speke, what welde
they faye?

Ye for god, feyde the tanner, that tell y can, 70

Thay fey thay leke hem well, for he ys a god man.

Thos they reyde together talkyng, for foyt y yow tell,

Tull he met the lord Bafet, on kneys downe they fell.

Alas, the thanner thowt, the kyng y lone thes be,

Y schall be hongyd, well y wot, at men may me fe. 75

He had no meynde of hes hode, nor cape ner adell,

Al for drede off hes leyffe he wende to halfe ler.

V. 60. now. . . . V. 67. with fchoys.

The thanner wolde astole away,
 Whyle he began to speke,
 Howr kyng had yever an ey on hem, 80
 That he meyt not skape.
 God felow, with me thow most abeyde, feyd owr
 kyng,
 For thow and y most an hontyng reyde.
 Whan they com to Kyng chas meche game they faye.
 Howr kyng feyde, felow what schall y do, my hors ys so hey? 85
 God felow, lend thow me theyne, and hafe her meyne.
 Tho the tannar leyt done, and cast a downe hes heydys;
 Howr kyng was yn hes sadell, no leyngger he beydes.
 Alas, theyn the thanner thowt, he well reyde away
 with mey hors,
 Y well after to get hem and y may. 90
 He welde not leffe hes heydys beheynde for notheyng,
 He cast them yn the kyngs schadyll, that was a neys
 feyte;
 Tho he sat aboffe them, as y ouw faye,
 He prekyd fast after hem and fond the redey wey.
 The hors lokyd abowt hem, and fey on euery feyde 95
 The kow hornes blake and wheyte;
 The hors went he had bor the deuell on hes bake;
 The hors prekyd as he was wode,
 Het mestoret to spor hem not;
 The barker cleynt on hem fast, 100
 He was for a ferde for to fall,

The kyng lowhe, and was glad to folow the chas,
 ' Yette' he was agast lest the tanner welde ber hem
 downe.

The hors sped hem sweythyli, he sped hem wonderley fast,

Ayen a bow of a noke the thanneres hed he barst, 105
 With a stombellyng as he rode the thanner downe he cast;

The kyng lowhe and had god game, and seyde thou rydyft to fast.

The kyng lowhe, and had god game, and swar be sent John,

Seche another horsman say y neuer none.

Owr kyng lowhe, and had god bord, and swar be sent ' Jame,' 110

Y most nedyft lawhe and thow wer mey dame.

Y be scro the fame son, seyde the barker tho,

That seche a bord welde haffe to se hes dame so wo.

When ' ther' hontyng was ydo, they changyd hors
 agen,

Tho the barker had hes howyn, theyrof he was
 ' fayne.' 115

Godamarsey, seyde our kyng, of they serueyse to daye,

Yeffe thow hafe awt to do with me, or owt to faye,

They frende schall y yeffor be, be god that ys bet on.

V. 103. Yeffe.

V. 114. her.

V. 110. Janc.

V. 115. of fayne.

Godamarfey, feyde the barker tho, thow femyft a felow god,

Yeffe y met the yn Dantre thou schalt dreyne be
[the] rode. 120

Be mey feyt, feyde ovr kyng, or els wer y to blame;
Yeff y met the yn Lecheffelde thou schalt hafe the fame.

Thus they rod talkyng togeder to Drayton hall,
Tho the barker toke hes leffe of the lordes all.
Ovr kyng comand the barker yn that tyde, 125
A C. s. yn hes pors to mend hes kow heydys.
Ther ovr kyng and the barker partyd feyr a twyn .

HOW A MERCHANDE DYD
HYS WYFE BETRAY.

The story of this ancient poem seems to have appeared in all possible shapes. It is contained in a tract intitled "Penny-wise, pound-foolish; or a Bristow diamond, set in two rings, and both crack'd. Profitable for married men, pleasant for young men, and a rare example for all good women;" London, 1631. 4to. b.l. and is well known, at least in the North, by the old ballad called "The Pennyworth of Wit." It likewise appears, from Langhams Letter, 1575, to have been then in print, under the title of "The Chapman of a Pennyworth of Wit;" though no edition of that age is now known to exist. The following copy is from a transcript made by the late Mr. Baynes from one of Bp. Mores manuscripts in the public library at Cambridge (Ff. 2. 38, or 690), written apparently about the reign of Edward the fourth or Richard the third; carefully but unnecessarily examined with the original. The poem itself however is indisputably of a greater age, and seems from the language and orthography to be of Scottish, or at least of North country extraction. The fragment of a somewhat different copy, in the same dialect, is contained in a MS. of Henry the 6ths time in the British Museum (Bib. Har. 5396). It has evidently been designed to be sung to the harp.

LYSTENYTH, lordyngys, y you pray,
How a merchand dyd hys wyfe betray,
Bothe be day and be nyght,
Yf ye wyll herkyn aryght.
Thys songe ys of a merchand of thys cuntre, 5
That had a wyfe feyre and free ;
The marchand had a full gode wyfe,
Sche louyd hym trewly as hur lyfe,
What that euyr he to hur sayde,
Euyr sche helde hur wele apayde : 10
The marchand, that was so gay,
By another woman he lay ;

70 HOW A MERCHANDE DYD

He bocht hur gownys of grete pryce,
 Furryd with menyvere and with gryfe,
 To hur hedd ryall atyre, 15
 As any lady myght defyre ;
 Hys wyfe, that was so trewe as ston,
 He wolde ware no thyng vpon :
 That was foly be my fay,
 That fayrenes schulde tru loue betray. 20
 So hyt happenyd, as he wolde,
 The marchand ouer the see he schulde ;
 To hys leman ys he gon,
 Leue at hur for to tane ;
 With clyppying and with kyffying swete, 25
 When they schulde parte bothe dyd they wepe.
 Tyll hys wyfe ys he gon,
 Leue at her then hath he tan ;
 Dame, he seyde, be goddys are,
 Haste any money thou woldyft ware ? 30
 Whan y come bezonde the see
 That y myzt the bye some ryche drewrè.
 Syr, sche seyde, as Cryft me faue,
 Ye haue all that euyr y haue ;
 Ye schall haue a peny here, 35
 As ye ar my trewe fere,
 Bye ye me a penyworth of wytt,
 And in youre hert kepe wele hyt.
 Styll stode the merchand tho,
 Lothe he was the peny to forgoo, 40

Certen sothe, as y yow fay,
 He put hyt in hys purse and yede hys way.
 A full gode wynde god hath hym sende,
 Yn Fraunce hyt can hym brynge ;
 A full gode schypp arrayed he 45
 Wyth marchaundyce and spycerè.
 Certen sothe, or he wolde reste,
 He boght hys lemman of the beste,
 He boght hur bedys, brochys and ryngys,
 Nowchys of golde, and many feyre thyngys ;
 He boght hur perry to hur hedde, 51
 Of safurs and of rubyes redd ;
 Hys wyfe, that was so trew as ston,
 He wolde ware nothyng vpon :
 That was foly be my fay, 55
 That fayrenes schulde trew loue betray.
 When he had boght all that he wolde,
 The marchand ouyr the see he schulde.
 The marchandys man to hys mayster dyd speke,
 Oure dameys peny let vs not forgete. 60
 The marchand swore, be seynt Anne,
 Zyt was that a lewde bargan,
 To bye owre dame a penyworth of wytt,
 In all Fraunce y can not fynde hyt.
 ' An' olde man in the halle stode, 65
 The marchandys speche he undurzode ;

F. 65. And.

E 4

The olde man to the marchand can fay,
 A worde of counsell y yow pray,
 And y schall felle yow a penyworth of wyt,
 Yf ye take gode hede to hyt: 70
 Tell me marchand, be thy lyfe,
 Whethyr haste thou a leman or a wyfe?
 Syr, y haue bothe, as haue y reste,
 But my paramour loue I beste.
 Then seyde the olde man, withowten were, 75
 Do now as y teche the here;
 When thou comyft ouyr the falte some,
 Olde clothys then do the vpon,
 To thy lemman that thou goo,
 And telle hur of all thy woo; 80
 Syke fore, do as y the fay,
 And telle hur all thy gode ys losse away,
 Thy schyp ys drownyd in the fom,
 And all thy god ys losse the from;
 Whan thou haste tolde hur soo, 85
 Then to thy weddyd wyfe thou go;
 Whedyr helpyth the bettur yn thy nede,
 Dwelle with hur, as Cryste the sped.
 The marchand seyde, wele must thou fare,
 Have here thy peny, y haue my ware. 90
 When he come ouer the falte some,
 Olde clothys he dyd hym vpon,

VV. 79, 80. These two lines are in the MS. inserted after the four following.

Hys lemman lokyd forthe and on hym see,
 And feyde to hur maydyn, how lykyth the?
 My love ys comyn fro beyonde the see, 95
 Come hedur, and see hym wyth thyn eye.
 The maydyn feyde, be my fay,
 He ys yn a febull array.
 Go down, maydyn, in to the halle,
 Yf thou mete the marchand wythalle, 100
 And yf he spyrrre aftyr me,
 Say, thou sawe me wyth non eye;
 Yf he wyll algatys wytt,
 Say in my chaumbyr y lye fore fyke,
 Out of hyt y may not wynne, 105
 To speke wyth none ende of my kynne,
 Nother wyth hym nor wyth none other,
 Thowe he were myn own brother.
 Allas! feyde the maydyn, why sey ye foo?
 Thynke how he helpyed yow owt of moche wo.
 Fyrst when ye mett, wyth owt lesyng, 111
 Youre gode was not worthe xx s.,
 Now hyt ys worthe cccc pownde,
 Of golde and fyluyr that ys rounde;
 Gode ys but a lante lone, 115
 Some tyme men haue hyt, and some tyme none;
 Thogh all hys gode be gon hym froo,
 Neuyr forfake hym in hys woo.
 Go downe, maydyn, as y bydd the,
 Thou schalt no lenger ellys dwelle wyth me.

74 HOW A MERCHANDE DYD

The maydyn wente in to the halle, 121
 There sche met the marchand wythall.
 Where ys my lemman? where ys sche?
 Why wyll sche not come speke wyth me?
 Syr, y do the wele to wytt, 125
 Yn hyr chaumbyr sche lyeth full fyke,
 Out of hyt sche may not wynne,
 To speke wyth non ende of hur kynne,
 Nother wyth yow nor wyth non other,
 Thowe ye were hur owne brother. 130
 Maydyn, to my lemman that thou go,
 And telle hur my gode ys losse me fro,
 My schyp ys drownyd in the fom,
 And all my gode ys losse me from;
 A gentylman have y slawe, 135
 Y dar not abyde the londys lawe;
 Pray hur, as sche louyth me dere,
 As y have ben to hur a trewe fere,
 To kepe me preuy in hur chaumbyr,
 That the kyngys baylyes take me neuyr. 140
 Into the chaumbyr the maydyn ys goon,
 Thys tale sche tolde hur dame anone.
 In to the halle, maydyn, wynde thou downe,
 And bydd hym owt of my halle to goon,
 Or y schall fend in to the towne, 145
 And make the kyngys baylyes to come;
 Y swere, be god of grete renown,
 Y wyll neuyr harbor the kyngys feloun.

The maydyn wente in to the halle,
 And thus sche tolde the merchand alle; 150
 The marchand sawe none other spede,
 He toke hys leve and forthe he yede.
 Lyfentyth, lordyngys, curtes and hende,
 For zyt ys the better fytt behynde.

[ THE SECOND FIT. ]

LYSTENYTH, lordyngys, great and small:
 The marchand ys now to hys own halle;
 Of hys comyng hys wyfe was fayne,
 Anone sche come hym agayne.
 Husbonde, sche seyde, welcome ye be,
 How haue ye farde beyonde the see? 160
 Dame, he seyde, be goddys are,
 All full febyll hath be my fare;
 All the gode that euer was thyn and myn
 Hyt ys losse be seynt Martyn;
 In a storme y was bestadde, 165
 Was y neuyr halfe so fore adrad,
 Y thanke hyt god, for so y may,
 That euyr y skapyd on lyve away;
 My schyp ys drownyd in the fom,
 And all my gode ys losse me from; 170

A gentylman haue y flawe,
 I may not abyde the londys lawe ;
 I pray the, as thou louest me dere,
 As thou art my trewe weddyd fere,
 In thy chaumber thou woldest kepe me dern.
 Syr, sche seyde, no man schall me warne : 176
 Be styll, husbonde, fygh not so fore,
 He that hathe thy gode may sende the more ;
 Thowe all thy gode be fro the goo,
 I wyll neuyr forsake the in thy woo ; 180
 Y schall go to the kyng and to the quene,
 And knele before them on my kneen,
 There to knele and neuyr to cese,
 Tyl of the kyng y haue getyn thy pees :
 I can bake, brewe, carde and spynne, 185
 My maydenys and y can fylvyr wyne,
 Euyr whyll y am thy wyfe,
 To maynten the a trewe mannys lyfe.
 Certen sothe, as y yow fay,
 All nyght be hys wyfe he lay, 190
 On the morne, or he forthe yede,
 He kaste on hym a ryall wede,
 And bestrode a full gode stede,
 And to hys lemmans hows he yede.
 Hys lemman lokyd forthe and on hym see, 195
 As he come rydyng ouyr the lee,
 Sche put on hur a garment of palle,
 And mett the marchand in the halle,

Twyes or thryes, or euyr he wyfte,
 Trewly sche had hym kyfte. 200
 Syr, sche seyde, be feynt John,
 Ye were neuyr halfe so welcome home.
 Sche was a schrewe, as haue y hele,
 There sche currayed fauell well.
 Dame, he seyde, be feynt John, 205
 Zyt ar not we at oon;
 Hyt was tolde me beyonde the see,
 Thou haste another leman then me,
 All the gode that was thyn and myne,
 Thou haste geuyn hym, be feynt Martyn. 210
 Syr, as Cryste bryng me fro bale,
 Sche lyeth falsely that tolde the that tale;
 Hyt was thy wyfe, that olde trate,
 That neuyr gode worde by me spake;
 Were sche dedd (god lene hyt wolde!) 215
 Of the haue all my wyllle y schulde;
 Early, late, lowde and styllle,
 Of the schulde y haue all my wyllle:
 Ye schall see, so muste y the,
 That sche lyeth falsely on me. 220
 Sche leyde a canvas on the flore,
 Longe and large, styffe and store,
 Sche leyde theron, wythowten lyte,
 Fyfty schetys waschen whyte,
 Pecys of fyluyr, masers of golde; 225
 The marchand stode hyt to be holde:

He put hyt in a wyde fakk,
 And leyde hyt on the hors bakk ;
 He bad hys chylde go belyue,
 And lede thys home to my wyue. 230
 The chylde on hys way ys gon,
 The marchande come aftyr anon ;
 He caste the pakk downe in the flore,
 Longe and large, styf and flore,
 As hyt lay on the grounde, 235
 Hyt was wele worthe cccc pownde :
 They on dedyn the mouth aryght,
 There they fawe a ryall fyght.
 Syr, sayde hys wyfe, be the rode,
 Where had ye all thys ryall gode ? 240
 Dame, he seyde, be goddys are,
 Here ys thy penyworth of ware ;
 Yf thou thynke hyt not wele befett,
 Gyf hyt another can be ware hytt bett ;
 All thys wyth thy peny boght y, 245
 And therfore y gyf hyt the frely ;
 Do wyth all what so euyr ye lyfte,
 I wyll neuyr aske yow accowntys, be Cryfte.
 The marchandys wyfe to hym can say,
 Why come ye home in so febull array ? 250
 Then seyde the marchand, sone ageyn,
 Wyfe, for to assay the in certeyn ;
 For at my lemman was y before,
 And sche by me sett lytyll flore,

And sche louyd bettyr my gode then me, 255
 And so wyfe dydd neuyr ye.
 To telle hys wyfe then he began,
 All that gode he had takyn fro hys lemman;
 And all was becauwe of thy peny,
 Therefore y gyf hyt the frely; 260
 And y gyf god a vowe thys howre,
 Y wyll neuyr more have paramowre,
 But the, myn own derlyng and wyfe,
 Wyth the wyll y lede my lyfe.
 Thus the marchandys care be gan to kele, 265
 He lefte hys folye euery dele,
 And leuyd in clennessè and honestè;
 Y pray god that so do we.
 God that ys of grete renowne,
 Saue all the gode folke of thys towne: 270
 Jesu, as thou art heuyn kynge,
 To the blys of heuyn owre soules brynge.

HERRING GULLS

And the land birds began to sing,
 And the sea birds began to sing,
 To sing the hymn of the morning;
 All that birds had done before
 And they were the best of the song,
 I wonder, did they sing to me,
 And you, and I, and the birds
 T will never more have found
 The time when they were young,
 To see the world with eyes
 To see the world with eyes
 The birds and the flowers
 And birds in clouds and flowers,
 To see the world with eyes
 And that is the world
 To see the world with eyes
 To see the world with eyes
 To see the world with eyes

HOW THE WISE MAN TAUGHT HIS SON.

This little moral piece, which, for the time wherein it was written, is not inelegant, is given from a manuscript collection in the Harleian library in the British Museum (No. 1596), compiled in the reign of King Henry the sixth. It is not supposed to have been before printed, nor has any other copy of it been met with in manuscript; there is however a striking coincidence of idea in Mr. Gilbert Coopers beautiful elegy intitled "A father's advice to his son," as well as in the old song of "It's good to be merry and wise;" which the more curious reader may consult at his leisure.

LYSTENYTH all, and ze well here
 How the wyfe man tacht hys son ;
 Take gode tent to thys materc,
 And fond to lere yf the con.
 Thys fong be zonge men was begon,                   5
 To make hem tyrifty and stedfast ;
 But zarn that is oft tyme yll sponne,
 Euyll hyt comys out at the laft.
 A wyfe man had a fayre chyld,
 Was well of fyftene zere age,                   10
 That was bothe meke and mylde,
 Fayre of body and uefage ;

Gentyll of kynde and of corage,
 For he schulde be hys fadur eyre ;
 Hys fadur thus, yn hys langage, 15
 ' Taght' hys sone bothe weyll and fayre :

And fayd, son, kepe thys word yn hart,
 And thenke theron ' tyll' thou be ded ;
 Zeyr day thy furst weke,
 Loke thys be don yn ylke stede : 20
 Furst se thye god yn forme of brede,*
 And ferue hym ' well' for hys godenes,
 And afturward, sone, by my rede,
 Go do thy worldys befynes.

Forst, worfchyp thy god on a day, 25
 And, sone, thys schall thou haue to ' mede,'
 Skyll fully what thou pray,
 He wyll the graunt with outyn drede,
 And fend the al that thou hast nede,
 As ' far' as meser longyyth to strech, 30
 This lyfe in mesur that thou lede,
 And of the remlant thou ne rech.

And, sone, thy tong thou kepe also,
 And be not tale wyfe be no way,
 Thyn owen tonge may be thy fo, 35
 Therfor beware, sone, j the pray,

V. 16. That.

V. 18. thyll.

V. 22. wyll.

V. 26. mad.

V. 30. for.

* i. e. go to mass.

Where and when, son, thou schalt say,
 And be whom thou spekyft oght;
 For thou may speke a word to day
 That feuen zere thens may be forthoht. 40

Therefore, sone, be ware be tyme,
 Desyre no offys for to bere,
 For of thy neyborys mawgref,
 Thou most hem bothe dysplese and dere,
 Or ellys thy self thou must 'forswere,' 45
 And do not as thyn offys wolde,
 And gete the mawgrefe here and there,
 More then thank a thousand fold.

And, sone, yf thou wylt lyf at ese,
 And warme among thy neyburns fyt, 50
 Lat newefangylnes the plese
 Oftyn to remewe nor to flyt,
 For and thou do thou wantys wyt,
 For folys they remewe al to wyde;
 And also, sone, an euyl 'fygne' ys hyt, 55
 A mon that can no wher abyde.

And, sone, of fychy thyng j the warne,
 And on my blyffing take gode hede,
 Thou vse neuer the tauerne;
 And also dysfing j the forbede: 60

V. 45. for swete.

V. 55. fagne.

For thise two thyngys, with outyn drede,
 And comon women, as j leue,
 Maks zong men euyle to spede,
 And 'falle' yn danger and yn myschefe.

And, sone, the more gode thou haft, 65
 The rather bere the meke and lowe ;
 Lagh not mych for that ys waft,
 For solys ben by laghing 'knowe.'

And, sone, quyte wele that thou owe,
 So that thou be of detts clere ; 70
 And thus, my lese chylde, as j 'trowe,'
 Thou meit the kepe fro davngere.

And loke thou wake not to longe,
 Ne vse not rere soperys to late ;
 For, were thy complexion neuyr so strong, 75
 Wyth surfet thou mayst fordo that.

Of late walkyng oftyn debate,
 On nyztys for to fyt and drynke ;
 Yf thou wylt rule thyn astate,
 Betyme go to bed and wynke. 80

And, sone, as far furth as thou may,
 On non enquest that thou come,
 Nor no fals wytnesse bere away,
 Of no manys mater, all ne sum :

V. 64. fulle.

V. 68. knone.

V. 71. trewe.

For better the were be dese and down, 85
 Then for to be on eny enquest,
 That aftyr myzt be vndurnome,
 A trewe man had hys quarel left.

And, sone, yf thou wylt haue a wyfe,
 Take hur for no couetyse, 90
 But loke, sone, sche be the lese,
 Thou wyfe bywayt and wele awyfe,
 That sche be gode, honest, and wyfe,
 Thof sche be pore take thou no hede,
 For sche 'schal' do the more seruys, 95
 Then schall a ryche with owtyn drede.

For better it is in rest and pes,
 A mes of potage and no more,
 Then for to haue a thousand mes,
 With gret dyfese and angyr fore. 100
 Therefore, sone, thynk on thys lore,
 Yf thou wylt haue a wyfe with ese,
 By hur gode set thou no flore,
 Thoffe sche wolde the bothe fesse and fesse.

And yf thy wyfe be meke and gode, 105
 And serue the wele and 'plefantly,'
 Loke that thou be not so wode,
 To charge hur then to owtragely;

℥. 95. schalt.

℥. 106. plefantyl.

But then fare with hur efely,
 And cherysch hur for hur gode dede, 110
 For thyng ouerdon vnskylfully,
 Makys wrath to grow where ys no nede.

I wyl neyther glos ne 'paynt,'
 But waran the on anodyr fyde,
 Yf thy wyfe come to make pleynt, 115
 On thy seruandys on any fyde,
 Be nott to hasty them to chyde,
 Nor wreth the or thou wytt the fothe,
 For wemen yn wrethe they can not hyde,
 But fone they reyse a smokei rofe. 120

Nor, fone, be not jelows, j the pray,
 For, and thou falle in jelofye,
 Let not thy wyfe wyt in no way,
 For thou may do no more foly ;
 For, and thy wyfe may onys aspye 125
 That thou any thyng hur mystryft,
 In dyspyte of thy fantefy,
 To do the wors ys all hur lyst.

Therefore, fone, j byd the
 Wyrche with thy wyfe as refon ys, 130
 Thof sche be seruant in degre,
 In fom degre she felaw ys.

V. 113. praynt.

V. 118. The MS. reads wreth the not, but the word not is inserted by a different, though very ancient, hand, which has corrected the poem in other places; and is certainly redundant and improper.

Laddys that ar bundyn, so haue j blys,
 That can not rewle theyr wyves aryzt,
 That makys wemen, so haue j blys, 135
 To do oftyn wrong yn plyzt.

Nor, sone, bete nott thy wyfe j rede,
 For ther yn may no help 'rise,'
 Betyng may not stond yn stede,
 But rather make hur 'the to despyse:' 140
 Wyth louys awe, sone, thy wyfe chaastyse,
 And let fayre wordys be thy zerde ;
 Louys awe ys the best gyfe,
 My sone, to make thy wyfe aferde.

Nor, sone, thy wyfe thou schalt not chyde,
 Nor calle hur by no vyleus name, 146
 For sche that schal ly be thy fyde,
 To calle hur fowle yt ys thy schame ;
 Whan thou thyne owen wyfe wyl dyffame,
 Wele may anothyr man do so : 150
 Soft and fayre men make tame
 Herte and buk and wylde roo.

And, sone, thou pay ryzt wele thy tythe*,
 And pore men of thy gode thou dele ;
 And loke, sone, be thy lyfe, 155
 Thou gete thy fowle here sum hele.

V. 135. The latter half of this line seems repeated by mistake.

V. 138. be. V. 140. to despyse the.

* The author, from this and other admonitions, is supposed to have been a parson.

Thys werld hyt turnys euyn as a whele,
 All day be day hyt wyl enpayre,
 And so, sone, thys worldys wele,

THE LIFE AND DEATH
OF
TOM THUMBE.

It is needless to mention the popularity of the following story. Every city, town, village, shop, stall, man, woman, and child, in the kingdom, can bear witness to it. Its antiquity, however, remains to be enquired into, more especially as no very ancient edition of it has been discovered. That which was made use of on the present occasion bears the following title: "Tom Thumbe, his life and death: wherein is declared many marvailous acts of manhood, full of wonder, and strange merriments. Which little knight lived in king Ariburs time, and famous in the court of Great Brittain. London, printed for John Wright. 1630." It is a small 8vo. in black letter, was given, among many other curious pieces, by Robert Burton, author of the Anatomy of Melancholy, to the Bodleian Library (Seld. Art. L. 79.), and is the oldest copy known to be extant. There is a later edition, likewise in black letter, printed for F. Coles, and others, in Antony à Woods collection, which has been collated, as has also a different copy, printed for some of the same proprietors, in the editors possession. All three are ornamented with curious cuts, representing the most memorable incidents of our heroes life. They are likewise divided into chapters by short prose arguments, which, being always unnecessary, and sometimes improper, as occasioning an interruption of the narrative, are here omitted.

In Ben Jonsons Masque of the Fortunate Isles, designed for the Court, on the Twelfth Night, 1626,

Skelton, one of the characters, after mentioning Elinor Rumming, and others, says

Or you may have come

In, THOMAS THUMB,

*Then "The Antimasque follows: consisting of these twelve persons, Owl-glass, the four Knaves, two Ruffians, Fitz-Ale, and Vapor, Elinor Rumming, Mary Ambree, Long Meg of Westminster, Tom Thumb, and Doctor Rat."**

Five years before there had appeared "The History of Tom Thumbe, the Little, for his small stature surnamed, King Arthurs Dwarf: Whose Life and adventures containe many strange and wonderful accidents, published for the delight of merry Time-spenders. Imprinted at London for Tho: Langley, 1621, (12mo. bl. l.)" This however was only the common metrical story turned into prose with some foolish additions by R. I. [Richard Johnson.] The Preface or Introductory Chapter is as follows, being indeed the only part of the book that deserves notice.

"My merry Muse begets no Tales of Guy of Warwick, nor of bould Sir Bevis of Hampton; nor wil I trouble my penne with the pleasant glee of Robin

 1. "How Tom Thumbe riding forth to take the ayre, met with the great Garagantua, and of the speech that was betwene them." 2. "How Tom Thumbe after conference had with great Garagantua returned, and how he met with King Twadle."

This is in the editors possession.

In the panegyric verses (by Michael Drayton and others) upon Tom Coryate and his Crudities, London, 1611, 4to. our hero is thus introduced, along with a namesake, of whom, unfortunately, we know nothing further:

" TOM THUMBE is dumbe, vntill the pudding creepe,

" In which he was intomb'd, then out doth peepe.

" TOM PIPER is gone out, and mirth bewailes,

" He neuer will come in to tell vs tales."*

We are unable to trace our little hero above half a century further back, when we find him still popular, indeed, but, to our great mortification, in very bad company. " IN OUR CHILDHOOD (says honest Reginald Scot) our mothers maids haue so terrified vs with an ouglie diuell... and haue so fraied vs with bull beggers,

* In a different part of the work we find other characters mentioned, whose story is now, perhaps, irretrievably forgot:

I am not now to tell a tale

Of George a Green, or Iacke a Vale,

Or yet of Chittiface.

To these restarches we shall only add the opinion of that eminent antiquary Mr. Thomas Hearne, that this History, "however looked upon as altogether fictitious, yet was CERTAINLY founded upon some AUTHENTICK HISTORY, as being nothing else, originally, but a description of KING EDGAR'S DWARF."†

Mr. Hearne was probably led to fix upon this monarch by some ridiculous lines added, about his own time, to introduce a spurious second and third part. See the common editions of Aldermarſ church-yard, &c. or that intitled "Thomas Redivivus: or, a compleat history of the life and marvellous actions of Tom Thumb. In three tomes. London, 1729. FOLIO. Dr. Wagstaffs comment was written to ridicule that of Mr. Addison, in the Spectator, upon the ballad of Chevy-Chase, and is inserted in his Works.

 Till he amongst those gamesters young

And so Tom Thumbe restrained was
 From these his sports and play,

 Compel'd at home to stay.

Whereas about a Christmas time, 85
 His father a hog had kil'd,
 And Tom 'would' see the puddings made,
 'For fear' they should be spil'd.

He fate vpon the pudding-boule,

 Of which there is vnto this day

For Tom fell in, and could not be
 For euer after found,
 For in the blood and batter he 95
 Was strangely lost and drownd.

Where searching long, but all in vaine,
 His mother after that
 Into a pudding thrust her sonne,
 Instead of minced fat. 100

Which pudding of the largest size,
 Into the kettle throwne,
 Made all the rest to fly thereout,
 As with a whirle-wind blowne.

F. 87. to.

F. 88. Fear'd that.

For so it tumbled vp and downe, 105

Within the liquor there,

As if the deuill ' had' been boyld;

Such was his mothers feare,

That vp she tooke the pudding strait,

And gaue it at the doore 110

Vnto a tinker, which from thence

In his blacke budget bore.

But as the tinker climb'd a stile,

By chance he let a cracke :

Now gip, old knaue, out cride Tom Thumbe,

There hanging at his backe : 116

At which the tinker gan to run,

And would no longer stay,

But cast both bag and pudding downe,

And thence hyed fast away. 120

From which Tom Thumbe got loofe at last

And home return'd againe :

Where he from following dangers long

In safaty did remaine.

Untill such time his mother went 125

A milking of her kine,

Where Tom vnto a thistle fast

She linked with a twine.

N. 107. had there.

A thread that helde him to the fame,
 For feare the bluftring winde 130
 Should blow him thence, that fo ſhe might
 Her ſonne in ſafety finde.

But marke the hap, a cow came by,
 And vp the thistle eate.
 Poore Tom withall, that, as a docke, 135
 Was made the red coves meate :

Who being miſt, his mother went
 Him calling euery where,
 Where art thou Tom? where art thou Tom?
 Quoth he, Here mother, here: 140

Within the red coves belly here,
 Your ſonne is ſwallowed vp.
 The which into her feareful heart
 Moſt carefull dolours put.

Meane while the cove was troubled much,
 In this her tumbling wombe, 146
 And could not reſt vntil that ſhe
 Had backward caſt Tom Thumbe :

Who all beſmeared as he was,
 His mother tooke him vp, 150
 To beare him thence, the which poore lad
 She in her pocket put.

Now after this, in fowing time,
 His father would him haue
 Into the field to driue his plow,
 And therevpon him gaue 155

A whip made of a barly straw,
 To driue the cattle on :
 Where, in a furrow'd land new sowne,
 Poore Tom was lost and gon.

Now by a raven of great strength 160
 Away he thence was borne,
 And carried in the carrions beake
 Euen like a graine of corne,

Unto a giants castle top,
 In which he let him fall, 165
 Where soone the giant swallowed vp
 His body, cloathes and all.

But in his belly did Tom Thumbe
 So great a rumbling make,
 That neither day nor night he could 170
 The smallest quiet take,

Untill the gyant had him spewd
 Three miles into the sea,
 Whereas a fish soone tooke him vp
 And bore him thence away. 175

Which lusty fish was after caught
 And to king Arthur sent,
 Where Tom was found, and made his dwarfe,
 Whereas his dayes he spent

Long time in liuely iollity, 180
 Belou'd of all the court,
 And none like Tom was then esteem'd
 Among the noble fort.

Amongst his deedes of courtship done,
 His highnesse did command, 185
 That he should dance a galliard braue

The which he did, and for the same
 The king his signet gaue,
 Which Tom about his middle wore 190
 Long time a girdle braue.

Now after this the king would not
 Abroad for pleasure goe,
 But still Tom Thumbe must ride with him,
 Plac't on his saddle-bow. 195

Where on a time when as it rain'd,
 Tom Thumbe most nimbly crept
 In at a button hole, where he
 Within his bosome slept.

And being neere his highnesse heart, 200
 He crau'd a wealthy boone,
 A liberall gift, the which the king
 Commanded to be done,

For to relieue his fathers wants,
 And mothers, being old; 205
 Which was so much of siluer coyne
 As well his armes could hold.

And so away goes lusty Tom,
 With three pence on his backe,
 A heauy burthen, which might make 210
 His wearied limbes to cracke.

So traueilling two dayes and nights,
 With labour and great paine,
 He came into the house whereas
 His parents did remaine; 215

Which was but halfe a mile in space
 From good king Arthurs court,
 The which in eight and forty houres
 He went in weary fort.

But comming to his fathers doore, 220
 He there such entrance had
 As made his parents both reioice,
 And he thereat was glad.

His mother in her apron tooke
Her gentle sonne in haste, 225
And by the fier side, within
A walnut shell, him plac'd :

Whereas they feasted him three dayes
Vpon a hazell nut,
Whereon he rioted so long 230
He them to charges put ;

And there-upon grew wonderous sicke,
Through eating too much meate,
Which was sufficient for a month
For this great man to eate. 235

But now his businesse call'd him forth,
King Arthurs court to see,
Whereas no longer from the same
He could a stranger be.

But yet a few small April drops, 240
Which fetled in the way,
His long and weary iourney forth
Did hinder and so stay.

Until his carefull father tooke
A birding trunke in sport, 245
And with one blast blew this his sonne
Into king Arthurs court.

Now he with tilts and turnaments
 Was entertained so,
 That all the best of Arthurs knights 250
 Did him much pleasure show.

As good Sir Lancelot of the Lake,
 Sir Trifram, and fir Guy ;
 Yet none compar'd with braue Tom Thum,
 For knightly chivalry. 255

In honour of which noble day,
 And for his ladies sake,
 A challenge in king Arthurs court
 Tom Thumbe did brauely make.

Gainst whom these noble knights did run, 260
 Sir Chinon, and the rest,
 Yet still Tom Thumbe with matchles might
 Did beare away the best.

At last fir Lancelot of the Lake
 In manly fort came in, 265
 And with this stout and hardy knight
 A battle did begin.

Which made the courtiers all agast,
 For there that valiant man
 Through Lancelots speed, before them all, 270
 In nimble manner ran.

Yea horse and all, with speare and shield,
As hardly he was seene,
But onely by king Arthurs selfe
And his admired queene, 275

Who from her finger tooke a ring,
Through which Tom Thumb made way,
Not touching it, in nimble sort,
As it was done in play.

He likewise cleft the smallest haire 280
From his faire ladies head,
Not hurting her whose euen hand
Him lasting honors bred.

Such were his deeds and noble acts
In Arthurs court there showne, 285
As like in all the world beside
Was hardly seene or knowne.

Now at these sports he toyld himselfe
That he a sicknesse tooke,
Through which all manly exercise 290
He carelesly forfooke.

Where lying on his bed sore sicke,
King Arthurs doctor came,
With cunning skill, by physicks art,
To ease and cure the same. 295

His body being so slender small,
 This cunning doctor tooke
 A fine prospective glasse, with which
 He did in secret looke

Into his sickened body downe, 300
 And therein saw that Death
 Stood ready in his wasted guts
 To seafe his vitall breath.

His armes and leggs consum'd as small
 As was a spiders web, 305
 Through which his dying houre grew on,
 For all his limbes grew dead.

His face no bigger than an ants,
 Which hardly could be seene:
 The losse of which renowned knight 310
 Much grieu'd the king and queene.

And so with peace and quietnesse
 He left this earth below;
 And vp into the Fayry Land
 His ghost did fading goe. 315

Whereas the Fayry Queene receiu'd,
 With heauy mourning cheere,
 The body of this valiant knight,
 Whom she esteem'd so deere.

For with her dancing nymphes in greene, 320
 She fetcht him from his bed,
 With musicke and sweet melody,
 So soone as life was fled :

For whom king Arthur and his knights
 Full forty daies did mourne ; 325
 And, in remembrance of his name
 That was so strangely borne,

He built a tomb of marble gray,
 And yeare by yeare did come
 To celebrate the mournfull day, 330
 And buriall of Tom Thum.

Whose fame still liues in England here,
 Amongst the countrey fort ;
 Of whom our wives and children small
 Tell tales of pleasant sport. 335

THE LOVERS QUARREL:

OR,

CUPIDS TRIUMPH.

H 2

This "pleasant History," which "may be sung to the tune of Floras Farewell," is here republished from a copy printed at London for F. Cotes and others, 1677, 12mo. bl. l. preserved in the curious and valuable collection of that excellent and most respected antiquary Antony à Wood, in the Ashmolean Museum; compared with another impression, for the same partners, without date, in the editors possession. The reader will find a different copy of the poem, more in the ballad form, in a Collection of "Ancient Songs," published by J. Johnson. Both copies are conjectured to have been modernised, by different persons, from some common original, which has hitherto eluded the vigilance of collectors, but is strongly suspected to have been the composition of an old North country minstrel.

The full title is — "The Lovers quarrel: or Cupids Triumph: being the pleasant history of Fair Rosamond of Scotland. Being daughter to the lord Arundel, whose love was obtained by the valour of Tommy Pots: who conquered the lord Phenix, and wounded him, and after obtained her to be his wife. Being very delightful to read."

OF all the lords in Scotland fair,
And ladies that been so bright of blee,
There is a noble lady among them all,
And report of her you shall hear by me.

For of her beauty she is bright, 5
And of her colour very fair,
She's daughter to lord Arundel,
Approv'd his parand and his heir.

He see this bride, lord Phenix said, 10
That lady of so bright a blee,
And if I like her countenance well,
The heir of all my lands she'll be.

118 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

But when he came the lady before,
 Before this comely maid came he,
 O god thee save, thou lady sweet, 15
 My heir and parand thou shalt be.

Leave off your suit, the lady said,
 As you are a lord of high degree,
 You may have ladies enough at home,
 And I have a lord in mine own country ; 20

For I have a lover true of mine own,
 A serving-man of low degree,
 One Tommy Pots it is his name,
 My first love, and last that ever shall be.

If that Tom Pots [it] is his name, 25
 I do ken him right verily,
 I am able to spend forty pounds a week,
 Where he is not able to spend pounds three.

God give you good of your gold, she said,
 And ever god give you good of your fee, 30
 Tom Pots was the first love that ever I had,
 And I do mean him the last to be.

With that lord Phenix soon was mov'd,
 Towards the lady did he threat,
 He told her father, and so it was prov'd, 35
 How his daughters mind was fet.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 119

O daughter dear, thou art my own,
The heir of all my lands to be,
Thou shalt be bride to the lord Phenix,
If that thou mean to be heir to me. 40

O father dear, I am your own,
And at your command I needs must be,
But bind my body to whom you please,
My heart, Tom Pots, shall go with thee.

Alas! the lady her fondness must leave, 45
And all her foolish wooing lay aside,
The time is come, her friends have appointed,
That she must be lord Phenix bride.

With that the lady began to weep,
She knew not well then what to say, 50
How she might lord Phenix deny,
And escape from marriage quite away.

She call'd unto her little foot-page,
Saying, I can trust none but thee,
Go carry Tom Pots this letter fair, 55
And bid him on Guildford-green meet me :

For I must marry against my mind,
Or in faith well proved it shall be ;
And tell to him I am loving and kind,
And wishes him this wedding to see. 60

But see that thou note his countenance well,
 And his colour, and shew it to me;
 And go thy way and high thee again,
 And forty shillings I will give thee.

For if he smile now with his lips, 65
 His stomach will give him to laugh at the heart,
 Then may I seek another true love,
 For of Tom Pots small is my part.

But if he blush now in his face,
 Then in his heart he will forry be, 70
 Then to his vow he hath some grace,
 And false to him I'll never be.

Away this lucky boy he ran,
 And a full speed forsooth went he,
 Till he came to Strawberry-castle, 75
 And there Tom Pots came he to see.

He gave him the letter in his hand,
 Before that he began to read,
 He told him plainly by word of mouth,
 His love was forc'd to be lord Phenix bride. 80

When he look'd on the letter fair,
 The salt tears blemish'd his eye,
 Says, I cannot read this letter fair,
 Nor never a word to see or spy.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 121

My little boy be to me true, 85
 Here is five marks I will give thee,
 And all these words I must peruse,
 And tell my lady this from me :

By faith and troth she is my own,
 By some part of promise, so it's to be found, 90
 Lord Phœnix shall not have her night nor day,
 Except he can win her with his own hand.

On Guildford-green I will her meet,
 Say that I wish her for me to pray,
 For there I'le lose my life so sweet, 95
 Or else the wedding I mean to stay.

Away this lackey-boy he ran,
 Then as fast as he could hie,
 The lady she met him two miles of the way,
 Says, why hast thou staid so long, my boy? 100

My little boy, thou art but young,
 It gives me at heart thou'lt mock and scorn,
 He not believe thee by word of mouth,
 Unless on this book thou wilt be sworn.

Now by this book, the boy did say, 105
 And Jesus Christ be as true to me,
 Tom Pots could not read the letter fair,
 Nor never a word to spy or see.

122 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

He says, by faith and troth you are his own,
By some part of promise, so it's to be found, 110
Lord Phenix shall not have you night nor day,
Except he win you with his own hand.

On Guildford-green he will you meet,
He wishes you for him to pray,
For there he'll lose his life so sweet, 115
Or else the wedding he means to stay.

If this be true, my little boy,
These tidings which thou tellest to me,
Forty shillings I did thee promise,
Here is ten pounds I will give thee. 120

My maidens all, the lady said,
That ever wish me well to prove,
Now let us all kneel down and pray,
That Tommy Pots may win his love.

If it be his fortune the better to win, 125
As I pray to Christ in trinity,
He make him the flower of all his kin,
For the young lord Arundel he shall be.

THE SECOND PART.

LET's leave talking of this lady fair,
 In prayers full good where she may be, 130
 Now let us talk of Tommy Pots,
 To his lord and master for aid went he.

But when he came lord Jockey before,
 He kneeled lowly on his knee,
 What news? what news? thou Tommy Pots, 135
 Thou art so full of courtesie.

What tydings? what tydings? thou Tommy Pots,
 Thou art so full of courtesie;
 Thou hast slain some of thy fellows fair,
 Or wrought to me some villany. 140

I have slain none of my fellows fair,
 Nor wrought to you no villany,
 But I have a love in Scotland fair,
 And I fear I shall lose her with poverty.

If you'l not believe me by word of mouth, 145
 But read this letter, and you shall see,
 Here by all these suspicious words
 That she her own self hath sent to me.

124 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

But when he had read the letter fair,
 Of all the suspitious words in it might be, 150
 O Tommy Pots, take thou no care,
 Thou'ft never lose her with poverty.

For thou'ft have forty pounds a week,
 In gold and silver thou shalt row,
 And Harvy town I will give thee, 155
 As long as thou intend'ft to wooe.

Thou'ft have forty of thy fellows fair,
 And forty horses to go with thee,
 Forty of the best spears I have,
 And I myself in thy company. 160

I thank you, master, said Tommy Pots,
 That proffer is too good for me ;
 But, if Jesus Christ stand on my side,
 My own hands shall set her free.

God be with you, master, said Tommy Pots, 165
 Now Jesus Christ you save and see ;
 If ever I come alive again,
 Staid the wedding it shall be.

O god be your speed, thou Tommy Pots,
 Thou art well proved for a man, 170
 See never a drop of blood thou spil,
 Nor yonder gentleman confound.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 125

See that some truce with him thou take,
And appoint a place of liberty ;
Let him provide him as well as he can, 175
As well provided thou shalt be.

But when he came to Guildford-green,
And there had walkt a little aside,
There he was ware of lord Phenix come,
And lady Rofamond his bride. 180

Away by the bride then Tommy Pots went,
But never a word to her he did say,
Till he the lord Phenix came before,
He gave him the right time of the day.

O welcome, welcome, thou Tommy Pots, 185
Thou serving-man of low degree,
How doth thy lord and master at home,
And all the ladies in that country ?

My lord and master is in good health,
I trust since that I did him see ; 190
Will you walk with me to an out-side,
Two or three words to talk with me ?

You are a noble man, said Tom,
And born a lord in Scotland free,
You may have ladies enough at home, 195
And never take my love from me.

126 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

Away, away, thou Tommy Pots,
 Thou serving-man stand thou aside ;
 It is not a serving-man this day,
 That can hinder me of my bride. 200

If I be a serving-man, said Tom,
 And you a lord of high degree,
 A spear or two with you I'll run,
 Before I'll lose her cowardly.

Appoint a place, I will thee meet, 205
 Appoint a place of liberty,
 For there I'll lose my life so sweet,
 Or else my lady I'll set free.

On Guildford-green I will thee meet,
 No man nor boy shall come with me. 210
 As I am a man, said Tommy Pots,
 I'll have as few in my company.

And thus said the marriage was,
 The bride unmarried went home again,
 Then to her maids fast did she laugh, 215
 And in her heart she was full fain.

My maidens all, the lady said,
 That ever wait on me this day,
 Now let us all kneel down,
 And for Tommy Pots let us all pray. 220

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 127

If it be his fortune the better to win,
As I trust to God in trinity,
He make him the flower of all his kin,
For the young lord Arundel he shall be.

THE THIRD PART.

WHEN Tom Pots came home again, 225
To try for his love he had but a week,
For sorrow, god wot, he need not care,
For four days that he fel sick.

With that his master to him came,
Says, pray thee, Tom Pots, tell me if thou doubt,
Whether thou hast gotten thy gay lady, 231
Or thou must go thy love without.

O master, yet it is unknown,
Within these two days well try'd it must be,
He is a lord, I am but a serving man, 235
I fear I shall lose her with poverty.

I prethee, Tom Pots, get thee on thy feet,
My former promises kept shall be ;
As I am a lord in Scotland fair,
Thou'it never lose her with poverty. 240

128 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

For thou'ft have the half of my lands a year,
 And that will raife thee many a pound,
 Before thou fhalt out-braved be,
 Thou fhalt drop angels with him on the ground.

I thank you, mafter, faid Tommy Pots, 245
 Yet there is one thing of you I would fain,
 If that I lofe my lady sweet,
 How I'ft reftore your goods again ?

If that thou win the lady sweet,
 Thou mayft well forth thou fhalt pay me, 250
 If thou loofeft thy lady thou lofeft enough,
 Thou fhalt not pay me one penny.

You have thirty horfes in one clofe,
 You keep them all both frank and free,
 Amongft them all there's an old white horfe 255
 This day would fet my lady free ;

That is an old horfe with a cut tail,
 Full fixteen years of age is he ;
 If thou wilt lend me that old horfe,
 Then could I win her eafily. 260

That's a foolifh opinion, his mafter faid,
 And a foolifh opinion thou tak'ft to thee ;
 Thou'ft have a better then ever he was,
 Though forty pounds more it fhould coft me.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 129

O your choice horses are wild and tough, 265

And little they can skill of their train;

If I be out of my saddle cast,

They are so wild they'l ne'r be tain.

Thou'ft have that horse, his master said, 270

If that one thing thou wilt me tell;

Why that horse is better then any other,

I pray thee Tom Pots shew thou to me.

That horse is old, of stomach bold,

And well can he skill of his train, 275

If I be out of my saddle cast,

He'l either stand still, or turn again.

Thou'ft have the horse with all my heart,

And my plate coat of silver free,

An hundred men to stand at thy back, 280

To fight if he thy master be.

I thank you master, said Tommy Pots,

That proffer is too good for me,

I would not for ten thousand pounds

Have man or boy in my company. 285

God be with you, master, said Tommy Pots,

Now as you are a man of law,

One thing let me crave at your hand,

Let never a one of my fellows know.

130 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

For if that my fellows they did wot, 290
 Or ken of my extremity,
 Except you keep them under a lock,
 Behind me I am sure they would not be.

But when he came to Guildford-green,
 He waited hours two or three, 295
 There he was ware of lord Phenix come,
 And four men in his company.

You have broken your vow, said Tommy Pots,
 The vow which you did make to me,
 You said you would bring neither man nor boy, 300
 And now has brought more than two or three.

These are my men, lord Phenix said,
 Which every day do wait on me ;
 If any of these dare proffer to strike,
 I'll run my spear through his body. 305

I'll run no race now, said Tommy Pots,
 Except now this may be,
 If either of us be slain this day,
 The other shall forgiven be.

I'll make that vow with all my heart, 310
 My men shall bear witness with me ;
 And if thou slay me here this day,
 In Scotland worse belov'd thou never shalt be.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 131

They turn'd their horses thrice about,
 To run the race so eagerly ; 315
 Lord Phenix he was fierce and stout,
 And ran Tom Pots through the thick o' th' thigh.

He bor'd him out of the saddle fair,
 Down to the ground so sorrowfully.
 For the loss of my life I do not care, 320
 But for the loss of my fair lady.

Now for the loss of my lady sweet,
 Which once I thought to have been my wife,
 I pray thee, lord Phenix, ride not away,
 For with thee I would end my life. 325

Tom Pots was but a serving-man,
 But yet he was a doctor good,
 He bound his handkerchief on his wound,
 And with some kind of words he stancht his blood*.

He leapt into his saddle again, 330
 The blood in his body began to warm,
 He mist lord Phenix body fair,
 And ran him through the brawn of the arm :

He bor'd him out of his saddle fair,
 Down to the ground most sorrowfully ; 335
 Says, prethee, lord Phenix, rise up and fight,
 Or yield my lady unto me.

* i. e. he made use of a charm for that purpose.

Now for to fight I cannot tell,
 And for to fight I am not sure ;
 Thou hast run me throw the brawn o' the arm, 340
 That with a spear I may not endure.

Thou'ft have the lady with all my heart,
 It was never likely better to prove
 With me, or any nobleman elfe
 That would hinder a poor man of his love. 345

Seeing you fay fo much, faid Tommy Pots,
 I will not feem your butcher to be,
 But I will come and ftanch your blood,
 If any thing you will give me.

As he did ftanch lord Phenix blood, 350
 Lord ! in his heart he did rejoice ;
 I'll not take the lady from you thus,
 But of her you'ft have another choice.

Here is a lane of two miles long,
 At either end we fet will be, 355
 The lady fhall ftand us among,
 Her own choice fhall fet her free.

If thou'ld do fo, lord Phenix faid,
 To lofe her by her own choice it's honefty,
 Chufe whether I get her or go her without, 360
 Forty pounds I will give thee.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 133

But when they in that lane was fet,
 The wit of a woman for to prove,
 By the faith of my body, the lady said,
 Then Tom Pots must needs have his love. 365

Towards Tom Pots the lady did hie,
 To get on behind him hastily ;
 Nay stay, nay stay, lord Phenix said,
 Better proved it shall be.

Stay you with your maidens here, 370
 In number fair they are but three ;
 Tom Pots and I will go behind yonder wall,
 That one of us two be proved to dye.

But when they came behind the wall,
 The one came not the other nigh, 375
 For the lord Phenix had made a vow,
 That with Tom Pots he would never fight.

O give me this choice, lord Phenix said,
 To prove whether true or false she be,
 And I will go to the lady fair, 380
 And tell her Tom Pots slain is he.

When he came from behind the wall,
 With his face all bloody as it might be,
 O lady sweet, thou art my own,
 For Tom Pots slain is he. 385

134 THE LOVERS QUARREL.

Now have I slain him, Tommy Pots,
 And given him deaths wounds two or three ;
 O lady sweet, thou art my own,
 Of all loves, wilt thou live with me ?

If thou hast slain him, Tommy Pots, 290
 And given him deaths wounds two or three,
 I'll sell the state of my fathers lands,
 But hanged shall lord Phenix be.

With that the lady fell in a fbound,
 For a grieved woman, god wot, was she ; 395
 Lord Phenix he was ready then,
 To take her up so hastily.

O lady sweet, stand thou on thy feet,
 Tom Pots alive this day may be ;
 I'll fend for thy father, lord Arundel, 400
 And he and I the wedding will see :

I'll fend for thy father, lord Arundel,
 And he and I the wedding will see ;
 If he will not maintain you well,
 Both lands and livings you'llt have of me. 405

I'll see this wedding, lord Arundel said,
 Of my daughters luck that is so fair,
 Seeing the matter will be no better,
 Of all my lands Tom Pots shall be the heir.

THE LOVERS QUARREL. 135

With that the lady began for to smile, 410

For a glad woman, god wot, was she ;

Now all my maids, the lady said,

Example you may take by me.

But all the ladies of Scotland fair,

And lassies of England, that well would prove, 415

Neither marry for gold nor goods,

Nor marry for nothing but only love :

For I had a lover true of my own,

A serving-man of low degree ;

Now from Tom Pots I'll change his name, 420

For the young lord Arundel he shall be.
