ADAM A. BLACKLER is an assistant professor of history at Black Hills State University (Department of History, 1200 University Street, Unit #9003, Spearfish, SD 57799; email: Adam.Blackler@bhsu.edu). His book manuscript, Heathens, "Hottentots," and Heimat: The Boundaries of Germanness in Southwest Africa, 1842–1915, exposes the other side of imperial domination by looking specifically at how Africans confronted German rule and at the degree to which colonial encounters altered German identity in the metropole. He is coediting After the Imperialist Imagination: A Quarter Century of Research on Global Germany and Its Legacies, a forthcoming anthology on German interactions across the globe, and will publish "The Consequences of Genocide" in A Cultural History of Genocide: The Long Nineteenth Century (forthcoming, 2019).

ALEX BURKHARDT was awarded his PhD in June 2017 from the University of St. Andrews (School of History, University of St. Andrews, St. Katharine's Lodge, The Scores, St. Andrews, Fife, KY16 9BA, United Kingdom; email: ahcburkhardt@gmail.com). His research was entirely supported by a St. Andrews's 600-Year-Anniversary Scholarship, and the resulting thesis, Democrats into Nazis: The Radicalisation of the Bürgertum in Hof-an-der-Saale, examines the shifting political culture of the middle classes in a single German town during the first tumultuous half-decade of the Weimar Republic. He is currently preparing the manuscript for publication.

JASON P. COY is a professor of history at the College of Charleston (Department of History, College of Charleston, Charleston, SC 29424; email: coyj@cofc.edu). He is the author of Strangers and Misfits: Banishment, Social Control, and Authority in Early Modern Germany (2008). He has co-edited several volumes, including The Holy Roman Empire, Reconsidered (with Benjamin Marschke and David Sabean, 2010) and Migrations in the German Lands, 1500–2000 (with Jared Poley and Alexander Schunka, 2016). Coy is currently completing a study of divination in early modern Germany.

STEPHEN G. GROSS is an assistant professor in the Department of History and at the Center for European and Mediterranean Studies at New York University (Department of History, 53 Washington Square South, Floor 4E, New York, NY, 10012; email: stephengross@nyu.edu). His research explores the history of German political economy during the twentieth century, and his first book is Export Empire: German Soft Power in Southeastern Europe, 1890–1945 (2015). He is now working on a new book project with support from the Andrew Carnegie Fellows Program on the history of German energy policy from 1945 to the present.

LEN SCALES is an associate professor of history at Durham University (Department of History, Durham University, 43 North Bailey, Durham DH1 3EX, United Kingdom; email: l.e.scales@durham.ac.uk). Scales has published widely on Germany and the Holy Roman Empire in the later Middle Ages and is the author of The Shaping of German Identity: Authority and Crisis, 1245–1414 (2012). He is currently writing a book on myths about medieval emperors in Germany between the tenth century and the present day.

SAGI SCHAEFFER is an assistant professor of modern German and European history at Tel Aviv University (Department of History, Tel Aviv University, 69978 Tel Aviv, Israel; email: sagisc@post.tau.ac.il). He is the author of States of Division: Border and Boundary Formation in Cold War Rural Germany (2014). He has also published several articles, including “Hidden Behind the Wall: West German State-Building and the Division of Germany” (2011). His current research deals with the development of transportation infrastructure and its implications for social structures in the peripheries of East and West Germany during the Cold War.

TOM SCOTT is an honorary professor in the Reformation Studies Institute of the University of St. Andrews (Reformation Studies Institute, University of St. Andrews, St John’s House, 69 South Street, St. Andrews, Fife, KY16 9QW, United Kingdom; e-mail: ts30@st-andrews.ac.uk.). His principal research interests focus on the social and economic history of Germany in the late medieval and early modern periods. He is the author or editor of fourteen books, including, most recently, The City-State in Europe, 1000-1600: Hinterland—Territory—Region (2012); The Early Reformation in Germany: Between Secular Impact and Radical Vision (2013); and The Swiss and their Neighbours: Between Accommodation and Aggression (2017).

BARBARA STOLLBERG-RILINGER, FBA, is a professor of early modern history at the University of Münster (Historisches Seminar der Universität Münster, Domplatz 20–22, 48149 Münster, Germany; email: stollb@uni-muenster.de). Her research focuses on the cultural history of politics, especially the history of political rituals and procedures, as well as symbols and metaphors in the early modern period. She is the author of several books, including The Emperor’s Old Clothes: Constitutional History and Symbolic Language of the Holy Roman Empire (2013), and A Short History of the Holy Roman Empire: From the End of the Middle Ages to 1806 (2006, English translation forthcoming). Her most recent book is the biography Maria Theresa: The Empress in Her Time (2017; English translation forthcoming).

PETER H. WILSON is Chichele Professor of the History of War at the University of Oxford and a fellow of All Souls College (All Souls College, High Street, Oxford OX1 4AL, United Kingdom; e-mail: peter.wilson@history.ox.ac.uk). He worked previously at the universities of Hull, Newcastle, and Sunderland, and has been a visiting fellow at the University of Münster in Germany. His books include The Holy Roman Empire: A Thousand Years of Europe’s History (2016), with Chinese and Italian translations forthcoming, and Europe’s Tragedy: A History of the Thirty Years War (2009), which won the Society for Military History’s Distinguished Book Award; the latter has been translated into Polish, German, and Spanish, with Chinese and Macedonian translations appearing in 2018. His latest book, Lützen, will be published in 2018.

Editorial Policy

Central European History publishes articles, review essays, and book reviews that range widely through the history of Germany, Austria, and other German-speaking regions of Central Europe from the medieval era to the present. All topics and approaches to history are welcome: cultural, social, political, diplomatic, intellectual, economic, and military history, as well as historiography and methodology. Contributions that treat new fields, such as post-1945 and post-1989 history, maturing fields such as gender history, and less-represented fields such as medieval history and the history of the Habsburg lands are especially desired. The journal thus aims to be the primary venue for scholarly exchange and debate among scholars of the history of Central Europe. Because space is limited, articles that have been or soon will be published elsewhere are not accepted. Manuscripts submitted to CEH should not be under consideration by another journal pending decision of the editor on publication. If it is learned that an article is under submission to another journal while being considered at CEH, consideration will cease immediately. Unsolicited book reviews are not accepted.

Manuscripts and correspondence should be directed to:

Andrew I. Port
Editor, Central European History
Wayne State University
3094 FAB
656 West Kirby
Detroit, MI 48202, USA
Email: CentralEuropeanHistory@wayne.edu

The editor prefers that manuscripts be submitted via ScholarOne (<https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ccc>). Please take care to remove author identifying information, following the prompts in ScholarOne, to make your manuscript anonymous. The entire text of all manuscripts, including endnotes and headings, must be prepared in double-spaced typescript with generous margins to allow for copyediting. Endnotes must be numbered consecutively and should be placed in a separate section at the end of the text.

Correspondence concerning book reviews should be sent to:

Julia S. Torrie
Associate Editor, Book Reviews
Central European History
St. Thomas University
51 Dineen Dr.
Fredericton, NB
E3B 5G3
Canada
Email: ceh@stu.ca

Further guidelines for the preparation of manuscripts for publication in Central European History will be sent upon acceptance of materials by the editor. All materials will be edited to conform with The Chicago Manual of Style in matters regarding punctuation, capitalization, and format. The final decision on style remains with the editor.
