STEPHEN J. ANDRIOLE has joined the Drexel University faculty as a professor in the College of Information Studies. He is also head of the college's new Research Center for Multidisciplinary Information Systems Engineering, where he directs and conducts research in requirements analysis, prototyping, user-computer interface technology, and system evaluation. Andriole was the George Mason Institute Professor of Information Technology at George Mason University in Virginia, where he also served as the chairman of the Department of Information Systems and Systems Engineering. He has also been director of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency's Cybernetics Technology Office. The founder and chief scientist of International Information Systems, Inc., he received his M.A. and Ph.D. in quantitative international relations from the University of Maryland in 1973 and 1974. He is the most recent recipient of the AFCEA Educational Foundation Award for Excellence in Defense Education and Training.

ROBERT E. DUGAN has been named associate university librarian for administration and planning at the Joseph M. Lauinger Library of Georgetown University. Dugan was state librarian for Delaware from 1989-90. Previously, he was a research associate with the U.S. National Commission on Libraries and Information Science (1988-89) and was head of planning and development with the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners (1985-88). In addition, he has held several positions at public libraries in Massachusetts and has published several articles. He has a master's in public administration from Suffolk University (1982) and an MLS from Simmons College (1975).

DAVID F. KOHL has been named dean and university librarian at the University of Cincinnati. He comes to Ohio this month from the University of Colorado, where he was head of Norlin Library. Kohl, who joined the University of Colorado in 1986 as assistant director for public services, assisted in Colorado's implementation of a statewide electronic information system. He was previously involved in development of the online catalog at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, where he was undergraduate librarian and assistant director for undergraduate libraries and instructional services from 1980-86. In 1983, he became the first library faculty member to receive the University of Illinois AMOCO Special Award. The award, granted by the University of Illinois office of the vice chancellor for academic affairs, was for creating an outstanding program of undergraduate instruction. Kohl earned a B.A., cum laude, with a major in history from Carleton College in Northfield, Minnesota. He received master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Chicago Divinity School and an MLS in library science from UC. He also did coursework in statistics and business administration at Washington State University in Pullman, where he served five years as social sciences reference librarian and three years as head of central circulation for the main campus library.

MARY STANLEY has been appointed library development officer at the University of Waterloo in Ontario. Her most recent position was Fundraising Supervisor with the Kidney Foundation of Canada, Toronto and District Chapter. In her new position she will be responsible for the library's development and public relations activities. She will promote an increased awareness of the programs and needs of the library within the university community and among alumni, friends, foundations, corporations, government, and the community in order to encourage and secure financial support from these constituencies. She also chairs the Library Development Committee and serves as the library's liaison with the University Development Office.

People in the news

BETTY JO IRVINE, head of the Fine Arts Library at Indiana University, is the new vice president/president elect of ARLIS/NA (Art Libraries Society of North America). She will serve as president beginning in 1992. Other new members of the ARLIS/NA Executive Board are: BARBARA POLOWY, Rochester Institute of Technology, secretary; THOMAS JACOBY, University of Connecticut at Storrs, northeast regional representative; HENRY PISCIOTTA, Carnegie Mellon University, midwest regional representative; and PHILIP REES, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, south regional representative.

DOROTHY MCGARRY, head of the Cataloging Division at the University of California, Los Angeles, has been selected to receive the Special Library Association's prestigious John Cotton Dana Award at the SLA annual meeting in San Antonio this month. The award is given in recognition of exceptional contributions to special librarianship. McGarry has been active at the division, chapter, and association levels of SLA. She is SLA's representative to the ALA/ALCTS/CCS Committee on Cataloging.

DON L. ROBERTS is the new president of the Music Library Association. Roberts has been head music librarian at Northwestern University Library since 1969. ## Retirements

CHARLES H. BAUMANN has retired after a long and productive assignment as university librarian at the Kennedy Library of Eastern Washington University. In addition to his campus achievements, he continuously promoted cooperation with the region's libraries. Eastern Washington University and the Washington State University Libraries operate a shared online public access catalog which provides access to the collections of both universities. Baumann helped to create the Spokane Cooperative Library System, a cooperative circulation system, the Spokane Area Combined List of Periodicals, and the ongoing newspaper indexing project now being carried forward by several major libraries throughout Washington.

Throughout his career, Baumann has participated in professional, scholarly, and civic organizations and activities. His book The Influence of Angus Snead Macdonald and The Snead Book Stack on Modern Library Architecture was published in 1972. In recent years, he has served on accreditation teams for the Northwest Association. Baumann's background includes a B.S. in education and mathematics from Washington University in St. Louis, an MLS from the Pratt Institute Library School in Brooklyn, and a doctorate in library science from the University of Illinois, which he earned while he was on the staff of the University of Wyoming Library (1954–1969), where he served as documents librarian, acquisitions librarian, and assistant director.

JERRY DONEN, the recently retired director of the Instructional Media Center at Eastern Washington University in Cheney, literally sailed off into a new life. He and his wife took their 44-foot sailboat to Hawaii via Los Angeles before flying on to Hong Kong, where Jerry has a three-year contract as a media librarian at the University of Science and Technology.

CATHY GORDON has retired from the University of California at Berkeley Library after almost 22 years of service, during which she held varied and numerous responsible positions in reference, technical services, selection, faculty liaison, bibliographic instruction, and management. Since 1986 she had been head of the Serials Department during its greatest changes, implementing INNOPAC for acquisitions and check-in of serials, and initiating UCB's decentralization of serials management.

ANN T. HINCKLEY, head of the Reference Department at the UCLA University Research Library, is retiring from the university after 27 years.

HANS PANOFSKY has announced his intention to retire as curator of the Melville J. Herskovits Library of African Studies at Northwestern as of January 31. For over 30 years Panofsky has directed the development of the African research collection at Northwestern, creating the most complete general Africana library in the world. His interest in Africa goes back to student days at the London School of Economics where, as a displaced person, he met many other displaced students, including Africans who were to return home and play leading roles in the struggles for independence and national development. After immigrating to the U.S. and taking an MLS at Columbia, Panofsky began his professional career as reference librarian at the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell. Panofsky has served as chair of both ACRL's Asian and African Section and Anthropology Section.

JOAN I. TRACY has retired from full-time service after 23 years at Eastern Washington University in Cheney. For most of that time she was the assistant university librarian for Technical Services. She created and edited successive editions of The Spokane Area Combined List of Periodicals and published many articles as well as a book, Library Automation for Library Technicians: An Overview (1986). Her travels have included two international exchanges, as a lecturer at Newcastle upon Tyne Polytechnic in England and as a cataloger at the University of Queensland in Australia. She is presently involved in a domestic exchange, working part-time in the Reference Department at EWU.

ACRL seeks data compilation proposals

ACRL is soliciting proposals for compilation of the data collected for the forthcoming ACRL University Library Statistics 1990–91. Compilers will be responsible for inputting the data collected by ACRL, checking data for consistency, querying respondents to resolve inconsistencies, and preparing final camera-ready pages for publication. The publication will be modeled on the ARL Library Statistics 1990–91. Contact ACRL Statistics, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611; or call (800) 545-2433 ext. 2525 or fax: (312) 440-9374 to receive a request for proposals. Deadline for submission of proposals is July 14, 1991.
