Profiles

JUDITH GIBSON GREEN, head of cataloging and classification at the Canada Institute for Scientific and Technical Information (CISTI), has been named university librarian at Colgate University, Hamilton, New York, effective July 1.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Carleton College in 1962, Green received her MLS degree from the University of Western Ontario in 1972. From 1972 to 1974 she was head librarian of the Faculty of Education Library at the University of New Brunswick, and for the past eleven years she has held various positions with CISTI, Canada's national science library in Ottawa, including systems development librarian, head of the Technical Reports Section, and assistant head of the Analytics and Conference Section.

As a consultant in 1975 Green helped design and establish the Precedents Library for the Canadian War Veterans Allowance Board. She also established a library for the community of Cambridge Bay, North-West Territories, in 1964-65, and served as reference librarian for the Nepean Public Library in Ottawa.

Green has been Canadian representative and secretary for the International Standards Organization (ISO) Subcommittee on Bibliographic Data Elements since 1980.

CHARLES A. JAMISON has been named library director of the Myrin Library, Ursinus College, Collegeville, Pennsylvania, effective April 1. Jamison had served as acting director of the library since last July, replacing H.E. Broadbent III, who left Ursinus to become executive director of the Pittsburgh Regional Library Center.

Charles Jamison

Jamison joined the library staff in 1981 as head of technical services. He obtained his MLS from Drexel University in 1981 and a bachelor's degree in psychology and organizational behavior from Richard Stockton State College in 1978.

At Ursinus Jamison will be responsible for major renovation and automation projects, tentatively scheduled for completion in 1989.

Retirements

DALE M. BENTZ, university librarian at the University of Iowa, will retire on August 31 after more than 33 years of service at Iowa and over 46 as a professional librarian. Bentz came to Iowa in 1953 as associate director and was named university librarian in 1970. He was previously employed at the University of Tennessee, Duke University, and the University of North Carolina, where he began his career in 1940.

Active in the profession, Bentz served as president of the Iowa Library Association (1959-60); chair of ACRL's University Libraries Section (1963-64); president of Beta Phi Mu, the international library science honor society (1966-67); and president of the ALA Resources and Technical Services Division (1975-76). He was also elected to ALA Council (1978-82) and served as chair of its Resolutions Committee (1980-81), and was the ACRL representative to the American Council on Education (1980).

LOUISE DESHAIES, cataloger at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, will retire at the end of August after 14 years of service.

MARY M. DOAK, chair of the Humanities/Social Sciences Department at the University of Nebraska Libraries, Lincoln, will retire July 1 after 41 years of service. Doak received her library degree in 1945 from the University of Chicago. She began her career at Nebraska the same year as assistant librarian in the Humanities and Social Studies Division; she was head of circulation services from 1962 to 1975, when she assumed her current position.

BARBARA CLASON, literature cataloging librarian at the University of Kansas, will retire July 1 after 30 years of service.

MARIA GROSSMAN, librarian of the Andover-Harvard Theological Library, Cambridge, Massachusetts, will retire at the end of June. Grossman joined the staff at Andover-Harvard in 1956 as acquisitions librarian. She was appointed assistant librarian for cataloging in 1961, and was named librarian in 1965. Grossman left Andover-Harvard in 1974 to serve as librarian for collection development in the Harvard University Library, and in 1979 returned to Andover-Harvard to serve again as librarian. Grossman holds an MLS from Simmons College and a Ph.D. in History from Harvard. Her publications include Humanism in Wittenberg, 1485-1517, (1975), a number of articles and book reviews in the field of 16th-century German scholarship, and several articles on theological librarianship. She is a past president of the American Theological Library Association (1968-69).

She was a graduate of Cornell College, Mount Vernon, Iowa, and received an MLS from the University of Illinois. Prior to joining the staff at Iowa, Wormer was employed for two years at the Waterloo, Iowa, Public Library. She was at one time a member of the ACRL Board of Directors. ■■

NEW TECHNOLOGY

• Camber-Roth has introduced an electronic conferencing software package called CAUCUS. The software allows groups with tight schedules or scattered locations to interact at their scheduling convenience, with input recorded like the minutes of an ordinary meeting. Multiple conferences can be run on a variety of topics or subtopics. Each user is automatically shown new activity by conference and subtopic; older material is readily accessed if needed. The organizer of each conference determines which users can have access to the discussion. For further information or to join a demo conference, contact Camber-Roth, 243 Hoosick Street, Troy, NY 12180; (518) 273-0983.

• Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration research library has begun a comprehensive reference service for hospitality industry practitioners. Called HOSTLINE, this service gives managers and researchers direct access to the extensive library resources of both the Cornell Hotel School and Cornell University. Librarians and research assistants at the School will be able to provide users with published statistical and factual information; bibliographic citations; extensive literature searches; and access to related online services, such as Management Contents or ABI/Inform. The fee for HOSTLINE services is $55 per hour. Other charges (database fees, copying, computer time) are billed directly. For more information, contact the School of Hotel Administration, Statler Hall, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853-6901; (607) 255-3673.

• INDEXIT is a new IBM PC program designed for anyone who is preparing an index. The system allows you to enter, alphabetize, update, and print subject or topical indexes. It also can interfile upper and lower case, file either letter-by-letter or word-by-word, and (most unusual for computer indexes) can ignore punctuation marks when alphabetizing. Maximum index length is 5000 entries. Cross-references may be entered at any point, and many different types of page and volume number references can be used. INDEXIT was written by Allan D. Pratt, founding editor of Small Computers for Libraries. The system can be run on an IBM PC or compatibles. Contact Graham-Conley Press, P.O. Box 2968, New Haven, CT 06515; (203) 389-0183.

• MacNeal Hospital has enhanced its interlibrary loan software, F.I.L.L.S. (Fast Inter Library Loans and Statistics), a package that can track which lending libraries fill orders at the most reasonable cost with the best service, which journals are borrowed repeatedly, and which library and customer loans are outstanding. The upgrade can be used with either On-Tyme or Western Union's Easylink electronic mail system; it can print mailing labels off its library address database; and
