LAW AND POLITICAL SCIENCE SUBSECTION

As part of the American Library Association's Annual Conference in Chicago, the Law and Political Science Section of the Association of College & Research Libraries will hold a panel discussion on "The U.S. Census from 1790-1970: a Multi-Media Approach." Scheduled for Monday, July 26, 1972, at 8:30 p.m., the discussion will focus on the availability and use of census material.

Panel participants are:

Judith S. Rowe, Manager, Princeton-Rutgers Census Data Project, Princeton University, who will discuss the development of social science data archives, the relation of these archives to the traditional library and the problem of bibliographic documentation and control of machine readable data files.

Jerome Clubb, Director of the Historical Archive, Inter-University Consortium for Political Research, University of Michigan, who will discuss the availability of census materials, from 1790 to the present, in machine readable form as well as the availability of related materials such as election statistics and congressional roll call data.

Theodore Hershberg, Director of the Philadelphia Social History Project, University of Pennsylvania, who will describe his project which includes the collection of, and conversion into machine readable form, great quantities of census records relating to population characteristics for nineteenth century Philadelphia.

John C. Beresford, President, National Data Use and Access Laboratories, Inc. (DUALabs), Arlington, Virginia, who will discuss the newly organized Census Laboratory and Clearinghouse project, the goals of which are to provide training and instruction on the use of the census data base, and to provide a clearinghouse service on all aspects of the data base use. This project is being developed by DUALabs under contract to the Center for Research Libraries in accordance with the NSF grant the Center has just received for this project.

The formal presentations will be brief. They will be designed to provide orientation to librarians, many of whom will be familiar only with the printed products of the Bureau of the Census, but who, in order to provide a more complete reference service, would like to learn more about a whole new resource available to them. After their presentations the panelists will attempt to answer questions from the audience.

ART SUBSECTION

Mrs. Florence S. DaLuiso, program chairman of the Art Subsection of ACRL announces the program for the Chicago conference in June. ## JUNIOR MEMBERS ROUND TABLE

JMRT has some exciting plans for the June conference in Chicago. We invite all ALA members who one of our projects interests to join us for fun, professional improvement, and a better ALA.

JMRT's annual orientation session will feature a press conference this year. The editors of American Libraries, Wilson Library Bulletin, Library Journal and School Library Journal have been invited to share their predictions for the conference and interview members of the ALA Executive Board and COPEs. It should be an enlightening experience.

JMRT is planning the first child care facilities for an ALA conference. Professional children's consultants will be employed to care for the children during the day assisted by librarian volunteers. Infants through fourteen-year-olds will be accommodated, with trips through nearby museums for the older children. If you are interested in using the service or assisting JMRT in maintaining, contact Nancy Schimmel, San Mateo County Library, Belmont, CA 94022.

Another exciting project sponsored by JMRT is a daily convention newspaper. Reporters will attend assigned meetings and submit reports for the newspaper which will be edited and prepared each evening. ALA headquarters has generously offered its producing facilities and staff for the printing phase which will be completed each morning at the ALA headquarters. Three thousand copies will be distributed to ALA attendees daily, Sunday through Friday.

It is hoped that this newsheet will promote a better understanding of conference activities. The newsheet will communicate to the membership the events of the preceding day and a highlight of the forthcoming day's activities in an objective and factual capsulized format. Anyone interested in participating in any phase of this project should contact Catherine O'Connell, Linthicum Library, 400 Shipley Road, Linthicum, MD 21090. ■■
