Celebrating Our Successes, Confronting Our Challenges: ACRL Enters the 21st Century

ACRL President Larry Hardesty leads academic librarians into the new century by inviting us to examine our successes over the past quarter century, our contemporary challenges, and the issues we'll face in the new millennium. Evan Farber will recap the past 25 years from his vantage point as a longtime leader among academic librarians. Carla Stoffle will speak from her perspective as an innovator of contemporary models for academic library administration. Emily Mobley, notable authority on scholarly communication and research libraries, will speak to the complexities of our future. Rick Ekman, a prominent leader in the higher education community, will respond to the ideas presented by these distinguished librarians and bring us the views of a more-than-casually interested supporter of libraries. Speakers: Evan Farber, librarian, Emeritus, Earlham College; Carla Stoffle, dean, Libraries, University of Arizona; Emily Mobley, dean, Libraries, Purdue University; Rick Ekman, vice-president, Programs, Atlantic Philanthropic Service Co.

Preconferences

Wednesday, July 5 – Friday, July 7

ACRL Rare Books and Manuscripts Section: Beyond Words: Visual Information in Special Collections

Throughout the 20th century, the amount of information recorded and communicated visually rather than verbally increased dramatically. For special collections librarians, collecting, preserving, and providing intellectual access to visual information have always been major challenges. This preconference will focus on some of the myriad forms of visual information found in our collections. Scholars and librarians will explore trends in visual studies and discuss the challenges and opportunities offered by proliferating electronic tools and formats. Speakers: George H. Roeder Jr., School of the Art Institute of Chicago; David Woodward, University of Wisconsin, Madison; Ron Grim, Library of Congress; Peter Bacon Hales, University of Illinois, Chicago; Amy Rule, University of Arizona; Sid Huttner, University of Iowa; Helena Zinkham, Library of Congress; Susan Allen, Getty Research Library. Registration fees: ACRL member - $195; Nonmember - $230; Student - $75. Registration for the RBMS preconference can be found at <http://outreach.lib.uic.edu/rbms2000/>.

Friday, July 7

Instruction Section: Library Instruction on the Web

Learn how to effectively offer Web based instruction to distance learners and to students on campus. Immerse yourself in the issues and techniques surrounding the delivery of instruction via the Web. Speakers: Nancy Dewald, Pennsylvania State; Lori Dubois, University of Illinois; Dena Hutto, Reed College, and Karen Diller, Washington State University; Ruth Dickstein, University of Arizona; Piernia Parise, Emporia State University; Claire Dougherty, Northwestern University; and Dennis Glenn, Northwestern University. Registration fees: ACRL member - $175; ALA member - $220; Nonmember - $265; Student - $120. More information and registration forms are available at: www.ala.org/acrl/confhp.html.

Cover: Swan Lake. Original artwork by Carlos Nine, Argentina. Technique: pastel; Legend: "The Announcement." Original publisher and date of publication: Grimm Press, Taipei, pending publication in 2000. The art is part of the 2000 Illustrators Exhibit on display at Northwestern University Library (April 24–June 4, 2000) and was reproduced with permission of the Bologna Children's Book Fair, Bologna, Italy.

Friday, July 7

Legislative Advocacy: Key Roles for Today's Academic Librarians

Legislative issues and congressional actions increasingly impact and change the environment in which librarians and academic libraries operate. Learn from experts the skills you need to become a strong advocate for academic library and higher education issues whether on campus or at the local, state, or federal level. Speakers: Stephanie Vance, AdVanced Consulting; Richard Schoell, University of Illinois; Anne Beaubien, University of Michigan; and Emily Sheketoff, American Library Association – Washington Office. Registration fees: ACRL member - $50; ALA member - $85; Nonmember - $105. More information and registration forms are available at: www.ala.org/acrl/confhp.html.

Friday, July 7

Shining A Flashlight on the Library, Technology, and the Curriculum - Designing Your Own Study

Participate in this landmark institute and gather information for your institution that will help you improve learning by improving the match between the information environment and the academic program! Hear about a new set of survey tools designed by the Flashlight Program in collaboration with ACRL for evaluating information resources and services in a technological environment. Learn how to build an institutional team representing the library, administration, academic program, and technological services; discover how to identify and support a crucial evaluation study; and plan an evaluation of information use by a specific element of your academic program. Speaker: Robin Zuniga, The Flashlight Program, TLT Group, Inc. Registration fees: ACRL member - $150; ALA member - $210; Nonmember: $250. More information and registration forms are available at: www.ala.org/acrl/confhp.html.

Friday, July 7

Understanding the Licensing Landscape

In addition to changes in the prioritization of issues of concern to a library, the number of licenses handled by libraries has grown exponentially. This change in scale means that it is even more important to have in place sound practices for tracking licenses, as well as policies and procedures that encourage or enforce compliance with the terms of the contract. During this one-day preconference, explore core issues to address in license negotiation, discuss selected problems and solutions in licensing language, examine current "hot" issues, recommend negotiation techniques, share negotiation strategies, and discover if the current licensing model is sustainable as libraries attempt to manage an ever-increasing number of licenses and contracts. Speakers: Ivy Anderson, Harvard University; Ann Okerson, Yale University Library; and Kimberly Parker, Yale University Library. Registration fees: ACRL member - $130; ALA member - $170; Nonmember - $220; Student - $120. More information and registration forms are available at: www.ala.org/acrl/confhp.html.

Programs

Saturday, July 8

9:30 a.m.–11:30 a.m.

ACRL Community and Junior College Libraries Section and Distance Learning Section

New Trends in Accreditation/Distance Learning Programs

This program will investigate trends in the accreditation process in higher education and how these trends affect library programming, in particular distance learning services. The program will include an overview of accreditation, a practical approach to using the new Baldrige criteria, a discussion of the distance learning standards and accreditation, and how one accrediting agency handles library assessment. Speakers: Bernie Sloan, senior library information systems consultant, University of Illinois, Office Planning and Budgeting; Oswald Ratteray, assistant director for Constituent Services and Special Programs, Middle States Commission on Higher Education; Monica Posey, director of Institutional Research and Planning, Cincinnati State Technical and Community College; Kathryn C. O'Gorman, library director, Cincinnati State Technical and Community College.

10:00 a.m.–12:00 p.m.

Technology and the Arts Interest Group, ACRL/LITA

Visual Literacy: What It Is, How We Use It, How We Teach It

Interpreting visual imagery, and understanding the messages, both hidden and overt, are new skills we—librarians, patrons, faculty and researchers— need for the increasingly visual way information is packaged and delivered on the Web. Panelists will address the cataloging, metadata, and teaching challenges involved in developing a new eye for traditional and electronic visual messages. Speakers: Jeanne Korda, cataloger, Library of Congress Prints & Photographs, and former librarian, BBC; Angela T. Spinazze, founder, ATSPIN consulting, a consulting firm for museums; Marta J. Huszar, professor, Graphic Design, University of Illinois at Chicago.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL African-American Studies Librarians Section, Women's Studies Section, Asian, African, and Middle Eastern Section; Black Caucus of the American Library Association

Future Challenges for Ethnic and Cultural Academic Collections

How is a core collection defined for an academic ethnic or cultural collection? How should we preserve the out-of-print and the historical materials? Should these collections be integrated or segregated from the consortium collections? What role should ethnic and cultural academic collections play in the future? Panel members representing collections and library services to Spanish Speaking (REFORMA), African American (AFAS), American Indian (AILA), and Chinese-American (CALA) will be the focus. The AFAS General Membership will begin at 3:30 p.m. Speakers: Lillian Castillo-Speed, Ethnic Studies Library, University of California, Berkeley; Lisa Pillow, Black Studies Library, Ohio State University; John Berry, Oklahoma State University; Ling Hwey Jeng, School of Library & Information Science, University of Kentucky.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL ARTS Section

Is Seeing Understanding? Approaches to Visual/Media Literacy in an Information Age

As new media packages and technologically rich cultural experiences are designed and created, it will be important for a variety of institutions to instruct their users in how to extract worthwhile information from these sources. Unless users can effectively interpret this imagery, a significant portion of the information literacy fabric will be seriously weakened. Speakers: Mary Keelan, director, Development, Advocacy, and Media, Mid Hudson Library System, Poughkeepsie, NY; Sally Mason-Robinson, director, Library Projects, National Video Resources, Chicago; Paula C. Murphy, librarian, Research Services, Chicago Historical Society; Peter M. Neal, director, Education, Corp. for Public Broadcasting, Washington, D.C.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL Education and Behavioral Sciences Section

Collaborative Cool: Partnerships that Produce

The Chicago Historical Society has sought to make its collections useful to a variety of different audiences, using both building-based programs and the Internet, through collaborations with other institutions and agencies. This program will highlight several of these collaborations, the creation of online K-12 curriculum materials, and the Electronic Encyclopedia of Chicago History. Speaker: Douglas Greenberg, president, Chicago Historical Society.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL Media Resources Committee; ALA Video Round Table

Byting into Video: DVD and Networked Delivery

Video collections in libraries are in a state of transition. Our panel will update academic and public librarians, administrators, and other interested parties about the current status of video formats in libraries and the trends with regard to digital video and networked delivery. Speakers: Walt Crawford, senior analyst, Research Libraries Group; Karen C. Lund, digital conversion specialist, National Digital Library Program, Library of Congress; Judy Napier, director, AV Services, Schaumburg (IL) Township District Library; Claire Dougherty, director, Northwestern University, New Media Center.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL University Libraries Section, College Libraries Section

20/20 Vision for the Future

This program will provide perspectives on the library of the future in the context of vast changes impacting the dynamic environment of higher education. Speakers will outline new visions to expand our view of the role of libraries and librarians, challenging our traditional concepts, and presenting new models that will determine the role and influence of librarians within the culture of academe. Speakers: John V. Lombardi, professor, History, director, The Center for Studies in the Humanities and Social Sciences. Respondents: Jerry D. Campbell, chief information officer and dean, University Libraries, University of Southern California; Carol Ann Hughes, interim director, Information and Research Services, University of Iowa; Micheline Jedrey, vice-president for information services and college librarian, Wellesley College.

Sunday, July 9

9:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.

ACRL Anthropology and Sociology Section

Sociological and Anthropological Research in Transition: Trans-disciplinary Collaboration, Qualitative/Quantitative Rapprochement

Social scientists seem to be rediscovering each other through cooperative research, work in common research arenas, and use of similar data now almost ubiquitously available. At the same time, most are rediscovering the interconnectedness of research on the populations they study. This panel asks whether this will be a persistent pattern and what librarians need to know as facilitators. Speakers: Kathleen Parks, assistant director, Committee on Demographic Training, National Opinion Research Center (NORC), University of Chicago; Tom W. Smith, director, National Opinion Research Center (NORC), University of Chicago; Jennifer Hiselman, research associate, Illinois Criminal Justice Information Authority; Jocelyn Tipton, data librarian, Will Wheeler Collections, Yale University Social Science Library.

9:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.

ACRL Copyright Committee, Government Relations Committee

The Digital Millennium Copyright Act: Responding to the Requirements of the Act

A panel of copyright specialists and experts will review how the requirements of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act have been implemented at institutions and from a national perspective. Topics covered will include distance education, electronic reserves, and education programs at academic and research libraries. Keynote Speaker: Peggy E. Hoon, scholarly communication librarian, North Carolina State University Campus. Speakers: Carrie Russell, copyright specialist, ALA Office for Information Technology Policy; Elizabeth E. Kirk, librarian, Electronic and Distance Education, Johns Hopkins University; Lorre Smith, librarian, Digital Library Initiatives, University at Albany Libraries.

9:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m.

ACRL Law and Political Science Section

Legal Web Sites Aren't Just for Lawyers: Finding and Using Law-Related Web Sites

This panel presentation will use a show-and-tell approach to teach the intricacies of locating and evaluating law-related Web sites. Tips and guidelines on avoiding the unauthorized practice of law will be discussed, as well as suggestions for promoting law-related sites to your patrons. Speakers: Christopher Simoni, associate dean, Library & Information Services, law professor, Northwestern University Law School Library; Susan E. Parker, associate dean, Library Operations, California State University, Northridge; Merle J. Slyhoff, librarian, Document Delivery and Auxiliary Services, University of Pennsylvania Law Library.

10:00 a.m.–12:30 p.m.

ACRL College Libraries Section, Standards Committee, Continuing Education Committee, ACRL Standards and Accreditation Committee

Applying the New Standards for College Libraries

The new edition of the "Standards for College Libraries" provides a quantitative and qualitative approach to assessing the effectiveness of a library's services, resources, and staff. This program will review the development of the Standards, followed by short presentations on their application. Note: The College Library Section business meeting will take place from 9:30 a.m. until 10:00 a.m. preceding the program. Speakers: Willis Bridegam, college librarian, Amherst College; Dave Pilachowski, college librarian, Williams College; Sharon McCaslin, assistant professor/serials librarian, Longwood College; Richard Hart, head librarian, Pennsylvania State University, Erie; James Mullins, university librarian, Villanova University; Bonnie Gratch Lindauer, librarian, Reference/Instruction, City College of San Francisco; Rebecca Bostian, director, University Library, Governors State University; Bill Nelson, library director, Augusta State University; Bob Fernekes, librarian, Reference/User Education, University of SC, Aiken.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL English and American Literature Section

Collecting Contemporary Fiction for the New Millennium

As librarians, we are faced with bewildering choices in building these collections. Selecting from new authors, Third World authors, gay materials, and genre and popular fiction, for example, force difficult decisions. We will examine the publication cycle of fiction from writing and marketing to the acquisition and collection development responsibilities of libraries. Speakers: Deborah Jakubs, director, Collections Services, Perkins Library, Duke University; Bob Nardini, senior vice-president, head bibliographer, Collection Management Services, Yankee Book Peddler; Nancy Kushigian, librarian, Humanities/Social Sciences, Shields Library, University of California-Davis; Julia Alvarez, professor, English, Middlebury College, novelist, Yo!, In the Time of the Butterflies, How the Garcia Girls Lost Their Accents, The Other Side - El Otro Lado and Something to Declare.

2:00 p.m.–4:00 p.m.

ACRL Slavic and East European Section

New Expectations in the Quest for East European Information:
Academic Librarians as a Beacon for American Scholars

During the Cold War expectations for librarians depended on their ability to retrieve material and information to which scholars had limited access. Scholars often depended on U.S. research institutions to find and provide the material through exchange agreements or institution collections. Since 1989 the new openness in Eastern Europe and the FSU have allowed scholars better access to travel and collect primary research material in their target countries. Speakers: June Pachuta Farris, bibliographer, Slavic & East European Studies, Regenstein Library, University of Chicago; Allan Urbanic, Slavic & East European librarian, University of California Berkeley; Teresa Tickle, Slavic, East European, and Central Asian bibliographer, Michigan State University; Maria Bucur-Deckard, The John W. Hill Assistant Professor of East European History, Indiana University, Bloomington; Brad Schaffner, head, Library Slavic Department., bibliographer for Russia, University of Kansas, Lawrence.

2:00 p.m.–4:30 p.m.

ACRL Instruction Section; American Association of School Librarians

Instruction for First-Year Students

First-year college students are often net-savvy and graphically oriented, and more likely to have shorter attention spans. Students are also coming to campus with differing levels of technological expertise. This program will explore characteristics of these students, survey what they are learning about information resources and strategies in high school, and investigate programmatic innovations at the institutional and library levels that meet first-year students' needs. Speakers: Randy Burke Hensley, head, Public Services Division, Manoa Libraries, University of Hawaii; Frances Jacobson, librarian, University Laboratory High School, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign; Margit Misangyi Watts, director, Rainbow Advantage/Freshman Seminar Programs, University of Hawaii.

2:00 p.m.–5:30 p.m.

ACRL Rare Books and Manuscripts Section

Artifacts in Libraries: The Intersection of Library and Museum Practice in Rare Book and Manuscript Repositories

The program will ask questions about the evolution of rare book and manuscript repositories in the digital library environment. How are current trends and practices, such as new technologies and methodologies, influencing the place of physical collections in libraries? And how will curators and librarians navigate these trends to enhance the preservation of, and access to, our cultural heritage? Speakers: Nicholas A. Basbanes, author; Douglas Greenberg, president, Chicago Historical Society.

Monday, July 10

8:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.

ACRL Science and Technology Section; ALCTS Collection Management and Development Section, Collection Development and Electronic Media Committee

Communication and Information Models for the New Millennium: Scientists and Librarians Face the Future

As we look for ways to retain our relevancy with the “Nintendo Generation,” speakers will discuss what roles librarians can and should be taking to develop, organize, and integrate scholarly information to reach students, educators, and researchers of the future. Following the program, poster sessions will highlight innovative roles librarians are already taking at the beginning of the new millennium. Speakers: Michael Barnett, head, Particle Data Group, Lawrence Berkeley National Laboratory; Bob Pisciotta, associate director, Library Operations, Dykes Library, University of Kansas Medical Center; Julia Blixrud, assistant director, Public Programs for SPARC; Roy Tennant, project manager, Digital Library, University of California, Berkeley.

9:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m.

ACRL Women’s Studies Section, Asian, African, and Middle Eastern Section, African-American Studies Librarian’s Section

Taking the Temperature of Women’s Studies In The Year 2000

An opportunity for in-depth discussion of the role of women’s studies scholarship and librarianship at the turn of the millennium. Attendees will be asked to join one of four group discussions on the following topics: changes in the disciplines, the impact of electronic resources and access, the institutional location(s) of women’s studies, and changing modes of instruction. Speakers: Ellen Broidy, library publications officer, History, Film Studies & Classics, University of California, Irvine; Sarah M. Pritchard, university librarian, Davidson Library, University of California, Santa Barbara; Dolores Fidishun, head librarian, Pennsylvania State Great Valley School of Graduate Professional Studies; Sandy River, current periodicals/microform librarian, Texas Tech University.

9:30 a.m.–11:00 a.m.

ACRL Intellectual Freedom Committee; ALA Intellectual Freedom Committee; ALA Intellectual Freedom Round Table

Intellectual Freedom Principles for Academic Libraries: An Illustrated Tour

Examines these principles in relation to the challenges that can potentially be experienced in an academic library—in exhibits, user privacy, the Internet, building access, and in joint-use facilities. Intellectual Freedom Principles for Academic Libraries is an official ACRL interpretation of the Library Bill of Rights for Academic Libraries. Keynote Speaker: C. James Schmidt, professor, Library and Information Science, San Jose California State University. Speakers: Barbara M. Jones, head, Special Collections, University of Illinois, Urbana; Samuel F. Morrison, director, Broward County Libraries Division, Ft. Lauderdale.

9:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.

ACRL Racial and Ethnic Diversity Committee

Sharing Strategies for Achieving Diversity: Identifying and Increasing the Recruitment and Retention of Under-represented Librarians

A sharing of concerns and an identification of successful recruitment, retention, and leadership strategies. We will share diversity concerns, strategies, and perspectives from an African American, Asian American, Hispanic American, Native American, along with the leadership perspective. Speakers: Camilla Alire, dean, Libraries, Colorado State University, Ft. Collins; Stanton F. Biddle, professor, librarian, Administrative Services, Baruch College, City University of New York; DeEtta Jones, senior program officer, Office for Diversity, Association of Research Libraries, Washington, D.C.; Janice T. Koyama, associate university librarian, Public Services, UCLA Libraries, University Research Library; Elayne Waldstedter, outreach librarian, John F. Reed Library, Ft. Lewis College, Durango, Colorado. Facilitator: George Lupone, associate director, Cleveland Ohio State University Library.

9:30 a.m.–12:00 p.m.

ACRL Western European Specialists Section

Italian Studies and Italian Cultural Presence in North America: A Tribute to the Life and Contributions of Mario Casalini

A focus on various aspects of Italian cultural history, publishing, and bibliography and their representations and interests on the North American academic and library scenes. Dedicated to the memory of the Italian vendor Mario Casalini (1926–1998), who was of seminal importance over the past 40 years in the building of Italian-oriented academic library collections in North America. Keynote Speaker: Dante Della Terza, Irving Babbitt professor of comparative literature, Emeritus, Harvard University and professor Emeritus, Italian Literature, Università Federico II, Naples. Speakers: John Tedeschi, distinguished academic librarian, Emeritus, University of Wisconsin, Madison, “Transatlantic Correspondence: Roland H. Bainton and Delio Cantimori, 1932–1966”; Ingrid Rowland, associate professor, Department of Art History and the College, University of Chicago, an expert in Italian Renaissance art; Paul Gehl, custodian, John M. Wing Foundation on the History of Printing, Newberry Library, Chicago.

8:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.

*ACRL Science and Technology Section; ALCTS Collection Management & Development Section, Collection Development and Electronic Media Committee
Poster Session - Held Conjointly with the Conference Program*

Communication and Information Models for the New Millennium: Scientists and Librarians Face the Future

The poster session will feature projects and activities of librarians who have extended their roles and responsibilities to meet the challenges of developing, organizing, and integrating scholarly information to reach the needs of students, educators, and researchers of the future. Note: the poster session will begin at 10:45 a.m., following the conference program. Presenters: Kate Manuel, California State University, Hayward; Joseph R. Kraus, Patricia Fisher, University of Denver; Melanie A. Gardner, Alesia McManus, University of Maryland, College Park; David Flaxbart, University of Texas, Austin; Ibiwonke Lawal, University of Virginia; Helen Smith, Penn State; Colleen Bell, University of Oregon; Jean Poland, Zsuzsa Koltay, Cornell University.

ANSS—Jane Addams Hull House Museum Tour

On Tuesday, July 11, 2000 at 10:00 a.m. there will be a tour of the Jane Addams Hull-House Museum at 800 S. Halsted Street, Chicago, Illinois. The Hull-House Museum is located on the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) campus. Lynn C. Hattendorf Westney, a member of the ANSS Program Planning Committee 2000 and a reference librarian in UIC's Main Library, will be on hand to greet everyone. It is recommended that attendees arrive about 9:45 a.m. so that the tour can start on time. It should last approximately an hour. Afterwards, Professor Westney will be happy to escort attendees around the campus and/or through the Main Library. To get to the Hull-House Museum and the University of Illinois at Chicago from the downtown area, take a CTA Blue Line rapid transit train west and get off at the UIC/Halsted station, which is the first stop after the train comes up from underground. Walk approximately 1 block and a half south on Halsted Street and the Hull-House Museum is on the west side of the street next to Chicago Circle Center and across from two parking lots.

New from ACRL

Literature in English: A Guide for Librarians in the Digital Age, Publications in Librarianship no. 54

Betty H. Day, William A. Wortman, editors

This book addresses concerns related to the acquisition, organization, and use of information sources related to the study and teaching of English literature. The changed literary canon, the expanded range of research and course interests, and the impact of new electronic resources on traditional print are among the issues discussed. With sections devoted to resources and collections, and readers and services, this volume is an essential work for librarians who are new, working actively, or simply taking on a new assignment in reference and/or collection development in the field of literature in English. List: $32.00; ACRL member: $29.00; ISBN 0-8389-8081-3

The Collaborative Imperative: Librarians and Faculty Working Together in the Information Universe

Dick Raspa and Dane Ward, editors

This is a book about librarian and faculty collaboration—as it exists now and as it could exist. The authors define collaboration as two or more people bringing their separate competencies to bear on a problem to work for a solution richer in options than might have been possible working alone. They believe collaboration will be the next great transition in higher education. Included in this book are a series of essays, a review of literature, case studies of exemplary programs at the institutional level, reports of surveys of informal collaborations, a directory of resources, as well as theoretical models of the collaborative enterprise. The focus is on developments within and beyond the instructional arena. This book will challenge readers to risk engaging in the collaborative process at their institution. List: $24.00; ACRL member: $21.50; ISBN 0-8389-8085-6
