People in the news

DONALD J. BARRETT has received the Colorado Library Association's Lifetime Achievement Award for 1990. Barrett has served the U.S. Air Force Academy Library since 1955, first as chief of reference and since 1959 as assistant director for public services. He was project officer for the transfer of the library from Lowry AFB to Colorado Springs in 1958 and later was project manager for a $4.5 million Academic Library expansion project. He currently serves as a resource person for the Colorado Library Association, sharing his expertise on strategic planning, buildings, accreditation and academic libraries. He was the first chairman of the College Section of CLA and has been Academic Library Representative on the Governing Board for over 10 years. He has also served on various committees of the Plains and Peaks Regional Library System.

ROBERT A. DRESCHER has been named executive director of CLASS (Cooperative Library Agency for Systems and Services), headquartered in San Jose, California. He previously served as manager of the Library Development Bureau at the New Jersey State Library, which is the library consultation, library extension and library grant management agency of New Jersey. CLASS is a membership-based organization dedicated to promoting library cooperation, automation, and resource sharing among all types of libraries and information centers.

DOROTHY-ELLEN GROSS has been promoted to associate dean for academic support at North Park College and Theological Seminary, Chicago, Illinois. As associate dean, Gross will assist the provost by providing oversight of various academic departments which serve both the college and the seminary. She will continue as director of the consolidated libraries and of media services, and will also have oversight of the Covenant Archives, the Center for Scandinavian Studies, and academic computing. Furthermore, Gross has been appointed coordinator of faculty development for the college, a new position created in connection with a Lilly Foundation grant. The librarians at North Park are particularly pleased by Gross's promotion because they regard it as evidence of their success in pursuing the model of the teaching library and evidence that the library is completely integrated into the matrix of the college.

RAUL ANTONIO HUERTA, head of learning resources at Mohawk Valley Community College, has been appointed by the New York State Board of Regents to a three-year term on the Library Services and Construction Act Advisory Council. The 12-member council meets four times annually and advises the state library agency on development of the LSCA plan for New York and related policy matters, assists in the evaluation of activities supported by the Act, and advises on other matters such as preparation of long-range plans and annual program statements for Titles I, II, and III.

JAY H. LAMBRECHT, catalog librarian at the University of Illinois at Chicago, has received a 1990-1991 Robert Vosper fellowship from the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions. It is one of two fellowships awarded annually to "outstanding librarians with an interest in and commitment to the international aspects of library service" and provides $10,000 to enable a recipient to carry out research connected with issues deemed important by the federation. During a 3-month leave provided by UIC, Lambrecht will study the implications of cost-cutting measures on bibliographic control. Lambrecht chairs ALA's Association for Library Collections and Technical Services and recently completed 4 years of service on ALA's Committee on Cataloging.

RITVA LAUNO was elected president of the International Federation for Information and Documentation at its general assembly meeting in Havana, Cuba. Launo is currently manager of information services at Alko Ltd., the Finnish state alcohol company, and chairman of the advisory board to the course on information services and information resources management at the Helsinki University of Technology. Trained as both a chemist and an information specialist, she has worked in the chemical industry in the U.S. as well as Finland.

CHARLES SARGENT, formerly director of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Library, is the project director on a federal grant awarded to the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio. Sargent will manage the daily activities of the two-year grant, a project designed to develop a strategic plan for the future development of the Georgetown University's automated Library Information System (LIS). The San Antonio center is one of more than 25 medical libraries using the LIS system.

RUTH SEIDMAN, head of the science and engineering library at MIT, has been appointed to the Massachusetts delegation to the White House Conference on Libraries. Assistant librarian Mark Scott will be first alternate delegate.

DOROTHY SWANSON, Tamiment Librarian at New York University Libraries, New York City, was presented the Commerford Award by the New York Labor History Association on November 30, 1990, for her exemplary efforts to further labor history and education.

Profiles

CLARA M. CHU has joined the faculty of UCLA's Graduate School of Library and Information Science (GSLIS) as an assistant professor. Chu will receive her Ph.D. this year from the University of Western Ontario, where she also studied for her M.L.S. Chu has worked in special libraries and was technical editor for a major bibliography project at the University of Western Ontario which indexed all pre-1914 Canadian and foreign material published on Canadian science and technology. She has published extensively. At GSLIS, Chu teaches research methodology, library service to special population groups and subject access to information. Not surprisingly, her research interests include multicultural librarianship: Chu was born in Peru and lived there until she was 10, then emigrated to Canada, and holds dual citizenship in Canada and Peru while she teaches in California.

CAROL K. DIPRETE has been appointed to the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science for a term expiring on July 19, 1991. She is dean of academic services and director of the library at Roger Williams College in Bristol, Rhode Island. Currently DiPrete is serving a 1989-1991 term as president of the Consortium of Rhode Island Academic and Research Libraries and has just finished a term as president of the Rhode Island Library Association. She is on the ALA standing committee on chapter relations. Her MLS is from the University of Maryland at College Park, and she has an MS from Oklahoma State University at Stillwater.

PETER GOY has assumed the post of vice-president of the Ukrainische Freie Universitat in Munich after serving on the library faculty at City College, New York from 1961 to 1989. Goy completed his undergraduate and doctoral studies at the Ukrainische Freie Universitat before taking his MLS at Columbia University, where he was a member of the library staff from 1955 to 1961. At the City College Library Goy served in acquisitions, cataloging, science, and reference. He worked as a bibliographer, expanding the Library's collections in Russian Area studies, ethnicity, anthropology, and sociology. He organized and was an instructor in and advisor to the City College Slavic-American Studies Program from 1972 to 1982. In addition, Goy has taught courses in Munich, London, Zagreb, Belgrade, and Skopje on bibliographic control of Slavic materials, the history of eastern Europe, and Slavic culture and civilization. His many books include Bibliography of Reference Materials for Russian Area Studies (1962), Russian Area Studies at the City College (1964), Diccionario Tecnico de Biblioteconomia, Espanol-Ingles. Technical Dictionary of Librarianship, English-Spanish, 1st-5th eds. (1964-1980), Slavs in America: a Selected Bibliography (1981), and Ukrainian-Muscovite Relations During Preparation of New War with Poland: End of 1650 Till the Treaty of Bila Tserkva (1984).

KRIZA A. JENNINGS has joined the staff of the Association of Research Libraries (ARL) Office of Management Services (OMS) as trainer. In addition to her training and staff development duties, Jennings will be responsible for the design and development of OMS institutes on managing diversity in the workplace. These institutes are being developed through ARL's new initiative, "Meeting the Challenges of a Culturally Diverse Environment," which is funded by the H.W. Wilson

Kriza A. Jennings

Foundation. Jennings comes to OMS from United Theological Seminary Library in Dayton, Ohio, where she served as reference librarian. Her previous professional positions include acting division chief and library administrator at the National Afro-American Museum and Cultural Center, Wilberforce, Ohio, as well as coordinator of public services and librarian for resource development at Wright State University's Fordham Health Sciences Library in Dayton. Jennings has also worked as a freelance librarian and has directed her own consulting firm. In addition, she served as an adjunct instructor for Wright State University's School of Education in Dayton and for Kent State University's School of Library Science in Kent, Ohio. Jennings received her bachelor's from Central State University in Wilberforce, Ohio, a master's in education from Wright State University, and an MLS from Kent State University. In 1988 she was selected Distinguished Alumna of the Year for the Kent State University School of Library Science.

SUSAN F. SAUL received the 1990 LITA/CLSI scholarship for $2,500. The award is made to a student enrolled in an ALA-accredited program in library and information science with an emphasis on library automation. Saul has completed two-thirds of her course work for the MLS at Simmons College Graduate School of Library and Information Science in Boston, Massachusetts. A Wellesley College graduate, she worked as a systems engineer for several years at IBM. Then, while her children were young, she was a volunteer in a school library and a synagogue library. She then reentered the workplace, first as a library assistant at her local library, which participates in a CLSI automated network and later at the network offices, where she continues to work on the consortium's retrospective database conversion for 24 member libraries.

A native of Washington, D.C., Shepherd had been an associate professor at Indiana University's School of Library and Information Science since 1967. Before that, he worked as systems and operations manager and systems analyst for the American Society of Metals and for the UNIVAC division of Sperry Rand. At Indiana, his research centered on computer applications in all aspects of libraries and information centers, particularly the development of micro-computer-based models for automation activities. Shepherd earned his A.B. and master's degrees from the University of Maryland and did post-master's work at both the University of Pennsylvania and the American University. ■ ■

Call for poster sessions

Librarians who have dealt with technology as a barrier to information literacy are invited to participate in poster sessions as part of the ACRL Bibliographic Instruction Section 1991 Program, "Technology as a barrier to Information Literacy: Implications for Bibliographic Instruction."

The poster sessions will allow individuals to present how they or their institutions have responded to institutional or political barriers caused by not having the technology, as well as individual barriers (psychological, gender, cultural) to using the technology.

If you are interested, please send a description of your proposed poster session to: Mary Beth Allen, 146 Main Library, University of Illinois, 1408 West Gregory Drive, Urbana, IL 61801; (217) 244-1870.

Task force recommends increased paraprofessional participation

Increased participation by paraprofessionals has been recommended by the ACRL Task Force on Paraprofessionals.

Chaired by Sheila D. Creth, University of Iowa, the task force recommended publication of articles and program planning of interest to paraprofessionals as well as establishing an award for paraprofessionals. The task force also recommended encouraging paraprofessional participation in ACRL.

Copies of the report, which was submitted to the ACRL Executive Committee, will be distributed to chapters who can best address paraprofessional concerns at a local level.

Additional copies can be requested by writing: Paraprofessional in Academic Libraries Report, ACRL, American Library Association, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611.
