PROFILE

NATALIE NICHOLSON, whose experience with the administration of academic and research libraries spans more than thirty years, has been appointed the director of the MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY libraries. She has been associate director of the MIT libraries since 1958 and acting director since last July.

Ms. Nicholson has undertaken numerous professional and consulting assignments for the Special Libraries Association and the American Libraries Association and has published extensively in professional journals. Last May she received the Alumni Achievement Award from the Simmons College School of Library Science.

Ms. Nicholson said she hopes to develop new information services at MIT tailored to individual users in the various libraries, through applications of new technology.

NECROLOGY

California librarians were saddened to learn of the death of DONALD CONEY in February of this year. He was university librarian at the UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Berkeley from 1945-1968—a twenty-three year period which encompassed the great period of growth of the university and its libraries. Mr. Coney was active in ALA and the California Library Association. ■■
