

New Periodicals of 1960—Part II

By GERALDINE KAUFMAN

THE SEVERAL new magazines in the sciences will very likely surprise no one; the considerable number in medicine, some on unusual facets, will undoubtedly interest many. Not a small number of journals have been undertaken to "explain" individual nations or cultures to the rest of the world.

BOOKS. BIBLIOGRAPHY. The Miniature Book Collector will contain articles about miniature books for the pleasure of the devotees of that art. The new publication is a self example, measuring four inches (10.2 cm.) in height. The periodicals indexed in An Index to Book Reviews in the Humanities are assigned numbers. The items indexed are arranged by author of the book reviewed, followed by the title of the book reviewed, the name of the reviewer (when known) the number assigned to the periodical, its date and, last, the page in the periodical having the review. Greek Bibliography, an official publication, will list Greek writings in the arts, belles-lettres, science, and technology, excluding text books, special interest scientific publications, material on economics and business in general, and translations of foreign works (unless classics). The items are listed by author or title under the Dewey Classification. The Boletim Internacional de Bibliografia Luso-Brasileira, whose publication is guaranteed for at least five years by the Fundação Calouste Gulbenkian, is in two main sections. The "Registo bibliográfico" lists works, studies, periodical articles, and reviews (chiefly, 1960) published on subjects of interest to the Lusobrazilian Coloquia. To secure broader advantages, the next section (Anexos) contains such groupings as: "Trabalhos no prelo," "Trabalhos em preparação," "Teses de licenciatura dactilografadas," "Consultas," "Bibliofilia,"

Miss Kaufman is Head of the Serials Section, Descriptive Cataloging Section, Library of Congress.

"Recensões," "Bibliografias críticas," "Fundos de manuscritos," (a sizeable section) "Índices de revistas," [Museu Ilustrado, 1878-1880; Gabinete Literário das Fontainhas, 1846-1850] "Intercâmbio cultural," "Varia." The International Atomic Energy Agency is issuing List of Bibliographies on Nuclear Energy in order to give out information and to eliminate duplication. The list is arranged by subjects, under each of which there is listed those bibliographies already published, then those in a state of preparation. Germanistik has undertaken the vast task of showing the progress and development of the study of German language, literature, and philology on an international basis, beginning with 1959. Periodical articles are cited as bibliographical references, monographic publications are accompanied by a brief summary; each issue has the same subject arrangement, partly by type and partly chronological. The publisher hopes to include items from the Eastern Zone.

BUSINESS. TRADE. World Coffee & Tea will reach important coffee and tea firms in the producing countries and in the consuming countries and thus will be concerned with data on widening markets and sales, and on crops and harvests. For example, the May issue includes an article on the size of instant coffee jars and on tea crops in Asia and Africa, country by country discussion. Sponsored by non-competing manufacturers in the food service field, Commercial Kitchen Equipment & Supplies is directed to those who decide what equipment and supplies are to be purchased for their particular service. This highly illustrated magazine will contain articles on new products, activities in industry, technical data, stories of experiences, new literature, etc. Contract; the Magazine of Commercial Furnishing and Planning is published for those who design or purchase contract furnishings. The profusely illustrated first issue contains write-ups of new products, articles, for example, on color in decoration, on lighting, and on testing bedding, on the Centralized Work Control System. Although there are new magazines in this vast field, Packaging Design is aimed exclusively at all those concerned with design—schools, manufacturers of materials, printers, independent and company designers—in an effort to secure both better package design and better package designers. Machine Age is an international industrial news magazine devoted to the use of machinery in all fields. The first issue is arranged by broad subjects (for example, Transport and Communications; Mining and Oilfields; Instruments, Components and Materials) under which are short articles on research, latest developments, methods (under Construction and Public Works is an article on a tunnel under the English Channel). Marine Distribution claims to be the first publication in the field of commercial marine supplies, a go-between for the dealer, distributor, and manufacturer in a growing industry. The first issue includes an illustrated section, "Products Worth Mentioning." Many business magazines are published to emphasize techniques and trends in the production and management of specific fields; Business and Society will try to widen the view of business by presenting the interrelations with the humanities, sciences, and arts. The first issue has articles on the study of values in business as a part of the larger study of human values, on the businessman in politics, business as presented in newspapers, TV, etc. This periodical is published by the Business Research Center, College of Business Administration, Roosevelt University. Although Developments in Commercial Policy is directed principally toward those governments participating in GATT, the publication may be obtained by anyone. It is divided into sections: customs tariffs and charges, quantitative restrictions, bilateral trade agreements, governmental measures of subsidization, and export promotion. Information under the sections is alphabetical by country. Under the co-sponsorship of the Department of Economics, Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania, and of the Institute of Social and Economic Research, Osaka University with financial support from the Kansai Economic Federation and the Rockefeller Foundation, the International Economic Review is founded to introduce new national schools of thought, as the Japanese, and to publish articles primarily on quantitative economics. It will be in English. As the organ of the Institut d'Étude du Développement Economique et Social, Tiers Monde will devote itself to economic and social development on an international scope with contributions from scientists, researchers, teachers, administrators, and "Hommes d'action." The first number is devoted chiefly to an international meeting in Paris, "Planification de l'Éducation et Ses Facteurs Économiques et Sociaux."

COUNTRIES. The African Mirror is a news magazine for the new generation of better educated Africans which will try to reflect Nigeria in development as it looks both backward and forward. The first issue has illustrated articles on a wide range of subjects; e.g., national affairs, business, education, radio, sport, and movies; it contains book reviews. In its work for national prosperity through the growth of private enterprise the Liberia Chamber of Commerce is issuing a Journal to keep everyone informed of the Liberia's progress. The first issue, with il-illustrations including maps and portraits, includes among others, articles on Liberian industry, shipping, highways, and currency (the United States dollar is legal tender in Liberia!). As a voice of the exiled Croatians, Studia Croatica will inform Latin American countries of the history and culture of Croatia, many of whose exiles found refuge and new homes in the American republics. The first issue has several articles on Cardinal Stepinac, brief biographical information about the contributors, and signed book reviews. Scholars of Poland will discuss the problems of Polish Western Territories, east of the Odra and Nysa Rivers, contemporary Germany, and Central Europe as a whole in Polish Western Affairs, a cooperative venture of special research institutes (or scientific societies) established in Poland. Contributions may be in English, French, or German. The first issue has a review section which includes more than books (e.g. "Review of the Discussion on Polish Recovered Territories in the U. S. House of Representatives," Reece—Machrowicz), a section of notes on centers and institutions, and a section of bibliography. As a successor to Soviet Highlights, The Soviet Review will translate the most important and representative articles in the fields of literature and the arts, science and technology, and social analysis and criticism, published in the Soviet Union. The Indian Council for Cultural Relations through Cultural News from India will spread the culture of India throughout other countries. The first issue contains short news articles on organizations, exhibitions, prizes, publications, ceremonies, libraries, schools, manuscripts, etc., arranged by broad subject. Another section, "Cultural Terms," explains Sanskrit words pertaining to Indian literature and religion (in the second issue, pertaining to dances of India). A third section contains bibliographies. Tareas del Pensamiento Peruano intends to be a free, popular, and progressive magazine in clarifying and spreading ideas relative to the democratic development of Peru, in the field of culture. The first issue contains articles on Garcilaso Inca de la Vega, one on José María Arguedas, on the fundamentals of Cuban socialism, on the "liberación del pueblo chino," "declaración de principios del Comité Peruano de Defensa de la Revolución Cubana," etc. Philippine Arts and Architecture intends to present the work of the country's outstanding architects and decorators, and it does so by illustrations, some colored; the first issue has one page of text. After attaining independence, Tunisia is mobilizing its efforts to emerge from a colonial economy, to raise the standard of living of its people. RET; Revue de l'Économie Tunisienne will be a forum for all those who wish to contribute to this goal. The first two issues have articles on olive trees, leathers and hides, phosphates, rural cooperation, and statistics on economic activity. Since Turkey is aligning herself with the West and is a member of most of the international organizations, the Union of Chambers of Commerce, Industry and Commodity Exchanges of Turkey decided that a publication in English was in order to help foment the Western interest in Turkish economic development; hence, the Turkish Economic Review. The first issue includes articles on the laws concerning foreign capital investments, agriculture, iron and steel casting industry, irrigation, decrees which would affect trade, statistics on production and markets. Experts in various fields using verified data and official statistics will provide all types of information on Yugoslavia, in Yugoslav Survey. This periodical, published for English speaking peoples, is based on Jugoslovenski Pregled. The first issue contains several articles on the country's foreign policy, its economy, and other categories.

EDUCATION. FILMS. By publishing reviews of college and university textbooks and criticisms of educational practice and theory, The University Bookman hopes to raise the standards of higher education. The first issue contains the first part of "Education as Part of America's Secular Religion," by Ernest van den Haag and an article reviewing texts in freshman rhetoric, by Warren L. Fleishauer, and a section "News and Notes." For the present, subscribers to National Review will receive this periodical. Studies in Philosophy and Education will contain "technical philosophic inquiries that are carried out in depth," will be a place "where the primary materials are sustained analyses." The journal may contain debates that will be on a continuing basis. The first issue is devoted to "The Community Criterion in Judgmental Practice," by R. B. Raup; this article will be critically appraised in the next issue by Abraham Edel. Formed by the union of Science and Film and Scientific Film Review, Scientific Film [Film] Scientifique is to be a medium of exchange in developments and experiences in cinematographic techniques for members of the International Scientific Film Association. The first issue includes appraisals of films arranged by subjects: chemistry, education, research (i.e. films which illustrate the use of the cinecamera as a research tool).

ELECTRONICS. The purpose of Industrial Electronics is to make known to producers of goods and services the economies and efficiency to be obtained through the use of electronics in measuring or controlling any manufacturing process or business operation. Consequently, the first issue has many small news items, illustrated, on new devices and their use in industry. In addition there are book reviews and notices concerning small publications as bulletins, brochures, and data sheets. The publishers of The Microwave Journal are now beginning The Solid State Journal to be in a similar manner: written by and for those in the solid state industry, articles both technical and non-technical. The technical contributions in the first issue are "A Survey of Tunnel Diodes," "A Review of the Thin Film Cryotron," "Low-Impedance Shunt-Feedback Video Amplifier Design-Part I." To meet the increasing interest in the applications of solid-state physics to electronic technology, Pergamon Press is publishing Solid-State Electronics for an international audience. Contributions may be in English, French, or German preceded by summaries in the same three languages.

GENERAL CULTURE. To sift the printed outpourings and to summarize that material on "frontier problems" is the goal of Current. "Frontier problems" are 3-fold: they relate to our way of life, consider scientific knowledge, and pertain to unsolved questions. The source of the quotation or summary is given and the author is named. The Central Mississippi Valley American Studies Association is starting a Journal to contain "interdisciplinary studies of American culture," with accent on the Middle West and hopes to include articles on special research institutions, the Harry S. Truman Library being the one discussed in the first issue. Signed book reviews are included. By including the best articles on the general culture (art, history, science, literature, music, etc.) of Asia, Eastern Horizon, published in Hong Kong will give a wide understanding of the life and culture of that part of the world. The first issue is illustrated (line drawings and photos) and has brief biographical notes about the contributors. Quest . . . for Tomorrow will probe, analyze, examine, look forward to or look back upon any facet of U. S. life. The first issue, highly illustrated, has articles on missiles from a financial point of view, the Ohio River, food additives, plastics, maintenance men. Under the direction of Daniel Cosío Villegas, the Colegio de México is publishing Foro Internacional with contributors from Mexico and the United States. The first issue has articles ranging from the North American view of international politics to Arab neutrality.

HISTORY. PHILOSOPHY. Revisión Histórica is being issued for Argentinians on Argentinian history. The first issue contains a lengthy article on the social condition of the 19th century laborer in Tucumán and shorter articles, with sections called "Textos Históricos" and "Crónica"; starting with the next issue, there will be a section on books and publications. The Revista de Historia, published in Caracas by the Centro de Estudios Históricos, Universidad Central, hopes to be "un jalón en el empeño de hacer de los estudios históricos herramienta propicia para comprender nuestro pasado, para tener la exacta medida de nuestro presente, y método para poder antever nuestro posible desarrollo." However, the magazine will be open to scholars of American and universal history. A most timely journal is The Journal of African History, edited by R. A. Oliver and J. D. Fage, plus an international advisory editorial board. Among others, the first issue has articles on the Niger River, coins, archives, Ashanti kings, and the Government General of French West Africa. There is also an extensive section of signed book reviews. Journal [of] Southeast Asian History will accept articles on any phase of Southeast Asian history from any scholar. The authors of the articles of the first issue, devoted to "Nationalism in Malaya," are not identified, nor are their qualifications specified. The issue contains signed book reviews and also one long "review article" on "Chinese Secret Societies in Malaya," by L. F. Comber. Heraldisk Tidsskrift, published by the Heraldisk Selskab, will contain articles pertaining to heraldry in the Scandinavian countries, Finland, and Iceland. The first issue contains articles on the seals of individuals (e.g. Christian I of Denmark) on the heraldry of medieval Danish kings and an article on how punched cards can help in the study of heraldry. To the disciplines of the histories of buildings, art, and culture is added that of "die Burgenkunde," exemplified in Burgen und Schlösser in its attempt to stimulate interest and zeal on the part of the public in the preservation of castles and historic houses in all of Europe as well as in Germany. The fathers of the Jesuit Faculties of Philosophy and Theology of Heythrop College, Oxon, England are the directors of The Heythrop Journal. The first issue contains four main articles: "Man and Metaphysics, I"; "Ecumenical Conclusions"; "Tradition, Church, and Dogma"; "Sacred Meals at Qumran?" In addition there are signed book reviews and an annotated selected list of British books on philosophy and theology.

LAW. The Adelaide Law Review will be devoted to the law and legal profession of South Australia in academic and practical interests. In addition to articles by lawyers, the first issue includes discussions of various recent cases and signed book reviews. Under the directorship of Alfredo Buzaid, the Revista de Direito Processual Civil will try to be an impartial forum for opinions on Brazilian law and will also present suggestions from foreign law which may aid in perfecting the national system. It will not be purely theoretical but will also present and analyze specific cases in order to interpret Brazilian law. It will include critical bibliography of both foreign and Brazilian literature. Under the editorship of Daniel J. Cantor, Law Office Economics and Management will stress practical articles on economics and management to the benefit of the small or large law office, the new or experienced lawyer. In Digest of Opinions of Attorneys General, prepared for the National Association of Attorneys General, the items are listed by key words followed by city, state and date in parentheses. The digests are brief and succinct. Democrazia e Diritto will discuss constitutional law with emphasis on Italy under its 1947 Constitution; the first two issues have extensive sections of notes and discussions, signed book reviews, and "giurisprudenza commentata." The journal is published under the auspices of the Associazione Italiana Giuristi Democratici. People in the gas and oil industry, who are also interested in legal aspects, will welcome Oil and Gas Legal Digest which will present in readable and condensed text, cases reflecting legal changes; however, there will be no attempt to present legal advice.

LIBRARIES. The Carrel will publicize the notable collections of the University of Miami Library. The first issue has articles on recent acquisitions of the Library, on the voyages of John Cabot, on Theodore Spicer-Simson and one of the Spicer-Simson lectures. As the official organ of the Association of American Library Schools, The Journal of Education for Librarianship replaces the AALS Directory, the AALS Newsletter, and the association's Reports of the Meetings. As such, it will contain articles on library schools, students, and teachers, and on education for librarianship in general. Although The Church Library Magazine is published by a Southern Baptist agency, the articles could be of interest and use to most church librarians and teachers. The first issue includes articles on audio-visual aids, a play, booklists, book reviews, book selection.

LITERATURE. Analects will contain art reproductions, critical articles, poetry, and short stories by faculty members of and outside speakers at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. Sans book reviews, sans literary criticism, sans politics, Between Worlds will publish any creative works in English, French, German, Italian, Portuguese or Spanish. First Person is described by its subtitle "A Journal of Travel, Memoirs & Humor." The first issue is illustrated, chiefly by portraits of the contributors, among whom are Thornton Wilder, Allan Seager, Ford Madox Ford. Although the main purpose is to publish translations of Greek authors since the War of Independence The Charioteer will accept any material with a Greek theme, or new translations of Greek of any period. The first issue has articles, for example, both by and about Nikos Kazantzakis and Stratis Myrivilis. There are also illustrations by Greek artists. Fresco will publish essays, short stories and poems of new as well as of known writers. Blessed with a most captivating title, The Fat Abbot will concern itself with the excellence of literary quality, not concerning itself with genre, period or author. The Minnesota Review is interested in printing "good writing," the authors are not limited to Minnesotans, and will include fiction, poetry, criticism, and reviews. The magazine is being published under a grant from the McKnight Foundation with Allen Tate as advisory editor.

MAN. Appalled by the damage and destruction to mounds, sites and antiquities by thoughtless collectors and vandals, the editor of Gems & Minerals hit upon the idea of educating these people out of the nuisance class into true amateur archaeologists and anthropologists by hobbies and a magazine devoted to that end; hence, Science of Man. The first issue has a slant toward Mexico, but the magazine will try to deal impartially with all subjects. To understand man in his changes and growth, expected and unexpected, the Journal of Existential Psychiatry will present contributions from various sciences and fields that study the human being. The editorial board is international. As a continuation of Ethnographisch-Archäologische Forschungen, Ethnographisch-Archäologische Zeitschrift will present articles on patterns of the early social development of mankind, with the help of ethnologists and archaeologists primarily from the German Democratic Republic. The first issue has, in addition to general articles, abstracts of doctoral dissertations, news items about expeditions, meetings, and signed book reviews. The Mankind Quarterly, under the editorship of R. Gayre of Gayre, intends to fill the gap caused by the emphasis of studies on the social aspect of mankind rather than on the racial aspect. Articles presented will be objective and scientific, international in scope. Most book reviews included are unsigned; critical ones are initialed or signed. The American Anthropological Association is issuing Fellow Newsletter, superseding its Bulletin. The new publication contains notices of meetings of associations and congresses, notices of new associations, new publications, new programs, grants, fellowships, exchanges, all of which could be of interest to anthropologists.

MATHEMATICS. Notre Dame Journal of Formal Logic is devoted to "symbolic logic and its applications, to metalogic, semantics, the foundations of mathematics, to the history of logic and to the fields immediately related to logic." Papers may be in English, French or German; book reviews will not be a regular feature. The Academic Press, under the editorship of Richard Bellman, is launching the Journal of Mathematical Analysis and Applications which will contain papers treating classical analysis. The first issue contains two long contributions, "The Hydrodynamical Equations of a One Component System Derived from Nonequilibrium Statistical Mechanics" and "The Dirichlet Functional" and four short articles. Archive for History of Exact Sciences will publish articles on historical research in mathematical and physical sciences and in natural philosophy. Contributions may be in English, French, German, Italian, Latin or Spanish. The first number contains two articles: "A Program toward Rediscovering the Rational Mechanics of the Age of Reason," by C. Truesdell, the editor; "Anfänge des Euklidischen Axiomensystems," by Árpád Szabó.

MEDICINE. Under the editorship of Charles M. Poser with international boards of editors and consulting editors World Neurology intends to publish articles from less well known areas and in the lesser known languages, to try to eliminate barriers in the interchange of ideas. The contributions will be translated into English, French, German or in Spanish with summaries in the other three languages. Book reviews are also in one of the four accepted languages. The Scandinavian Journal of Psychology will contain original contributions chiefly in general and experimental psychology to publicize the research work being done in Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden. It is published by the psychological associations of Scandinavia. Both original articles and articles condensed from legal periodicals will fill the pages of Medicolegal Digest, contributions from doctors and lawyers. The first issue has also "Trends in the News," "Current Cases," and one book review. The Journal of Nuclear Medicine will publish original articles "in clinical medicine, basic and clinical medical research, physics and chemistry dealing with the use of isotopes in humans, and articles on related subjects. The latter includes dosimetry, instrumentation, protection, techniques and biologic effects contributing to the use or effects of isotopes in clinical medicine or the clinical effects of ionizing radiation." It is the official journal of the Society of Nuclear Research. In the same pursuit as Medical Tribune of this year's earlier list, Medical World News intends to keep the physician up to date on new developments in medicine and in the various related fields in a medical journalism style. The pilot issue has articles on where the presidential candidates stand on medical care of the aged, the first issue also has an article on federal care for the aged, on foreign-trained doctors with a test-yourself-sample from their examination, on smoking, on product news, on names in the news. Conference will pertain solely to furthering the education of members in the health profession and allied fields. It will present "how-to" articles (first issue: How to Deliver Papers at Scientific Meetings) stimulate improvement of and encourage participation in postgraduate education and report on seminars and conferences. The National Institute of Dental Research, Bethesda, Md., was established to do research in and thus increase the knowledge of dental diseases; and to make this knowledge available to the practitioner and to enable the people, as a consequence, to receive the benefits of this research, Dental Progress was initiated. Although the American Medical Association considers Archives of Environmental Health a change of title of A.M.A. Archives of Industrial Health, nevertheless, it is being listed because it is called v.1, no.1. The purpose of the title change was to reflect the broadened scope of the periodical. The first issue includes a sizeable section called "Abstracts from Current Literature." Agressologie is explained by the translation of its subtitle "International Review of Physio-Biology and Pharmacology Applied to the Effects of Agression." The term "agression" includes the action of agents attacking the living organism from outside or in, e.g., burning, cold, lack of air, poisoning, surgical operations, etc. The illustrated articles are in French with summaries usually in French, English, German and Spanish.

RACES. American Negro Reference Guide contains lists of higher educational institutions in the U. S. for Negroes, of Negro program radio stations, annotated lists of Negro newspapers and periodicals in the U. S., and articles on the Negro consumer market. The Instituto Brasileiro-Judaico de Cultura e Divulgação is publishing Comentário as a forum of Judaism for Brazilian readers; and it will maintain a policy of not dictating to contributors but of allowing them freedom and responsibility in their views. The contributors are international.

RECREATION. Although the American Recreation Journal is published as the organ of the American Recreation Society, municipalities, sports clubs, and even dealers would probably find interest in its columns which are aimed at solving problems in recreation, spreading news of new equipment and generally keeping up with this rapidly growing facet of human experience. Book reviews are included. Das Tier, whose editors are directors of the zoological gardens in Frankfurt and Zurich and of the Max-Planck-Institut für Verhaltensphysiologie, will not be a technical magazine but a recreational one, profusely illustrated (some in color) for those interested in nature and animal life.

RELIGION. Believing that religion is needed in today's world, and that Judaism offers hope to man, the Jewish Information Society is publishing Jewish Information to disseminate information about Judaism to anyone seeking to learn more about that religion. Teologia y Vida is a publication of the Facultad de Sagrada Teologia, Universidad Católica de Chile. The first issue has several articles on theology, among others; the second issue is devoted to the "Teologia del Matrimonio"; the third is to be on the "Euca-ristía"; the fourth, on "Problemas Actuales de Teologia Moral." Each of the first two issues contains a section "Crónica de la Iglesia" and book reviews.

SCIENCE. The International Journal of Mechanical Sciences hopes to fill the need of an international high quality journal in applied mechanics since the national field is well covered; any author may submit papers, but the publication will be in English. Each article, illustrated, is preceded by a summary and followed by bibliographical references. The boards of editors are international. Coinciding with the independence of the Cameroons, Recherches et Études Camerounaises is starting a new life. It hopes to inform people—those outside the country and those inside—on some of the technical and scientific pursuits of the Cameroons. The first issue has articles on foods and nourishment in Batouri, pirogue races, malaria and the mosquito, and soils. Journal of Anomalies will publish papers in the physical sciences which show conclusions contrary to the conventional application of theory, papers usually excluded by most professional journals. The first issue, illustrated and documented, is on "Heat Sublimation and Vapor Pressure of Carbon," by Arthur L. Davis. The Rendiconti degli Istituti Scientifici della Università di Camerino is being issued especially to contain and publicize the experimental research carried on in the laboratories of the University's Facoltà Scientifiche. However, works on biological sciences from other institutes will also be published. The editors intend for the first article in each number to be of a general character by an expert, foreign or Italian. The Latvian Section of the All-Union Entomological Society is issuing Latvijas Entomologs to popularize entomology and to publicize the Section's work. The contributions are in Latvian, with summaries in Russian and German or English. Crustaceana, by its subtitle, an international journal of crustacean research, has international boards of editors and advisory editors, and as far as the first two numbers are concerned, the contributors are international. The illustrated articles are in English, French, or German, each summarized in one of the other two languages. The Biological

Society of the University of St. Andrews is presenting The Biological Journal for dispersing general biological information and especially for presenting the researches of final honours years students in biology. The first issue contains also a goodly number of book reviews. Chesapeake Science, issued by the Maryland Department of Research and Education, Chesapeake Biological Laboratory, Solomons, Md., will contain papers of research and management studies on the natural resources of the Chesapeake Bay area. It will be sent free to libraries, scientific institutions, laboratories, state conservation agencies, and to Maryland conservation agencies and selected secondary schools. AVC; Agricultural & Veterinary Chemicals will publicize scientific advances in attempts to control or eliminate pests, weeds, and diseases in crops and livestock; studies on stored products, seeds, plant growth substances, trace elements, etc.; and general news, e.g., personalities, book reviews, associations. Genetical Research will publish any original work in English on or relating to genetics. Contributions in the first issue are from institutions in England and Scotland, and are reports of scientific experiments, to a large extent with mice or rabbits. The articles are accompanied by summaries in English and references. Nucleus; la Revue Scientifique à l'Age Atomique will draw upon the younger scholarly scientists who are foremost in their fields to help keep other scientists, technicians, and young students abreast of new developments and relationships in the scientific world. The first issue is well illustrated usually including portraits and biographical sketches of the contributors. Four main articles are summarized in Latin. Nuclear Engineering Abstracts, emphasizing engineering is directed to engineers in nuclear work, the nuclear scientists interested in engineering, the manufacturers, and operators of nuclear plants. Many periodicals are reviewed and experts help in the selection of material to be abstracted. The journal is arranged by subject with a subject outline, author index, and list of journals indexed, the latter three cumulative through each volume. Since many journals in biochemistry do not publish papers on methodology, Analytical Biochemistry will fill the lacunae by supplying information on new and improved methods in biochemistry, biophysics and experimental biology. The advisory board is international; the editor is Alvin Nason. British published Polymer contains technical articles on the "chemistry, physics and technology of high polymers." The contributions, summarized, documented, and illustrated, will be only in English. Signed books reviews are included, plus a section "Letters to the Editors" which, in this instance, contains outlines of works of which fuller reports will follow. Cryogenics, with an international editorial board, will publish original papers on all aspects of low temperature engineering and research. The original papers, illustrated, will be in English with abstracts in English, French, German and Russian. There are sections of "Letters to the Editors," signed book reviews, and a bibliography of periodical articles on low temperature physics and engineering. Under an international board of editors, the International Journal of Heat and Mass Transfer will present original papers on transfer processes and their application to engineering problems. Each article is preceded by summaries in English, French, German, and Russian. The journal includes a bibliography international in scope and book reviews.

SOCIAL SECURITY. SOCIAL QUESTIONS. By publishing Social Security Rulings on Federal Old Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance, the Social Security Administration hopes to give the public a grasp of the program's provisions. The publication will be in three parts, part one contains decisions and interpretations of the administration; part two containing changes in the Social Security Act; and part three containing items which would not fall in the other two parts. Trabajo y Seguridad Social, produced jointly by the Instituto de Ciencias Políticas y Administrativas, Universidad de Chile and the Sociedad Chilena de Derecho del Trabajo y de la Seguridad Social, will be in three sections: "I. Trabajo;" "II. Seguridad Social: A. Doctrina, B. Legislación, C. Jurisprudencia;" "III. Informaciones y Documentos." New University Thought claims to be a political and scholarly journal of opinion in its intention of developing "a coherent way of looking at society which can provide a rational basis for a political program for the '60's and '70's." Articles, which may cover any field of scholarly research, will have a radical ("to the root") mode of analysis. The first issue contains, among others, articles on demonstrations by colored students in the South, U. S. foreign policy in Latin America, education, and nuclear bomb tests. Recherches Sociographiques, published by the Dept. of Sociology, University of Laval, will contain research monographs on Canadian society with emphasis on French Canada. Among the articles in the first issue are papers on municipal borrowing in upper Canada, wood cutters, and a study on urban population. There is a section on research studies in progress and signed book reviews. Situación declares itself a militant magazine of trends, socialist and Marxist, claiming to be the latter because, using Marxist methods of analysis, it will try to construct a doctrine for the underdeveloped countries of South America, serving exclusively the working class. The Archives Européennes de Sociologie is published for two purposes: "To reaffirm and continue the European tradition of historical and comparative sociology, and to incorporate in it the more important contributions made by empirical studies, in social anthropology and social psychology as well as sociology . . . [and] to encourage comparative studies of the institutions of European societies, and of European institutions in other parts of the world where they have been established." Articles may be in English, French, German, or other languages. Although superseding The British Journal of Delinquency, The British Journal of Criminology has not changed its policy which remains "to promote research into the diagnosis, etiology, treatment, and prevention of crime." Signed book reviews are included as well as a classified bibliography of articles in periodicals. The journal is published on behalf of the Institute for the Study and Treatment of Delinquency, London. Current Thought on Peace and War has a subject arrangement international in scope, divided by published materials and current research, each item listed alphabetically by author. The items, which are numbered consecutively, are listed with complete bibliographical data and with summaries (excepting some listed in current research). The first issue includes a list of institutes, centers, and foundations interested in research.

SPACE. The International Council of Scientific Unions established a Committee on Space Research in which national scientific institutions have membership. One of the publications of the Committee is COSPAR Information Bulletin which lists satellites and space probes with "biographical data" of each, reports on meetings in which space research was discussed, list of future meetings, and list of the Committee's publications. The third issue has an article on "Dissemination of Cloud Picture Data from Tiros I." STL Space Log contains information, condensed and in detail, on spacecraft—those successfully launched, those now in orbit, those which failed.

TECHNOLOGY. At a time of interest in world power resources, British Power Engineering is making its appearance. The first issue contains articles on the Priest Rapids (Washington state) power plant, the Kariba (Africa) power scheme, the Bradwell (England) power station, on electrification of British railways, on training engineers, new equipment and processes, etc. Believing that the 1960's will be known as the "systems decade"—the purpose of a system being to produce information—Data Processing and Microfilming Systems is being published to describe the effective systems already in use in business, education, government to those responsible for collecting, recording, and retrieving information. New techniques will also be discussed; book reviews are included. Because of the possible interest to technical and architectural libraries, Plywood is entered in this list. The first issue has a variety of articles: job rating, news notes on firms and veneer plants, scientific research, practical applications and methods.

The Second Rare Books Conference

The Second Rare Books Conference of ACRL's Rare Books Section will be held in Oberlin, Ohio, July 6-8. Frederick Goff, chairman of the section, has announced that the general theme of the meeting will be "The Care and Preservation of Rare Books."

Details of the program will be announced in a letter to be mailed later this month to all of the members of the Rare Books Section and to all of the institutional members of ACRL.
