"Even when 18th- and 19th-century periodicals are available, the convenience and comfort of working from microfilm makes it a valuable tool for researchers in medical history. The periodicals themselves benefit as well, being exposed to less wear and tear."

American Medical Periodicals, 1797–1900 a comprehensive collection in microform.

American Medical Periodicals, 1797–1900 is based on holdings of the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda, Maryland, one of the world's richest resources for research into the history of medicine. This comprehensive collection of over 1,200 periodicals from Research Publications provides rare insight into all aspects of nineteenth-century American medical thought and development, and also provides a view into sociological and psychological impacts. Many of the early journals contained a diversity of topics, making them a rich source for local history.

These journals trace the growth of medical societies, the demand for definitive ethics, the development of medical education, and record the history of such significant discoveries and trends as: anesthetics, cellular pathology, microorganisms and infection, inoculation, botanic medicine, legislation and public health, dental science, and quasi- and pseudo-medical practices and philosophies.

RESOURCE AUTHORITIES.

Two hundred historic years of The World's news in microform.

Over 200 years of factual reporting... dozens of acclaimed international newspapers like The Times, The Washington Post, Le Monde, Der Spiegel, Asahi Shimbun, The Age, Financial Times, Jewish Chronicle... all of them available on microfilm from Research Publications.

Imagine the research value of The Times alone: every issue since 1785 — reporting events like the French Revolution, the first flight by the Wright Brothers, and the cultural revolution in China. Scholars, researchers, and the inquisitive public at large have invaluable access to every word. This is probably the most inexhaustible, high-quality collection of international newspapers ever preserved in microform — spanning hundreds of years of news publishing, on most of the world's continents, and with editorial content that's limitless in subject matter and interpretation.

"Imagine Tom Jones on microfilm. Research Publications' The Eighteenth Century collection is simply staggering."

—Henry Fielding

Return with us to the eighteenth century on microfilm.

This collection represents one of the world's largest single projects ever destined for microfilm. Research Publications' The Eighteenth Century is an ongoing program that embraces most of the century's profusion of print, from the literature of Fielding and his peers to broadsides, Bibles, tracts, books, and sermons. In short, most of what moved in movable type is here, drawn from The Eighteenth Century Short Title Catalogue (ESTC) of the British Library, in concert with 700 university, private, and public libraries. Among them: Harvard University and Huntington Library in the U.S. In England: John Rylands and The Bodleian.

First and variant editions on subjects from religion and philosophy to history, geography, social sciences, law, fine arts, science, technology, medicine, and, of course, literature and language are included. The project began in 1983, and over 30,000 titles are now available on 35mm microfilm. New titles are released annually on standing order. This is the perfect collection for educators, researchers and scholars to extract the incredible intellectual output of the eighteenth century.
