Abstract

According to today's statistics and other data, psychological stress, loss of morale, and unwillingness to face life's difficulties are the reason for students to be influenced by harmful information.

The principle of basing national and national values in protecting future foreign language teachers from the threat of harmful information:

Education of a person has long been considered as a complex issue. However, no matter what time it is, values have been relied upon in the education of the young generation. After all, values have passed the test of centuries and are considered a powerful means of education that guides the young generation only and only on the right path. Or, as Oynisa Musurmonova, one of the pedagogic scientists, stated: “a person is alive with values and dignified with values.” Thus, we should educate our students based on the values that are considered the life and spiritual nourishment of a person, so that they become peace-loving, humanitarian, thirsting for knowledge, and lovers of Nature, just like our great ancestors.

The most important thing is that young people educated on the basis of national and national values can distinguish and oppose harmful information. Because there is no value that is not created for human happiness and future. Every value reflects the wishes and hopes of a person, his health, morals, and his rightful place in society. However, students' acceptance and application of them varies.

The rule for targeting the activities of future foreign language teachers in the educational process:

Adherence to the rule of targeting the activities of future foreign language teachers in the educational process leads to the effectiveness of the problem we are researching. Proper orientation of the future teacher's career will help them realize their life goals and find their place in the future. In the process of activity, students' outlook grows.

The rule for training future foreign language teachers to fight against internal threats:

Developing resilience in future foreign language teachers against internal threats prevents them from succumbing to the threat of harmful information. The indifference and indifference so common in our social life is an internal threat. A careless and apathetic person cannot share in the worries, sorrows and joys of others. He does not take a deep look at what is happening around him, he behaves like “it is not my problem”. Therefore, we must teach the young generation, who are the future of our country, to work hard and enjoy living with honest work.

The rule for the formation of independent thinking and healthy beliefs in future foreign language teachers:

Since the first years of the independence of the Republic of Uzbekistan, special attention has been paid to the independent thinking of the young generation. After all, the generation with independent thinking and healthy beliefs is not easily influenced by others and different ideas. After all, lack of faith or independent opinion leads both the society and the state to a crisis. A person without faith and critical thinking will follow one thing today and another thing tomorrow. For them, the concepts of will, patience, resistance to difficulties, loyalty will not be sacred.

For this, future foreign language teachers are provided with great opportunities to acquire modern knowledge and enjoy the riches of world culture and spirituality. At the same time, “in today's era of information attacks, there are some unpleasant situations that have a negative impact on the education of young people, which turn young people away from our traditions that have become a high value for thousands of years, such as kindness, prayer, respect for elders and respect for children.”. Global processes in technical, technological communication, information and other fields are mainly used by developed countries for their economic interests. Unfortunately, in most cases, the principle of gradually depriving young people of their national identity, attacking their national traditions and customs, erasing their historical memory, and thus achieving domination over nations is gaining strength. As B. Omonov noted: “Globalization and interregional integration, which have expanded due to the rapid development of the Internet network, has opened a new era in the construction of states. In fact, it would not be wrong to say that globalization has accelerated the process of modernization. After all, globalization is unification around a common, or rather, western common idea.”
