

From Editor's Desk

For small kinds of libraries, subscription and maintenance of e-resources is a difficult task. However, in big size libraries it is a common thing. But utilization of these resources is a challenging task. Vanan J. Tamil and J. Manalan did a pilot study for studying the access, purposes, and extent of exploitation of electronic resources among the medical practitioners of Christian Medical College and Hospital, Vellore, in their article 'Understanding and Moderating the Use of Electronic Resources among the Medical Practitioners: A Pilot Study'.

The practice of citing web resources in research is becoming increasingly prevalent among researchers in almost all disciplines these days. However, the researcher should also keep in mind that the URLs of some web resources may be decayed or disappeared from the Internet after a period of time. Dr. Vijay Uttamrao Barphe attempted to study of this problem in his article 'Web Citation and Decay of URLs: A Case Study of Library and Information Science Theses Uploaded on Shodhganga under the Savitribai Phule Pune University, Pune'

Scientrometric and Bibliometric studies are done by Akhandanand Shukla and Deepak Mahadeo Sakate in their article 'Scholarly Communications on "Mizo" In Global Context: A Scientometric Analysis through Scopus' and by Mr Amar Rangnath Dixit and Dr. Vandana S. Gavali in an article 'Library Service Quality: A Bibliometric Analysis' respectively.

In 21st century the social media is a popular platform for spreading fake news in the society. The trend and patterns of these fake news are studied by Namrita Varier, Dr. Akhilesh K.S. Yadav and Dr. Gururaj S. Hadagali in their article 'Trends and Patterns of Fake News on Social Media and Online News: Text Mining Approach'.

The content analysis of International University Library's Weblogsis done by Rajashree D. Wagh and Dr. (Mrs.) Shalini R. Lihitkar.

Taking into the consideration the concept of Information Literacy, Reenu Arti Thakur, Diksha Sharma and Sangita Gupta contributed an article 'Impact of Awareness on Covid Information Literacy (Co-II) In Jammu District of Jammu, and Kashmir' in this issue.

A study on disaster management of Print Collections is done by A. Gohain and B. L. Tariang in their article 'Disaster Management of Print Collections in Academic Libraries of Assam: A Study'.

I feel very happy to present this issue before you all professionals. Hope you all will definitely like this issue.
