•Tufts University Libraries, Medford, Massachusetts, have received a $100,000 grant from the Surdna Foundation to further awareness of information technology among library users and staff. The grant, awarded for a three-year period, will be used to support projects designed to upgrade understanding of news information technologies on the part of librarians, faculty and students.

•Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pennsylvania, has been awarded a grant of $151,000 by the Buhl Foundation of Pittsburgh, which will enable the college to pioneer the concept of a static-capacity library. The model is intended to enable the college to save the cost of constructing a new library wing, improve library service, and facilitate the management of library resources. It will also feature an open-stack, manageable collection for undergraduate use; increased utilization of shelf space; conversion of materials to microform; the use of mechanized compact shelving; increased staff to assist with the review of the use of materials and the maintenance of the catalog; and transfer of certain materials to remote storage. The Westminster holdings will reach a maximum of 300,000 volumes. ■■

Profiles

WILLIAM J. CROWE has been appointed assistant director of libraries for technical services at the Ohio State University Libraries, Columbus, effective April 1. Crowe has been acting assistant director since late 1983, and had served as assistant to the director since 1979. He came to Ohio State from Indiana University, where he was assistant to the dean of libraries (1977-1979) and coordinator of processing for regional campus libraries (1971-1976). He was a cataloger and assistant to the acquisitions librarian at Boston Public Library (1969-1971).

In 1976-1977, Crowe was a Council on Library Resources Management intern at the University of Michigan Library. He is currently a doctoral candidate at Indiana University and holds an MLS from Rutgers University and a bachelor's degree from Boston State College. Crowe currently serves as coordinator of the Academic and Special Libraries Division of the Ohio Library Association, has been active in ALA's Library Administration and Management Division, and is incoming chair of the Technical Services Group of the Ohio Inter-University Library Council. His writings have appeared in College & Research Libraries and Library Resources and Technical Services.

DOROTHY M. KIJANKA has been appointed director of the Sacred Heart University Library, Bridgeport, Connecticut, effective July 1. Kijanka has been with Fairfield University as reference librarian and later as associate university librarian, a position she held for over 10 years. A graduate of the University of Illinois, Kijanka received an MLS from Rutgers University.

She has written articles for the Journal of Academic Librarianship and the New England Academic Librarians' Writing Seminar.

ALAN EDWARD SCHORR has been named university librarian at California State University, Fullerton, effective July 16. He has been director of libraries and media services at the University of Alaska, Juneau, since 1978. In 1972-1978 he served as government publications and map librarian at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks.

Schorr received an MLS from the University of Texas at Austin, a master's in history from Syracuse University, and a bachelor's degree from Hunter College (CUNY). He was a doctoral student at the University of Iowa.

Schorr is currently serving his second term as ALA councilor at large. He also serves on the ALA Publications Committee, the Dewey Medal Committee, and the Reference Books Review Committee. He has served as a member of both the ACRL and RASD Publications Committees, and the Dartmouth Medal and Mudge Citation Committees.

Alan E. Schorr

His articles have appeared in the Journal of Academic Librarianship, Wilson Library Bulletin, the Journal of the American Society of Information Science, RQ, and Arctic Bulletin. He is the author of books published by Libraries Unlimited, Special Libraries Association, and Pierian Press. He has also presented workshops and given lectures throughout Alaska, California, and Britain.

At Juneau he was involved in the initiation of automated services, collection development, facility renovation, and planning for a new building and a recent accreditation visit.

LARRY E. SULLIVAN has been appointed professor and chief librarian at Herbert H. Lehman College in the Bronx, New York. He comes to the college from the New York Historical Society where he has served as librarian since 1980. He had earlier been the head librarian at the Maryland Historical Society and the library director of the Maryland State Penitentiary. Sullivan has taught at Essex Community College, Western Maryland College, Allegany Community College, and Johns Hopkins University.

A graduate of DePaul University, he holds a Ph.D. in history from Johns Hopkins and an MLS from the Catholic University of America. From 1966 to 1967 he studied on a Fulbright Fellowship at the Centre d'Études Supérieures de Civilisation Médiévale at the University of Poitiers, France.

Among his published works are: Oral History in Maryland: A Directory (editor); Guide to the Research Collections of the Maryland Historical Society (co-editor); and articles in the Journal of Library History, Collier's Encyclopedia, Imprint, Mediaevalia, Printing History, and The Map Collector.

Sullivan is currently working on a history of the prison reform movement in the United States and is continuing his research on libraries and literacy in 19th-century America. He recently organized the major exhibition at the New York World Trade Center commemorating the 300th anniversary of the founding of New York's counties.

Libraries cited in report on graduate education

A report by the National Commission on Student Financial Assistance last December called for Federal action to enhance the quality of scholarly libraries and ensure that valuable collections are maintained. As part of its report on "serious signs of distress" in graduate education, the Commission cited the rising cost of books and library services and the lack of proper preservation methods as factors hampering independent scholarship at the graduate level.

The Commission made the following recommendations to enhance library quality in graduate institutions:

- The federal government should increase grants for operating support to all college and university libraries, with much larger grants to major research universities.

- The federal government should encourage and support interlibrary cooperation and networking to ensure the widest possible use of scholarly materials.

- Incentives for business and industry to donate equipment to colleges and universities should be extended to apply to library materials and research collections. Again, safeguards would be necessary to prevent the use of such incentives for donations of materials of little value to scholars.

- The National Commission on Libraries and Information Science should continue to work closely with the Library of Congress in monitoring and assessing the quality of the nation's libraries.

- The Library of Congress should take a leading role in assisting libraries across the country to preserve deteriorating collections. The Commission supports the Library's program of research into methods of preservation and encourages the Library's National Preservation Office in its plans for wider dissemination of information.

- Existing programs that support the preservation of scholarly materials, such as the one administered by the National Endowment for the Humanities, should be continued.

- The Library Career Training programs should be extended to support advanced study in modern information technology such as computers, library networking, and the preservation of older library materials. Minority participation in the program should be encouraged. ■■

Media centers need help, too

The Division of Educational Media Management of the Association for Educational Communications and Technology has issued a study that examined trends in budgeting, staffing, program support, and services in media centers at 196 institutions representing all levels of higher education. Their survey found that centers at public colleges and universities appear to have suffered serious budgeting and personnel cutbacks in the period 1977-1983, while reductions at private institutions appear to have been less severe.

The data were collected during the 1982-83 school year by the AECT/DEMM Task Force on the Status of Media Centers in Higher Education, chaired by Michael J. Albright of Iowa State University. A copy of the 94-page final report may be obtained from Lynn Milet, Media Center, Linderman Library 30, Lehigh University, Bethlehem, PA 18015. The cost is $10 a copy, payable to DEMM.

LOFTON WILSON is now project librarian in the Harvard College Library.

Notices

• The Acquisition and Cataloging of Music and Sound Recordings: A Glossary, compiled by Suzanne E. Thorin and Carole Franklin Vidali, has been published as MLA Technical Report number 11. The glossary includes terms used in both current and earlier LC practice, as well as words and abbreviations commonly found on title pages of scores, on labels and containers of sound recordings, and in bibliographic and descriptive sources utilized for acquisition and cataloging these materials. Nearly 600 English and foreign words and abbreviations are covered. The glossary is available for $14 ($11.25 for MLA members) from the Music Library Association, P.O. Box 487, Canton, MA 02021.

• Automated Circulation: An Examination of Choices, edited by Joseph R. Matthews and Kevin E. Hegarty (126 pages, 1984), contains the proceedings of a preconference sponsored by the Circulation Services Section of ALA's Library Administration and Management Association in Philadelphia, July 8-9, 1982. Most of the information is very practical and covers such areas as specifications and contract negotiations, shared systems, and alternative financing. Copies may be ordered for $15 from ALA Publishing, 50 E. Huron St., Chicago, IL 60611. ISBN 0-8389-0402-5.

• Bibliographic Services and User Needs, compiled and edited by Paul Peterson (1984), presents the opening session, papers, discussion group reports, and recommendations of a conference held at Linda Hall Library, Kansas City, in December 1983 to review the progress of the Bibliographic Service Development Program of the Council on Library Resources. Four papers were contributed by Thomas Martin, Syracuse University; Douglas Ferguson, Stanford University; Nina Matheson, National Library of Medicine; and Carlton Rochell, New York University. A background paper providing information on the Program's progress, a bibliography of Program publications, the meeting agenda, and a list of participants are included as appendixes. The report may be ordered for $10 from CLR, 1785 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20036.

• Bilindex (533 pages, July 1984), a new Spanish-English subject heading thesaurus published by the California Spanish Language Data Base, offers standardized Spanish equivalents to over 13,000 current LC subject headings. Special features of this thesaurus are: cross references, scope notes, children's subject headings, standard subdivisions, an English to Spanish index, regional variants, and technical terms. The book will allow libraries to maintain an adequate catalog and subject access to Spanish and bilingual collections. The cost is $65 and may be ordered from Vivian Pisano, California Spanish Language Data Base, P.O. Box

Microcomputer Services Discussion Group forms

The formation of a new ACRL discussion group, Microcomputer Services in Academic Libraries, was approved by the ACRL Board of Directors at its Midwinter meeting in Washington, D.C. The purpose is to facilitate the sharing of ideas and experiences among librarians in academic libraries offering their patrons access to microcomputers and/or circulating collections of microcomputer software. ACRL members who would like to be included in the activities of this group should write to the chair: Linda Piele, Library/Learning Center, University of Wisconsin-Parkside, Box 2000, Kenosha, WI 53141.
