The official results of the 2002 ACRL elections

Helen H. Spalding

Tyrone H. Cannon

Helen H. Spalding, associate director of libraries at the University of Missouri-Kansas City (UMKC), is the 65th president of ACRL.

As president, Spalding will preside over the ACRL Board of Directors and ACRL Executive Committee, chair the ACRL Conference Program Planning Committee for the 2003 Annual Conference, and plan ACRL's major program at the conference. She will work with the ALA president and other division presidents representing ACRL both within and outside of ALA.

"I am humbled and honored to have been elected ACRL President. I have gained so much personally and professionally through ACRL activities and publications, I want to make sure as many members as possible have the same opportunity to participate that I have had.

"In recognition of the changing environments in which we work, which create the need to develop and respond to new relationships and partnerships, I have selected the theme, 'New Realities, New Relationships,' for my term.

"The willingness of members to devote their time and talent to new efforts continues to be impressive and guarantees that we will make measurable progress toward increasing the visibility and value of academic and research librarians in the eyes of our users and potential supporters. Developing new and stronger relationships among ACRL units and between ACRL and other organizations also will enable us to learn from each other and mobilize our resources to tackle common challenges.

"The initiatives gaining momentum during the next year are so exciting! New committees and task forces are addressing member priorities, including support for library financial and staff resources, library marketing, and positioning ACRL to be responsive to diverse members in a new future. The Board has established a Scholarly Communications Committee and a part-time visiting program officer position to provide greater support for addressing the costs of scholarly communication. The ACRL/ARL Joint Task Force on Recruitment to the Profession will focus on recruitment to the profession of academic and research librarianship. In addition, I will be proposing an ACRL Spectrum Scholar Mentor Task Force to organize a program to pair each new Spectrum Scholar with an academic or research librarian mentor. Hopefully, once the mentor program is established, mentors also can be paired with other new graduate students in library school.

"The ALA @ Your Library Campaign is focusing this year on the marketing of academic and research libraries and librarians through its first mini-campaign. In tandem with the mini-campaign, the ACRL @ Your Library Task Force is developing key messages and materials to articulate to students, faculty, administrators, donors, legislators, and society at large the unique value that academic and research libraries and librarians provide to higher education, scholarship, economic development, and the preservation of our culture. ACRL members will have access to materials that can be customized on the local level to provide better advocacy for library funding and recruitment of staff, and better marketing of their libraries' collections and services.

"The ACRL Association of the Future Task Force is taking a fresh look at ACRL and at the changing demographics and environment unfolding in the new century. They are gathering ideas from members and other organizations to better organize and position ACRL for meeting the new needs of members.

"The 2003 year also holds special continuing education and programming opportunities for members. The April ACRL National Conference in Charlotte, North Carolina, is scheduling beneficial preconferences and engaging speakers. The June 2003 ALA Annual Conference in Toronto promises new experiences and a more global perspective on the issues we face.

"I look forward to facilitating new relationships, allowing us to gain greater understanding of the new realities in which we live and work, so that we will be able to continue to provide quality library services to those who depend upon us in the future."

Spalding has been associate director of libraries at UMKC since 1985. Her previous positions included UMKC head of Technical Services (1979–85), head of Serials Records, and head of Serials Cataloging at Iowa State University (1974–79).

Within ACRL, Spalding has served on the Board of Directors Executive Committee (1994–96, 1997–01); Budget and Finance Committee (1986–91, 1992–96), chair (1994–96); Colleagues Committee chair (1992–93); Seventh National Conference Contributed Papers Subcommittee (1993–95); Appointments Committee chair (1996–97); ACRL Councilor (1997–01); and the Tenth National Conference Volunteer Committee (2000–01).

In addition to serving on ALA Council as the ACRL Councilor, Spalding's service in ALA includes membership on the Budget Analysis and Review Committee (BARC) (1998–02); Library Education Assembly (1986–87); Search

I look forward to facilitating new relationships, allowing us to gain greater understanding of the new realities in which we live and work, so that we will be able to continue to provide quality library services to those who depend upon us in the future.

Our association's past and present leadership has strategically positioned us to provide proactive delivery of information and services to faculty, students, and the broader communities that surround our colleges and universities. —Tyrone H. Cannon

Tyrone H. Cannon, dean of university libraries at the University of San Francisco (USF), has been elected vice president/president-elect of ACRL.

"I am very pleased to be elected vice-president/president-elect of ACRL. As an academic librarian for more than 20 years, I know the significant role our association, through its membership, has played in supporting the important work performed daily by academic librarians and staff in a wide range of scholarly institutions. Our association's past and present leadership has strategically positioned us to provide proactive delivery of information and services to faculty, students, and the broader communities that surround our colleges and universities.

"As in the past, our 21st-century association should continue to articulate and redefine the very important role that librarians and academic libraries provide to learning communities around the country and abroad. We must strive to recruit the best and the brightest to the profession and work to correlate the diversity of our country with the numbers in our profession.

"I stand on the shoulders of great leaders, such as Dr. Joseph H. Reason and Louise Giles, and it is a great honor to serve my colleagues in this capacity."

Cannon has been dean of university libraries at USF since 1995. From 1991 to 1995, he was senior associate university librarian at Boston College, where he also served as head of the reference department (1989–91). Previously, he was head of the social sciences division at Oklahoma State University (1988–89).

Among his ACRL activities are service on the Appointments Committee (2000–01); CHOICE editorial board (1995–99); Nominations Committee (1998); ULS Policy and Planning Committee (1989–92); and the Ninth National Conference Invited Papers Subcommittee (1997–99).

Cannon has been a member of ALA's Black Caucus since 1981. He has also served ALA on the Standing Council on Minority Concerns and Cultural Diversity (1993–95) and on the Membership Committee (1997–99).

Cannon has also been active at the state and regional level, serving as treasurer of the ACRL New England Board (1995), a member of the ACRL New England Program Planning Committee (1991–92), and a member of the NELINET Reference Advisory Committee (1993–95).

In California, he was on the CAL/PALS Executive Board (1995–99) and on the State-wide California Electronic Library Consortium Executive Board (2001–01). Cannon's other professional memberships include EDUCAUSE (1995–present); American Association for Higher Education (1998–present); National Association of Social Workers (1975–82, 1999–present); and the Academy of Certified Social Workers (1977–82, 1999–present).

Cannon was awarded a Title IIB Fellowship in 1980.
