

WESTERN EUROPEAN SPECIALISTS SECTION: "Resources of German-Speaking Europe: Publishing Patterns and Bibliographic Strategies for the 80s" (July 12, 9:30 a.m.–12:30 p.m.) is particularly aimed at librarians who occasionally buy, use or teach about German-language books, or those who wish to know more about the field. Knut Dorn, of Otto Harrassowitz, Wiesbaden, will give a general overview of German-language publishing, its intricacies, and recent advances in technology. Peter R. Frank, curator of the Germanic Collection at Stanford, will give a more specific view of access and selection in German studies, outlining search strategies and describing major reference sources. ■■

ACRL's Committee on an Activity Model for 1990: The Final Report

FOREWORD

The Association of College and Research Libraries is the fifth largest library association in the world, comprising more than 9,400 members. It is also the third oldest library association in the world, dating its origin from 1890. In December 1980 David Weber, then vice-president of ACRL, appointed an ad hoc committee to review the Association's activity structure and propose such changes as appeared needed to bring it into accord with the likely demands of its second century of service to begin in 1990.

Vice-president Weber's charge to this new "Committee on an Activity Model for 1990" was to conceptualize an activity program to help shape the directions of Association efforts in the years immediately ahead; to raise thereby the sights of ACRL members, sections, and officers for ACRL achievement; and to stimulate membership interest and involvement in the advancement of the Association.

Persons appointed to the Committee were Olive James, David Kaser, Carla Stoffle, William Studer, and Julie Virgo.

The Committee's first concern was to determine what purpose or ends its "Activity Model" should be designed to attain. Finding no recent statement of Association goals and objectives that it could utilize, the Committee set about to develop one through the use of a planning pyramid of objectives, shown here as Figure 2.

In accord with this dialectic for planning, the Committee began by reviewing both "environmental considerations" and "internal characteristics" (as shown at the top of the pyramid) which could be expected to affect Association fortunes during the coming decade. They are given as Sections II and III of this Report. Taking those factors into account, the Committee then drafted a statement of "Mission" and "Goals" which it proposed to the membership in the May 1981 issue of C&RL News. After appropriate revision of the statement, the Committee fashioned a set of "Objectives" to fit the Goals, and it now commends all three parts (e.g., Section III of this Report) to the Board of Directors for possible adoption.

The Committee then set to work on its main charge to develop an Activity Model for meeting these purposes. It reviewed all past and present activities of ACRL, as well as a wide range of additional possibilities for action, and it concluded that the best model possible would be a modification of ACRL's present program. In its judgment, the Association would be able to meet these goals successfully and carry a strong program into its second century if, in addition to such present activities as are not affected by this Report, ACRL were also to address the new activities enumerated in Section IV. Although that list also suggests possible appropriate action for each item therein, the Committee recommends that the Board refer the entire list to the Planning Committee for item-by-item review and recommendation. Resources may need to be considered, and priorities may have to be assigned, before it can be adopted, either in whole or in part.

In conclusion, the Committee recommends that the Association adopt an identifying slogan or logo for this program. It presents Figure 1 for possible consideration.
