• Pilgrims and Pioneers: New England Women in the Arts, edited by Alicia Faxon and Sylvia Moore (February 1986), covers the work of New England women painters, sculptors, architects, and fabric artists of the past and present, and considers such topics as collage, landscape, issue-oriented art, interior space in the work of women artists, the art education of working women, and the economics of art survival for women. It also explores the contributions made by women architects, art collectors, and gallery owners. Eighteen artists, art historians, architects, curators, and critics have contributed essays to this volume. Copies may be ordered for $12 from Midmarch Arts Press, Box 3304, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10163.

• The Rule of Experts: Occupational Licensing in America, by S. David Young (100 pages, March 1987), offers a careful analysis of occupational licensing and its effects, both intended and unintended, on the regulated professionals and the consumers they serve. Over 1,000 occupations are currently regulated by all or some of the 50 states, varying in intensity from registration to licensing. Young argues that licensing regulations exist primarily to enhance the economic position of the covered occupations. Copies may be ordered for $10.95 from the Cato Institute, 224 Second St., S.E., Washington, DC 20003; (202) 546-0200.

• The Secret War in Central America: Sandinista Assault on World Order, by John Norton Moore (195 pages, 1987), documents the extent of the Sandinista war since 1980 against El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Costa Rica. The author traces the Cuban connection in the Sandinista movement, the dramatic rise in Soviet military support, the militarization of Nicaraguan society, and its subversive attacks against nearby governments in Central America. Copies may be ordered for $17.95 from University Publications of America, 44 North Market St., Frederick, MD 21701. ISBN 0-89093-961-6.

• Wild and Exotic Mushroom Cultivation in North America: A Growers' and Gourmets' Guide to the New Edible Species, by Geraldine C. Kaye (59 pages, 2d ed., 1987), contains three times the number of listings of its 1984 predecessor. The book includes an annotated bibliography of works about mushrooms, lists of mycological associations and professional and amateur growers' groups, an alphabetical listing of mushroom-related businesses and organizations, and a subject index. Among the new references are three recently published mushroom cookbooks and an electronic bulletin board for mushroom news. Copies may be ordered for $6.75 from the Farlow Reference Library, Harvard University, 20 Divinity Ave., Cambridge, MA 02138.

• Women and Business Ownership: A Bibliography is a detailed survey of the literature on women in business, accompanied by specialized annotated bibliographies on characteristics of women business owners, financial access for women business owners, guides for home-based businesses, and other sub-topics. The volume lists monographs and journal articles, research reports, charts and tables, government reports, legal cases, and popular guides. The cost is $37.50. Order from the Minnesota Scholarly Press, P.O. Box 224, Mankato, MN 56001. ■■
