

lectual endeavor. Displays featuring materials on newly acquired books will be established in the Olin Library and at other locations on campus, and lists of new acquisitions will be posted. In addition to regular book reviews written by the Library Services staff, the fund also provides for lectures by selected authors and a book collecting contest for students. Finalists in the competition for the best personal library collected by a full-time undergraduate and graduate student while at the university will be awarded $1,000 each.

News note

• The Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is the recipient of a new library endowment fund established by Ruth Patrick, senior curator of the Frances Boyer Chair of Limnology, in memory of her husband, Charles Hodge IV, late professor emeritus of biology at Temple University. The Hodge Fund will be used to purchase books and journals in entomology. ■■

People in the News

PATRICIA M. BATTIN, vice president and university librarian of Columbia University, New York City, has been named the first president of the Commission on Preservation and Access. She will be responsible for developing and carrying out a new and extensive cooperative program that will involve many libraries and universities across the country. Established in 1986, the Commission was formed to deal with the threatened loss of large portions of the collections of America's research libraries due to deterioration of paper. Its initial goal is to set in motion a nationwide preservation effort to capture the contents of hundreds of thousands of "brittle books" by microfilming or other means, and to make them permanently accessible. Battin, who has been at Columbia since 1974, will take up her new duties in August.

ANN BEAUBIEN, MARY GEORGE, and SHARON HOGAN were honored as distinguished alumnae of the University of Michigan's School of Library and Information Studies 19th annual Alumni-in-Residence Program, held in Ann Arbor April 9 and 10. All are active in ACRL, of which Hogan, who is director of libraries at Louisiana State University, is past president, Beaubien is head, cooperative access services, at the University of Michigan; and George is head of the General Reference Division at Princeton University.

JOHN BIDWELL, reference and acquisitions librarian at the Clark Memorial Library of the University of California, Los Angeles, was one of 15 persons elected to membership in the American Antiquarian Society at its semiannual meeting in Boston April 15. Bidwell is a historian of American papermaking and a biographical scholar.

DAVID KREH and JANET POTTER have been named as co-recipients of the 1987 Friends of the State University of New York Library Association Award. The award, consisting of a gift and certificate of appreciation, will be presented on June 11 at the 19th annual SUNYLA conference, to be held at SUNY/Brockport. Kreh, reference librarian at SUNY/Cortland, is a founding member of SUNYLA and has served as vice president (1969–1971; 1973–1974) and president (1974–1975). He has also functioned as liaison to the United University Professions union. Potter, reference librarian at SUNY/Oneonta, has served SUNYLA in various capacities and has also been involved in contract negotiations.

ANTJE B. LEMKE, retired professor of humanities and art and museum librarianship at Syracuse University, New York, was presented with the Art Libraries Society of America's Distinguished Service Award at its convocation program in Washington, D.C., February 15. Lemke, who retired in 1986 after 34 years of service, was honored for her effectiveness in teaching, as an author, and as one of the first promoters of the profession of art librarianship. Her emphasis on the common concerns of libraries led to invitations to Europe and Africa, where she instructed librarians in the importance of archival record-keeping. Recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship in 1959, Lemke studied libraries in the Age of Enlightenment. In 1977 and 1984 she gave the first lectures in Australia on art librarianship.

WILLIAM J. MAHER, assistant university archivist at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, has been elected to a two-year term as president of the Midwest Archives Conference. He had previously served as secretary-treasurer (1981–1985) and on the nominating committee (1979–1980). Established in 1972 as a professional organization of archivists, manuscript curators, and historic site, museum, and library personnel, MAC has nearly 1,000 members in more than 40 states and six countries.

Preservation meeting

The ALA Resources and Technical Services Division's Preservation of Library Materials Section will sponsor a program on preservation education, Saturday, June 27, 8:00 a.m.-12:30 p.m., at ALA Annual Conference in San Francisco.

The purpose of the program is threefold: to acquaint librarians with the need to teach library staff and patrons the basic principles of proper care and handling of library materials; to provide information about the development and use of training resources on the subject; and to offer some ideas about how librarians can market preservation information effectively, so as to increase awareness about preservation and inspire a new respect for library materials.

A 50-minute film produced by the Council on Library Resources, Slow Fires, will be screened from 8:00 to 9:00 a.m. Sample training materials and bibliographies will be available for the first 300 people who attend the program.

PAUL PALMER, curator of the Columbiana Collection at Columbia University, New York City, will retire at the end of June after 36 years of service. Palmer's association with Columbia began when he entered library school there in 1949. He held positions in the Burgess-Carpenter, Theater Arts, and Avery Libraries before taking charge of the Columbiana Collection in 1975.

RUTH RAUSEN, coordinator of Young Adult Services at the New York Public Library since 1982, retired at the end of April after more than 30 years of service. Rausen was also editor of the Library's annual Books for the Teen Age, distributed to libraries nationally and abroad. A graduate of Ohio State University, she earned an MLS at Columbia University before joining NYPL in 1954, working in a number of Bronx branches. She was group work/academic school specialist in the Office of Young Adult Services from 1961 to 1965 and was a Borough young adult specialist in both Staten Island and Manhattan from 1965 to 1978. Thereafter she was assistant coordinator of Young Adult Services before assuming her most recent position. Rausen has been a member of the Rutgers University School of Library Services (1969-1979) and a faculty member at Bergen Community College (1979-1980). A member of the New York Library Association, ALA's Young Adult Services Division, and the Manhattan Council on Reading and the International Reading Association, Rausen also served as moderator of the "Teen Age Book Talk" radio program sponsored by NYPL, from 1969 to 1981. She is a member of the Committee to Rewrite Standards of the New York Library Association and has served on several ALA committees including, currently, the Publishers' Liaison Committee. Author of numerous articles in professional journals, Rausen is also editor of Poems of Alfred Lord Tennyson, published by Thomas Y. Crowell.

GEORGE VDOVIN, head of the Chemistry Library at the University of California, Berkeley, retired April 24. An undergraduate major in zoology, Vdovin has also held science library positions at Stanford University and the University of California, San Diego.

earning a bachelor's degree in international relations at the University of Southern California and an MLS from UCLA, where she was a member of the first graduating class of the School of Library Service. Dixon assisted in the founding of the Oral History Program at UCLA in 1959 and was active in the field throughout the sixties, most notably as chair of the university's First National Colloquium on Oral History in 1966. Afterward, she spent a semester as librarian on the S.S. Ryndam, traveling around the world as part of Chapman College's "College Afloat," before assuming the position at El Camino.

CONCHA ROMERO JAMES, reference specialist in the Hispanic Foundation (now the Hispanic Division) of the Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., from 1952 to 1963, died February 6. James was born in Chihuahua, Mexico, and was a 1920 graduate of Pomona College, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. In 1926 she received a master's degree in Latin American Studies from Columbia University, where she also did postgraduate work in journalism. In 1932, after working as a freelance journalist in Mexico City, James came to the Pan American Union in Washington, D.C., as an editorial assistant in the Division for Intellectual Cooperation, of which she became chief in 1943. That same year she was honored by Eleanor Roosevelt for her work in the field of Inter-American cultural relations. At the Library of Congress, where she was employed part-time, she was a contributing editor for bibliography for the Handbook of American Studies. In 1954, on the occasion of the bicentennial of Columbia University, James received the Distinguished Service Medal for her contributions to international education.

NANCY SCOTT, special collections librarian emerita of Gettysburg College, Pennsylvania, died early this year. She had retired in 1985 after 25 years of service.

HAROLD O. THOMEN, a member of the staff of the Library of Congress for more than 40 years and an expert in genealogy, died December 9, 1986, at the age of 84. Thomen published numerous articles over the past 30 years, including the "Checklist of Hearings Before the Congressional Committees through the 77th Congress," and "A Supplement to the Index of Congressional Hearings." An undergraduate major in library science at George Washington University, he worked in the library at Pennsylvania State University for three years following his retirement, and later worked for the Centre County Library and Historical Museum, serving as librarian and then as a volunteer.

HENRY VOOS, professor in the Rutgers University School of Communication, Information and Library Studies, New Brunswick, New Jersey, died April 3 in Philadelphia. He was 58. Born in Hamburg, Germany, Voos earned degrees in German language and literature from New York University, an MLS at Columbia University, and a Ph.D. in Library Service from Rutgers. After 12 years as chief of technical services at the U.S. Army Picatinny Arsenal Library, he joined the faculty of the Rutgers Graduate School of Library Service (now the School of Communication, Information and Library Studies) in 1968. Voos' teaching and research focused on systems analysis, bibliometrics and information technology, networks, and organization for retrieval. He directed more than 20 doctoral dissertations in these areas and served as advisor to hundreds of graduate students. Voos was an active member of the American Association for Information Science, the Special Libraries Association, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

RONALD DAVID WILLIAMS, associate professor of the Emory University Division of Library and Information Management, Atlanta, Georgia, died April 27 after a long illness. Williams had been a member of the Emory faculty since 1974, serving first as instructor, then assistant professor, and, since 1982, as associate professor. In addition to courses in information technology, information software design, film literature and visual literacy in the Division of Library and Information Management, he had taught as a visiting lecturer in the English Department. Prior to his appointment at Emory, Williams had taught English at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks; and English, German, and film literature at La Fayette High School, Alabama. Williams was a 1969 graduate in English from Auburn University and earned an MFA in creative writing from the University of Alaska (1973), an MLS from Emory (1973), and a Ph.D. in information studies from Rutgers University (1984). He was a member of a number of professional organizations and had served as consultant in information systems for university, public, school, and special libraries and information centers, including the DeKalb Public Library System, the Lake Lanier

Regional Library, the Mercer University School of Medicine Library, the Atlanta Public Schools, and the Witness to the Holocaust Project at Emory University. In 1984-1985, he was operations consultant in Cairo, Egypt, for the implementation of the Egyptian National Scientific and Technical Information Network, a joint project of the Academy of Scientific and Technical Research of the Republic of Egypt and the Georgia Institute of Technology. ■■

PUBLICATIONS

• Circulation Policy in Academic, Public, and School Libraries, by Sheila S. Intner (228 pages, March 1987), contains the results of a survey of libraries in 1983 to find out the types of borrowing they allow and the procedures by which materials circulate. Comparisons are made of the ways different libraries formulate, review, and amend their policies; illustrations and tables are used extensively to show the way policy documents look. Two chapters are devoted to academic libraries: one on circulation policies, and another on responses to the questionnaire. Copies may be ordered for $35 from Greenwood Press, 88 Post Road West, Box 5007, Westport, CT 06881. ISBN 0-313-23990-8.

• Cuban Exile Periodicals at the University of Miami Library: An Annotated Bibliography, by Esperanza B. de Varona (203 pages, April 1987), has been published as number 19 of the SALALM Bibliography and Reference Series. Formats include newspapers, magazines and bulletins edited or published by Cubans in exile. Cuban culture and its preservation in exile, encompassing a variety of such topics as history, literature, folklore, science, music, art, and religion are represented. Copies may be ordered for $20 (plus $2 postage and handling) from the SALALM Secretariat, Memorial Library, University of Wisconsin, Madison, WI 53706. ISBN 0-917617-14-2.

• Directory of Services for Refugees and Immigrants, by Alan Edward Schorr (285 pages, June 1987), describes more than 800 ethnic, religious, and community organizations assisting the unnaturalized. The directory is designed to help refugees and immigrants, service providers, and community information centers in all fifty states. Primary arrangement is by state, supplemented by 15 indexes. The cost is $27.95, plus $2.00 for shipping. Contact the Denali Press, P.O. Box 1535, Juneau, AL 99802. ISBN 0-938737-12-0.

• Federal Copyright Records 1790-1800, compiled by Elizabeth Carter Wills and edited by James Gilreath (165 pages, 1987), is a compilation of records from the 11 states and two Federal agencies that received copyright deposits during the first decade of American copyright law. The volume is the result of a cooperative project between the Center for the Book in the Library of Congress and the Library's Rare Book and Special Collections Division. The records are drawn primarily from source materials in the Rare Book and Special Collections Division and are divided by state and presented in chronological order. Each entry contains both the registration for a work and the text of its title page, and users are able to visualize title pages by means of simple type designations. Copies may be ordered for $13 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Stock no. 030-000-00184-2.

• Health Hazards of Video Display Terminals, compiled by Meta Nissley (63 pages, 3d ed., 1987), presents a list of monographic and periodical sources relating to potential VDT hazards. There is increasing attention paid in this edition to literature relating to overall workplace health and ergonomics, as well as radiation levels and risks. A list of addresses of VDT manufacturers is provided so that the user can seek terminal-specific information. The cost is $9.95 (plus $1.00 shipping), from Ryan Research International, Publications Department, 1593 Filbert Ave., Chico, CA 95926. ISBN 0-942158-04.
