Dear readers,

Welcome to the first issue of 2016 (Volume 39, No. 1) of the Revista Colombiana de Estadística (RCE). As incoming editors we want to thank our colleague Leonardo Trujillo for his outstanding work during the years he has acted as an Editor of the RCE. We have worked in conjunction with him during a year and our principal aim is to keep and improve our standard and visibility of the Journal.

Some of the changes we have undertaken are the mandatory submission through a platform hosting all journals of Universidad Nacional de Colombia (<http://www.revistas.unal.edu.co/index.php/estad/about/submissions#onlineSubmissions>), which aims to improve efficiency of the revision and publication process. Moreover, we have unified the open access to our journal. Please visit us on our website <http://www.revistas.unal.edu.co/index.php/estad> or through SciELO Citation Index, which is also available from the Web of Science platform. The Revista Colombiana de Estadística is also indexed in the Journal Citation Reports and Scimago Journal and Country Rank.

We also have renewed the scientific and editorial committees and would like to thank all members that have accepted our invitation to join this committees. Reknown members of the international statistics community have joined us with the aim to maintain and even increase the quality of publication and visibility.

As always, a broad palette of topics are visited in this issue. It is worth highlighting that almost all articles are written by international authors.

We hope you enjoy this issue and invite you to continue reading and submitting your work to the RCE.

Kind regards,
