

ICELW is an international conference focused on e-learning in the workplace.

With researchers and practitioners coming from around the globe—and from both university and business settings—the ICELW community works to improve online learning so that it makes a measurable difference in workplace performance and morale.

By uniting the corporate and academic worlds, ICELW is creating a new synergy—one with the unique capability to realize the vast potential of e-learning in business, industry, and government.

Who Should Present or Participate?

ICELW welcomes anyone with a background or interest in e-learning in the workplace—researchers, consultants, and corporate trainers, managers, and directors.

Conference Topics

The ICELW program will explore a wide range of topics relating to e-learning in the workplace:

- Online training methodologies (simulations, case-based learning and the like)
- Performance support systems
- Mobile learning
- E-learning design and usability
- Strategies for implementing e-learning
- Authoring tools and Learning Content Management Systems (LCMSs)
- E-learning evaluation
- Studies of e-learning in practice
- Other pertinent topics from the ICELW community

The conference will use a variety of engaging formats to convey knowledge and show application, such as presentations, panel discussions, demonstrations, and brainstorming sessions.

Submissions

If you're interested in presenting at ICELW, please submit an abstract of 500-1000 words that describes your session: what you'd like to present or discuss, and what session format you envision. Send your abstract by December 15, 2008 to: submissions@icelw.org.
